The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation of any newspaper published in the city of Wilmington.

General Butler never uses the term editor without saying "red nosed editor."

Henry F. Gillig says that 130,000 American tourists have visited Europe this year.

Mr. Christian K. Ross thinks that his lost boy, Charlie, is alive.

Mr. Beecher made $21,000 by his lecturing tour in the West and South.

Mr. Capel will be the guest of W. W. Corcoran in Washington for a fortnight or longer in January.

Gen. Neal Dow says that the Prohibitionists of Maine have made up their minds to break with the Republicans.

Freddy Langtry, Benjamin F. Butler and Tomaso Salvini took prizes at the Boston cat show. Freddy and Tomaso are yellow, with silver-tipped claws.

E. H. Talbot of The Railway Age, is the owner of a $25,000 private car, presented to him by leading manufacturers of railway appliances.

Isaac Willey Pembroke, who died in Concord, New Hampshire, on Wednesday last, was the oldest Congregational minister in New Hampshire, his age being ninety years.

The Democrats of Ohio have turned the State Senate topsy turvy. The last Senate had twenty-two Republicans and eleven Democrats. The new one will have eleven Republicans and twenty-two Democrats.

That apt scholar in happy parallels, the editor of the Boston Post paragraphs this: "Mr. Beecher says he does not believe the story of the fall of Adam. If Mr. Adam were alive now he would have a chance to reciprocate by saying he didn't believe the story of the fall of Mr. Beecher."

The New York Times, a solid, stubborn Republican journal, is of opinion that "the colored people can gain nothing, but will surely lose much, by following such blind leaders as the Rev. W. Polk, who, at a meeting in his church in Chicago on Wednesday night denounced the civil rights bill decision as an insult to the race."

The opinion of the Supreme Court in the Civil Rights case has been presented and filed in the clerk's office. Justice Harlan was asked for a copy of his dissenting opinion. He replied that he had just commenced the preparation of it and would complete it as soon as he could do so consistently with his other duties in court. He did not, however, think his dissent could be filed under ten days or two weeks.

The Philadelphia Record howlth this: "Now let the American eagle stream, particularly such noble birds as wear the protectionist gyves and tassels. The contract for supplying steel turrets for the Miantonomah has been given to an English house. Congress may enact a protective tariff, but the government shows good sense in buying in the cheapest market. Only it is a pity that the people cannot have the same privilege."

The Scientific American says that every loaf of risen bread contains from ten to twenty drops of alcohol. Not enough, of course, to produce any physiological effect, yet enough to affect the quality of the bread. In fermentation the yeast from the materials which it finds in the dough, forms two new substances (neither of them having been there before)—alcohol and carbonic acid. The presence of the alcohol is of decided importance though it is not commonly recognized.

Petty larceny around the Presidential mansion is thus printed by the New York Sun: "It is an open secret that scarcely any of the articles of ordinary household use were found in the Executive Mansion on the 4th of March, 1881. They had mysteriously disappeared with the exodus of fraud. What became of them is as much mystery now as it was when General Garfield was obliged to purchase the necessary outfit to entertain a few friends at a family dinner. The ridiculous dinner service for 'State occasions' which Mrs. Hayes ordered at a cost $3,000, had not been disturbed, but in the expressive language of one of the new inmates, 'there was not a napkin to be found in the house.' Everything portable and convenient for use had taken wings and flown away.

THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VII. WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1883. NO. 256

The annual report of Dr. McDonald, superintendent of the money order bureau, for the year ended June 30, 1883, shows that there were 8,807,556 orders issued during the year from the 5,927 money order offices of the country. The total amount of domestic money orders issued was $117,344,281, and of international orders $7,717,832. The gross revenues from domestic and international money orders amounted to $111,619, and the net revenue after deducting expenses paid from appropriations amounted to $159,104. The postal note Superintendent McDonald reports, has been quite extensively employed by the public ever since the inception of the system. At the New York postoffice from September 3d to October 20th of the number of payments the postal notes comprised about 39 and the money orders about 61 per cent. The amount of the postal notes paid was $106,854, averaging $1.86, and of money orders $1,136,498.

Love's Warning.

Twilight had deepened into night and a calm, silent solitude seemed hovering over street and alley and cottage on Dry Pond. The prattling children, who had romped and played and made merry music with their gladness mirth in the gloaming, had been gathered to their respective homes and after having been thoroughly scrubbed and vigorously spanked had been quietly put into their little beds to sleep the sweet slumber of innocent youth, only to be disturbed by the vagrant flea or peripatetic bed bug. The paternal head of the Simpson family had gone to the corner grocery to discuss politics and other equally important matters, while the mother, weary with the toils and duties of the day, had taken a seat in her favorite arm chair at the open window, where the cooling and soothing zephyrs from the West fanned her fevered brow until she became lost in the sweet oblivion of profound sleep. There was nothing to disturb the serene silence save an occasional spasmodic snore from the mother, which resembled the sound made by cutting into a decayed log with a dull axe, and the low soft murmur of voices that came from the front piazza where Edward DeLacy was pleading for a return of his unalterable and undying affection with his idolized Alberta, the first born and fairest of the house of Simpson. Long and devotedly had he loved the fair damsel, and patiently had he waited for the coveted opportunity when he might pour out the wealth of his heart's purest affection in the fond hope that it might find an earnest and welcome abiding place with her and be as warmly reciprocated. This was the golden opportunity and in accents of tender pathos, such as is born of love unadulterated with any selfish considerations, yet tremblingly as he feared her answer might bring him blighted hopes and crushed aspirations, he plead his cause.

"And would you," said the gentle Alberta, as she listened to his passionate pleadings, "love me thus without change or decay, through the years to come? Would you, when age has spread its net work of wrinkles on this fair face and tinged with silver these glossy bangs, keep the sacred vows you have made to me? Or would you tire of me as the years glide by and leave the relentless stamp of Time upon form and feature?"

"O, throw aside such cruel thoughts, my adored Alberta," he replied as a look of ineffable anguish overspread his fine features. "Every lineament of your fair young features is indelibly daguerrotyped in my heart, where it will dwell in perennial freshness and youth to guard me from any side show affection. Days and years may pass away and age may tell its tale, but love like mine is ever young and ever true. Others may be lulled from their allegiance by caprice or fleeting fancy, but mine shall be constant and unwavering to the end. O, do not doubt me."

"Edward, I have not doubted you," said Alberta, in sadly tender tones, "and I have hoped for this hour when I might tell you that I was wholly thine, and if woman's love and woman's devotion can make you happy then take my heart and keep it, but remember that there must be no playing possum with Bert Simpson, if you want your face fit to be photographed."

A Gale Coming.

The Signal Office here was instructed yesterday afternoon to set the storm signal and the same instructions were given for Smithville and Fort Macon. The storm centre at that time was on Lake Ontario. It blew quite a gale here during the first portion of the night the maximum velocity of wind reaching 27 miles per hour. This morning the offshore was set, which indicates that a gale is approaching from the direction of the Northwest, but it is not known where the centre of the disturbance is at this hour. It may be expected that when it reaches this locality it will bring cooler weather in its train.

One Mile Per Day.

A statistician has amused himself calculating the distance travelled in a year by the hand of a printer. He takes the principle that a skillful compositor, working ten hours per day, allowing for distribution and correction, sets up 12,000 letters. In counting the year at 300 working days, he makes them a total of 3,600,000 letters. Consequently, the distance from the case to the stick and from the stick to the case being estimated at two feet, makes in all 7,200,000 feet, there being 23,500 feet in a geographical mile, so that the distance made in a year under these conditions by a printer's hand is in the neighborhood of 306 miles, or a mile per day. This is the estimate of the statistician. Here is ours, and it will be seen that there is much of a difference between the two:

A compositor in setting up 10,000 ems handles 25,000 letters at least. The same handling to distribute makes 50,000 letters, which for 300 days is 15,000,000 letters. Allowing two feet travel of the hand for setting up and distributing we have 30,000,000 feet, which is more than 5,682 miles, or something over 18 miles for each of the 300 days in the year. We have estimated at 5,280 feet in a statute mile and not 23,500 feet, as above, which is a queer mistake on the part of the statistician referred to.

LOCAL NEWS.

INDEX TO NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

F. C. MILLER—Druggist
C. W. YATES—Cotton Paper
W. H. GREEN—Tollit Articles
HEINSBERGER—School Books
MUNDS BROS. & DE ROSSET—Notice
OPERA HOUSE—Haverly's Minstrels

A good many strangers are in the city in attendance upon the U. S. District Court, now in session.

We are glad to see that Capt. Colvin, of the John Dawson, has recovered from his sickness and is at his post of duty again.

Sampson Fair.

Messrs. O. L. Chesnut, Secretary of the Sampson county Agricultural Association, and J. W. Powell, attorney-at-law, both of Clinton, in that county, were in the city to-day in the interest of the Annual Fair, which is to take place on the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th of December next.

Personal.

Mr. Jas. A. Radcliffe, a son of Col. Jas. D. Radcliffe, formerly of this city but now a member of the firm of Clarke, Radcliffe & Co., of New York and Chicago, is in the city on a visit to relatives. Mr. Radcliffe left here directly after the war when quite a small boy and has by strict attention to business established himself in New York in a fine business.

U. S. District Court.

This tribunal, Judge Seymour presiding, convened at the U. S. Court Room in this city at 10 o'clock this forenoon. The morning session was devoted to empanelling the Grand Jury and delivering the charge to the same, and in some other routine work preliminary to the trial of causes. After these duties had been completed the Court took a recess, and no cases had been tried when our report closed.

Chicken Thieves.

Last Friday we cautioned those of our readers who keep poultry about chicken thieves, and on Saturday night one of those midnight marauders stole two of our best hens. Last night he, or some other one of the fraternity, came again and stole our old rooster. We doubt not that the hens were fat and tender, but whoever got that rooster and at tempts to eat him will have steady employment and hard work chewing for a week to come or we are much mistaken.

City Court.

Mayor pro tem Dudley presided at the City Court Room this morning, and disposed of the following cases:

Alex. Henderson and George Phillips, two youngsters, for an affray yesterday afternoon at the market house, were found guilty and Henderson was sent below for 10 days while a fine of $2 was imposed upon Phillips.

Monroe Turner, colored, for an assault with a deadly weapon was required to give a bond in the sum of $50 for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court, in default of which he was committed.

All Sorts.

The Southern Express Company sold a large number of unclaimed packages this morning at the sales rooms of Messrs. Cronly & Morris. The assortment contained almost everything from really valuable parcels to articles that were valueless. The bidding was brisk and animated and there was lots of fun among the purchasers and bystanders. Some were quite lucky, and secured good and useful articles at a merely nominal cost, while others paid rather dear for things they had no possible use for.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Mr. A. W. Potts, County Clerk, who had suffered for five years with rheumatism, says the effect of St. Jacobs Oil was marvellous, effecting what all other remedies and physicians failed to do. It cured him.

Consider Where to Buy.

IF YOU HAVE CLOTHES TO BUY YOU naturally are going to spend your money where it will do the most good, or at least where you think it will. You probably don't care a rap for us or any other Clothing House in particular. It's only a question of who will give you the best for the least money. We therefore ask you to compare our goods with other houses, and we are sure to convince you that we will sell them lower, for the same quality and material, than they are sold anywhere in the State.
