The shaft has become blocked and there is little hope of rescuing the miners imprisoned at the bottom of it. The injured men who were rescued were removed through the Whiney Hill shaft, a mile distant from the blocked shaft. Some of them are badly hurt.

None of the bodies of those who per ished have as yet been brought up from the mine, and it is impossible to esti mate the number of persons killed by the explosion. Parties have been organized to explore the mine, and they are actively at work searching for the missing miners.
