His story now is that he has lost his appetite.

THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VII. WILMINGTON, N. C., MONDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1883. NO. 255

The civil service reform association of New York, George William Curtis, president, gives notice that its constitution "absolutely prohibits the use of the name or influence of the association for the purpose of procuring office or promotion for any person or in aid of any party, and that neither the name or influence of the association will be so used."

Judge Hoadly's law partner, Mr. L. M. Johnston, predicts that Ohio will go Democratic again next year. Of the possible Presidential nominee, he says: "He will be a Western man. McDonald stands well, and has to-day the best chance for one thing—he is too pronounced on the tariff question. We can't afford to go too far; our late Ohio platform strikes me as about the proper thing."

The Haytian consul at New York says no advice have been received of the seizure of an American craft while trying to force the Haytian blockade. On the 7th a complete settlement was made of the affair of the steamer Alps, which was fired upon at Jeremie, by the Haytian government. Only thirty persons lost their lives during the massacre, instead of 1,500.

The Lancaster (Pa.) New Era, Republican to the backbone, repudiates Arthur after this style: "It has been evident to close observers for some time that the current of Republican thought has been setting strongly in favor of Mr. Blaine as the most available candidate for 1884, provided he could secure the nomination without such a struggle as would leave factional bitterness behind it. If his opponents who caused his defeat in 1876 and 1880, when he was professedly the popular choice, have honestly reached the conclusion now attributed to them, and will no longer resist the popular will, no true friend of Mr. Blaine or of Republican unity will object to a statesman of Mr. Conkling's acknowledged ability being given an opportunity to retrieve his lost prestige by going back to the Senate."

New York Drives. Mr. S. H. Mason, proprietor of the Empire Stables, New York, states in a letter to the Spirit of the Times, that he regards St. Jacobs Oil as the greatest pain-cure of the age.

We have had a taste to-day of both March and April weather.

Yesterday was a beautiful day and our churches were fully attended in consequence.

Mr. A. Y. Wilson advertises in this issue for 1,000 cords of 7-inch shingle bolts, 24 inches long.

We saw walking on the streets yesterday a lady who on Friday last celebrated her 93rd birthday.

Bro. McDiarmid, of the Robesonian, favored us with a visit this morning but unfortunately we were not in.

There are now twenty-four inmates in the County Poor House, a large majority of whom are colored people.

Mr. Geo. M. Crapon, the South Front street grocer, sports a new delivery wagon. It is light, handsome and convenient.

The series of night meetings which were in progress during last week at the Fifth Street M. E. Church, came to a close last night. They were very interesting.

R. K. Bryan, Esq., editor of the Piedmont Press, who has been at his old home at Scott's Hill for a week past, was in the city to-day, on his return to the mountains.

Mahala Griffin, colored, died on Saturday last at the County Poor House. She was about 35 years of age and her disease was scrofula, with which she had been for a long time afflicted.

Rev. Dr. Fritchard preached his last sermon at Louisville, Ky., yesterday, and is expected to reach this city on Friday next in order to fulfill his first appointment at the First Baptist Church next Sunday.

Instructive Address.

Next Wednesday night, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Rev. F. W. E. Peschau will deliver an address upon the life, character and labors of Martin Luther. The musicians who were present last night, will be in attendance to add interest to the occasion. The seats will be free and the public are cordially invited. We venture the assertion that there will be no lack of hearers.

Alvin Joslin.

Those of our readers who may have seen the comedy of Alvin Joslin, as played here last Winter by Mr. Charles L. Davis and his company, will be glad to learn that they will appear here again next week. Mr. J. M. Hyde, the advance agent of the troupe, is on the city to-day and has made arrangements for their appearance here in the Thursday of next week, the 8th inst, when our theatre-goers may expect something genuinely good. The Syracuse Standard says of their appearance in that city:

Charles L. Davis and a good company played "Alvin Joslin" to a large audience at the Grand Opera House last night. The piece was well presented and delighted a crowded house beyond measure. Mr. Davis was called before the curtain at the end of the first and second acts and the orchestra, which can have but very few equals in the country, was applauded time and time again. The frequent peals of laughter demonstrated conclusively that the performance was appreciated. Each tableau was enlivened, and in the last act, Mr. Davis, an eccentric, but very agreeable gentleman, came upon the stage with his $100,000 worth of diamonds. Harry C. Wells is the accomplished musical director of the company. Nathan Carl is the trombone soloist, Harry Hardy the cornet soloist, who says that he is ready to meet Levy at any time, and Charles P. Lowe is the xylophone soloist. The performance will be repeated this afternoon and evening, and these who have not heard "Alvin Joslin" and the excellent music this company furnishes should not fail to take advantage of this opportunity.

Interesting Services.

At an early hour last night our citizens began to wend their way to St. Paul's Lutheran Church, in order to be in season to secure good seats to hear the sermon and other services connected with the celebration of the 366th anniversary of the commencement of the Reformation, and for a considerable time before the first bell was rung and the doors were opened the throng kept gathering in front of the church until the yard and sidewalk were filled with people. When the doors were opened the throng moved into the building as rapidly as they could without rushing or confusion, and in less than five minutes the ordinary seating capacity of the church was taken up. We never saw a building so occupied filled in so short a time and in so quiet a manner. After the seats were all accompanied, benches were placed in the aisles and those were as quickly and quietly filled; but not half of the throng could be accommodated, and a great many were compelled to stand during the service. The house was crowded to its utmost capacity, yet there were a great many—estimated at three hundred—who could not gain an entrance even to the vestibule, and left to attend service in some of the other churches.

After the usual preliminary services, Rev. Mr. Peschau, the pastor of the Church, commenced his sermon upon the Reformation, the causes which led to it and the results which followed and are still following it. It was a masterly effort and was listened to with the most profound attention and interest by all his hearers. Chaste diction, vivid imagery, graphic description and eloquent and impassioned oratory were its characteristics. Nearly every sentence contained a history, and each history was a connecting link between the present and the dim and distant past. With these historic facts the speaker illustrated, very happily and with irresistible logic, the power and goodness of God in preserving, sustaining and strengthening His Church, and throughout the entire time (which was about an hour) occupied in its delivery there was no flagging in interest or lack in instruction.

The music for the occasion was generally good—much better in fact than we had reason to expect, when we knew that the instrumentalists had had but one opportunity for rehearsal, and that a very short one. The best musicians in the country cannot do themselves nor their music justice without ample opportunity for rehearsal and practice. Those engaged last night were accomplished musicians, and with a very little practice together are competent to make most delightful harmony

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

Great Bargains!

The United States District Court was to have convened this morning, but Judge Seymour failed to arrive. He will be here to-night and the Court will convene in the morning, at which time it is expected that all the jurymen, witnesses and other attendants will be present.

Thanks to Messrs H. F. Otten, C. W. Polvoght and C. E. Hall, the Committee from the Young People's Association of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, for an invitation to attend the lecture to be delivered by Rev. Mr. Peschau, on Luther, on Wednesday next, Reformation Day, in response to an invitation from the Association.

A Great Age.

Tena Rice, colored, died this morning at the County Poor House. It is claimed that she was 105 years old, but whether there is any proof or not to substantiate the claim we are not aware. She was very old, and without doubt had seen nearly or quite a century, and was probably the oldest person in the county, if not in this section of the State.

Medicinal Remedies.

We understand that the hog cholera medicine manufactured by Mr. A. H. Morris, at Teachey's, which is advertised in the REVIEW, is meeting with a large sale, not only in this section and State, but in the far West. A correspondent tells us that Mr. Morris manufactures and ships large quantities to Messrs. Boykin, Carmer & Co., Baltimore, who are the general agents for their sale. Our correspondent also tells that Mr. Morris has been invited by General Loring, U. S. Commissioner of Agriculture, to attend a convention to be held in Ohio, in November, to consider the diseases of domestic animals, and that he will probably attend.

City Court.

Mary Shines, colored, was brought before Mayor Hall this morning charged with disorderly conduct. She was discharged.

A colored couple, man and woman, were arraigned for an affray and were fined $5 each for the offence.

More Light.

A gas light has been placed on Walnut street, North side, between Second and Third streets, which is a real blessing to pedestrians on that thoroughfare whose business calls them there in the night time. It has heretofore been one of the darkest places in the city, and after dark the traveller was in danger of bumping his nose against a tree, running into the fence or landing in the gutter; troubles which are now obviated.

Silver Plated Spoons and Forks, low prices, at JACOBI'S.

Consider When to Buy.

IF YOU HAVE CLOTHES TO BUY you naturally are going to spend your money where it will do the most good, or at least where you think it will. You probably don't care a rap for us or any other Clothing House in particular. It's only a question of who will give you the best for the least money. We therefore ask you to compare our goods with other houses, and we are sure to convince you that we will sell them lower, for the same quality and material, than they are sold anywhere in the State.
