

The Daily Review.

JOSH. T. JAMES, Editor & Prop. WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1883

Entered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N. C., as second-class matter.

The Hon. John Quincy Adams said at the Republican meeting over which he presided in Quincy, Mass., Friday evening, that there is crow and crow, and he had not infrequently partaken of it, but the Butler crowd was now a little too nauseous and he could swallow that no more.

Mr. Samuel A. B. Abbott, in declining the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor on the Butler ticket in Massachusetts, wrote to the Democratic State committee simply that he was so circumstanced that he could not at present be a candidate for any office.

Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague was in Philadelphia on Saturday, and christened the new and powerful dredger built for operating on the Panama Canal. It was named Nathan Appleton. This is the third dredger launched from Petty's Island for the same important work.

A deputation of ladies from the Women's Suffrage Association waited upon the city council of Toronto Monday night and asked them to sign a petition to the Legislature in favor of granting municipal and parliamentary franchise to women. A resolution to that effect was carried by 20 to 5.

Bishop J. W. Hood, of the A. M. E. Zion connection, has been tried and suspended until the sitting of the Kentucky conference, in 1884, by a committee of discipline in Philadelphia, on charges of violation in discipline, in having assumed unwarranted power in attempting to suspend Bishop Hillery before the Kentucky conference.

S. J. Hudson, of Belvidere, Ill., who went to Waupun, Wis., with two children in search of his runaway wife, found her masquerading in male attire under the name of Frank Dubois. She was living with Gertrude Fuller, having been married to her ear-ly last Spring by the Rev. H. L. Morrison. The deception had not been suspected.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, having a turn for mechanics and becoming interested recently in a scheme for the use of petroleum as a fuel in metallurgy, invented several appliances to that end. The outcome is that he, with Senators Miller, of California, Logan, Gen. Diaz and others, has organized a company to introduce the invention.

The New England midget at a New York museum is shortly to be married to the German princess, a diminutive creature. Of course, the ceremony is to be public to attract the crowd. The Kentucky giant will act as best man, the Brahma Priestess will give the bride away, and the child with the Daniel Webster head will act as first bridesmaid.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "If the southern States are properly represented at Louisville in the matter of timber and forest products, it will be worth several millions to them, for at the exposition these visiting northern lumbermen can see at a glance what they want, and save themselves the fatigue, annoyance and expense of traveling around the country looking for timber. There is no interest, no matter, deserving of more attention at an exposition than timber and lumber. It is a display of the greatest value to the South, and will be productive of the most important results."

The New York Herald recalls the fact that in 1856 more than seventy-five per cent. of the total imports and exports of the country was carried in American vessels. In 1882 only fifteen and one-half per cent. was carried, and represented the lowest point ever reached. The figures for the fiscal year 1883 show a slight improvement, as they give 16.26 per cent; but this is nothing to get elated over, and ought to be read with a feeling of shame by every patriotic American. Whether or not it is the high tariff rings that have been robbed of a rich carrying trade, the United States have been dependent upon the merchant natives of other countries. Is there any patriotism in that? Is it an advantage to Americans to pay foreigners for carrying five-sixths of what we import?

A Philadelphia correspondent of the New York World has something to tell about the cost of the Triennial Convention which was recently held in that city, as well as that of the Methodist Conference which is soon to be held there. He says:

The Episcopal General Convention has been an expensive church gathering. There were about 200 members of the House of Deputies and more than sixty bishops who attended the convention and were taken care of by the Church in Philadelphia. The actual expenses of the convention for clerical work, printing and other things necessary to such a meeting were not less than a round $6,000. The expenses of the entertainment of the clerical delegates and the bishops have been paid by the Episcopal churches in this city, as has been the custom in the places where the conventions have met. It is estimated that this entertainment has cost not less than $14,000. The expenses of the lay delegates, which are paid by themselves, have been about $3,000. These three items would make a bill of $38,000, which, however, is really less than half the expenses of the meeting. Travelling expenses of the members will amount to not less than $40,000. Last year they amounted to about $7,000. Therefore, counting all the extraordinary expenses, the meeting of the convention has cost not much less than $70,000. Of this expense Philadelphia has contributed $40,000, and it was therefore no surprise that there were few cordial invitations from the large cities for the entertainment of the convention in 1884. The Methodist General Conference, which meets here next Spring, will be somewhat larger body. It will meet in Association Hall and remain in session about six weeks. Ex-President Hayes, and possibly General Grant, will be present as lay delegates. It is supposed that the cost of the entertainment of the conference and its general expenses will amount to about $100,000, most of which is provided for by the enormously rich "Book Concern" in New York, which has profits sufficient to pay the salaries and expenses of all the bishops of the church.

There will be about 600 delegates to the conference, which will be presided over by Bishop Simpson, of this city, who, since the death of Bishop Scott, of Delaware, has been the presiding bishop of the church.

Cowper, it is stated by his biographer did not commence to write poetry until he was fifty. We wish the young men who daily send us poems about "haze" and "autumn days" and "woodland ways" would kindly stop and do as Cowper did.

The Limbo of Things Lost. on earth has engulfed many a trumpet tooth wash, paste and powder, since SOZODONT was introduced to public notice, but that standard article still retains its place in general estimation and waxes in popularity as the years wane. People whose teeth have been saved by it, speak gratefully in its behalf, and professional endorsements of it multiply fast.

Loss and Gain.

CHAPTER I. "I was taken sick a year ago With bilious fever."

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I could not move! I shrunk! From 228 lbs. to 120! I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles I am not only as sound as a sovereign but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life." R. FITZPATRICK. Dublin, June 6, '81.

How to Get Sick—Expose yourself day and night; eat too much without exercise; work too hard without rest; doctor all the time; take all the vile nostrums advertised, and then you will want to know how to get well, which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters! oct 20 d&w lm.

By One of the Fools.

"Why—pardon my remarking it—but, my dear old friend, how changed you are. I declare you must have lived very high or very fast to have driven the color out of your hair and the spring out of your step this fashion." Looking at his place on the river from the grounds of his uncle the Hudson, my school chum—who is now one of the best known mining experts in the country answered: "It wasn't fast living did it, but dyspepsia and nervous collapse, from over-work. I ought to have stopped years before I did. I was a fool. But who isn't, if you come to that?"

"I am thirty-five years old," writes Mr. Charles H. Watts, of Somers, Putnam Co., N. Y., and had suffered from dyspepsia for fifteen years. Went the round of the current remedies, falsely so called. Listlessly and without hope I gave PARKER'S TONIC a trial. The result may be stated in three words: it cured me. I endorse now without hesitation. It is the dyspeptic's refuge." Mr. G. R. Cole, druggist, of Carmel, N. Y., certifies to the truth of Mr. Watts' statement.

HISCOX & CO., proprietors, call special attention to the fact that this preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior articles under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading name. There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac. simile signature of HISCOX & CO. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper. oct 11-d&w

The growing Child. It is well known that a large majority of the human race die in childhood. Of course everybody has to die, some time or other. But there is such a thing as prolonging life, and also of making the most of it while it lasts.

A growing child is exposed to more risks than an adult. The system is in its formative state, and very receptive. If contagious diseases are in the atmosphere, the child is particularly exposed to them. Diseases which will pass over a full-grown man or woman will attack a growing child, and often with fatal effect.

A growing child is liable to all manner of accidents. Cuts, wounds, bruises, and casualties of various kinds may happen at any moment. Were it not for the natural elasticity of children, the death-rate among the young people would be far larger than it is.

A growing child is worthy of the very best care. It should be guarded against disease and accident. To conquer the diseases which attack the digestive organs, the blood, the kidneys, the liver, and the nerves, here is nothing like Brown's Iron Bitters. This is the only preparation of iron which can be given without mischievous results to teeth or stomach. It vitalizes the blood, strengthens nerves and muscles, and promotes sound digestion.

A growing child's future depends much on what his condition is during the years of growth. It is essential that he reach the complete adult maturity in healthfulness and vigor. Keeping this in view, how important it is that parents should closely observe their children's health, and in ample time begin to correct any tendency to weakness or decline. The timely administering of Brown's Iron Bitters will do wonders toward keeping the growing child in excellent health. 9
