This is Birthington's Washday, and don't yer forget it.

The hens are getting regularly to work now and eggs are toppling.

Clarendon Council, No. 67, A. L. of Honor, will meet to-night, at 7 1/2 o'clock.

Schr. Mary L. Allen, Butler, sailed from Rockport, Me., Feb. 19th, for this port.

Steamboatmen report that the river was rising rapidly when they left Fayetteville yesterday.

Mr. Reuben Everitt offers for sale in this issue a valuable plantation on Middle Sound. See ad.

The number of northern strangers arriving in the city seems to increase rather than diminish as the season advances.

The Produce Exchange was closed to-day and the brokers had a holiday in consequence of which we are without markets to report.

Mr. F. C. Rust, Business Agent for Baker & Farron, was in the city to-day making preparations for their appearance here next week.

Mr. R. K. Bryan, of the Hickory Press, favored us with a visit to-day. Mr. Bryan is on his return West from his old home on the Sound.

We invite the attention of our citizens to the fact that first quality shirts are being made to order at one dollar at the Wilmington Shirt Factory.

There was only one trifling case of disorderly conduct for the Mayor's consideration this morning, upon which for good reason judgment was suspended.

The young gentlemen of this city who intend to visit the Mardi Gras at New Orleans, will leave to-night on the Wilmington Columbia & Augusta train.

The song and chorus entitled "God Bless Our Noble Firemen," composed by Rev. F. W. E. Peschou, and dedicated to Mr. A. Adrian, is on sale at the bookstore of Messrs. P. Heinsberger and C. W. Yates.

A prominent gentleman who witnessed the angry clouds charged electricity which menaced us on Tuesday night last says if the wind had struck this city he does not believe a single house would now be standing.

The last regular german of the L'Arioso Club was given last evening in Germania Hall. It was largely attended and, as usual, greatly enjoyed. There is to be another german given by the club next Monday night and this will close the season.

A friend who has been reading about the destruction of life and property in the west and by the cyclone in our own immediate neighborhood, and our preservation as a city, suggests to our clergy the propriety of having some sort of thanksgiving services in their respective churches on Sabbath morning.

Bro. Muse sees us and goes one better. His millstones were carried a hundred feet, while ours stopped at considerably less than that. Besides, he gets the dead wood on us by telling about an anvil which was carried through a hog, but our information as to this is different—it was the hog that was carried through the anvil.

Yesterday's News and Observer says: Commissioner Patrick has gone to Philadelphia to meet the Scotch "Crofters." It was understood at first that all these would come direct to Norfolk. It is now learned that they are on two vessels, one of which will land at Philadelphia; the other at Norfolk. Mr. Patrick will return with the "Crofters." They will stop in Raleigh half an hour.

"How old are you?" said an ancient dame to a grinning little tar-pot. "Well, if I goes by what mudder says, I is most ten, but if I goes by the fun I see had I see most a hundred." O! that all could measure their years in this way, but now many measure them by long night watches, and almost fatal coughing spells, which could have been cured by a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup taken in season.

The largest and best stock of Windows, Doors, Blinds &c., and at Factory prices is at N. Jacobi's Hardware Depot.

The Storm.

In addition to the particulars which we gave of the ravages of Tuesday night's storm, we learn that its work of destruction was far more widespread and complete than we had anticipated. The loss of life becomes more and more fearful, the number of wounded is greatly increased, and the destruction to property almost incalculable. The force of the storm at Rockingham was upon a small hamlet, called Philadelphia, about two miles from the former place, consisting of about 20 houses, mostly inhabited by colored people. Of those every one was blown to the ground and with these and others in the vicinity 40 houses were completely destroyed.

At Concord, in Cabarrus county, the storm was very severe, doing much damage to dwellings, stores, trees and fences, but fortunately no lives were lost, although there were several remarkably narrow escapes. In the neighborhood of Pioneer Mills, in the same county, however, the storm was terrible and the work of destruction appalling. Nearly every house in that locality was demolished; many persons were seriously injured, and one colored woman was killed. All the trees in that neighborhood were blown down, and the fences were scattered in every direction.

Near Lillington, in Harnett county, Mrs. Reuben Matthews, Mr. Merritt Overby, his wife and two sons were instantly killed, while another son of Mr. Overby was so seriously injured that his recovery is extremely doubtful. All of the houses on Mr. Overby's premises were destroyed, as were also all of those upon the premises of Messrs. John McDonald and John C. Upchurch in the same neighborhood.

At Wadesboro, in Anson county, the damage was comparatively slight, although the wind blew with great violence. In other portions of the county, however, the devastation was terrible. We hear of five persons having been killed, and several wounded, while the destruction of buildings, trees and fences was very great. There remains hardly a building standing in the vicinity of Brown Creek, and on Mr. Wm. Little's plantation 28 of the 30 houses were blown down. Two houses caught fire after they were wrecked, but the torrents of rain which were falling at the time soon extinguished the flames.

At Monroe, in Union county, the wind was fearful and the rain poured in torrents, but the damage was not great. In other portions of the county, however, the storm made fearful and fatal havoc. In Lane's Creek township, every house on the plantation of Mrs. Jane Broom, including her residence, was blown down and Mrs. Brown was seriously and her daughter mortally wounded. Every building on Widow Philmon's place was destroyed, but with serious results to no one. The same may be said of the buildings on Mr. Buck Horton's place, with the addition that himself and every member of his family were more or less seriously hurt. At Mr. Lewis Krimenger's every building was destroyed, and his sister severely injured. The cows, geese and chickens were killed. John Bivens, col., living on Mr. G. D. Allen's place, had everything destroyed and himself and family were blown to the woods. Their clothing was torn from them and their hands and faces lacerated. At Mr. G. Allen's every building was destroyed, and Mr. Allen and one child slightly injured. The geese and chickens in the yard were killed. Mr. Marley Griffin's house was blown down and burned up, and Mr. Griffin it is feared is mortally wounded.

In Goose Creek township, in the same county, the scenes above described were repeated. The storm began its work at Mr. Andy Fowler's, everything was swept clean—houses, timber, fences, &c. Mr. Andy Fowler, dwelling destroyed; Mr. Jas. Fowler, kitchen blown down; Enoch Morgan, col., house blown down; H. M. Price, roof of house blown off; J. W. Pressley, house blown down; J. M. Guin, smoke house destroyed. Every house on Mr. Newton Presson's premises were destroyed. After passing Mr. Presson's it went through the plantation of Mrs. A. A. Price, blowing down one house; thence to Mr. Eli Rushing's, where it unrooted his house; thence to Mrs. Sally Medlin's, where it destroyed her buildings; thence to Jennie Tomberlin's, where it destroyed her house, the inmates being injured, but we could not learn how severely; thence to Mr. Andrew Hargett's, where it completely laid flat all his buildings, consisting of one double dwelling house, smoke-house, barn, crib and grain house. Jacob Mullis' house, next in its track, was blown away; thence to Mr. Robert Rushing's, where it blew down and burned everything he had except some clothing; it next stripped a house belonging to Mr. Jackson Mullis; passing on it blew Mr. Aaron Little's house down the joist; thence to Mr. Joseph Hagler's, where it blew one house down; thence to the lands of Mr. C. Haglet, where it destroyed all his buildings; thence to Mr. J. B. Tarlton's where it blew down and carried away his buildings, consisting of one two-story dwelling, barn, crib, shop, &c.; then passing on it destroyed a house belonging to Mr. Samuel Mullis; it next blew down an outhouse and stable belonging to Mr. John Love; next the house of Mr. John Tarlton was blown down, and Dossey Williams' house was blown down and burned.

At Winnboro, S. C., the storm was the severest ever known. Trees were uprooted by the hundreds and fences were demolished in all directions. At a small settlement thirteen miles from Winnboro, the storm struck with terrific force completely demolishing fifteen houses, killing three negroes, names unknown, and an aged white lady named Mrs. Sterling, besides wounding several others severely. The house in which Mrs. Sterling resided was torn all to pieces. At the time the blow came her son and daughter were in the house with her. They were both blown out of the house and lodged in a large tree that was standing in the yard, escaping with severe bruises. Their aged mother was crushed to death in the falling timbers. The damage and losses about Winnboro are calculated by the thousands.

Capt. Frank Lanier, lineman for the Southern Telegraph Company, reports that as he passed Woodward's, on the Charlotte, Columbia & Augusta Railroad, the remains of a negro man and his wife had just been extricated from the ruins of their demolished cabin. Their bodies were terribly bruised and mangled and their death must have occurred instantly.

A despatch to the Florence, S. C., Times says that the cyclone struck Darlington about 11:30 p. m. and demolished three houses, killing 4 outright and 15 wounded very seriously. Among the houses destroyed were R. W. Boyd's, Mr. and Mrs. White's, Mr. Chas. Edwards', and several tenement houses occupied by colored people. Mr. and Mrs. White, an aged couple, Mr. White being paralyzed and Mrs. White blind, were found dead after the debris was cleared away. Tom Swinton and Wm. Swinton's wife were also killed outright. Mr. Swinton and daughter were fatally injured and are not expected to survive. Mr. R. W. Boyd was seriously injured and his son, Master Willie Fountain, who were the only occupants of the house, were slightly injured. The scene is one of wild confusion, the dead and dying are all over the town, and the wounded are being cared for.

In speaking of the terrible work of death and destruction near Rockingham the Rocket says: Wednesday morning we visited the scene of devastation, and recently we say, God grant that our eyes may never behold such another heart-sickening sight! The track of the cyclone was on an average about a quarter of a mile in width, and in its track not a thing was left standing except the small shrubbery, and that was stripped of every limb and branch. Among the fallen trees and timbers of houses could be seen the dead and mangled bodies of men, women and children, while the eye could see in every direction, the carcasses of horses, cows, hogs, dogs, cats, chickens, and even birds. Hanging on the bushes were shreds of clothing, bedding, shoes, &c., which had been scattered by the tempest. It was a sight which can never be erased from the tablet of memory. Horrible! yet 'twas the hand of God that guided it.

The Color Bearer.

Mr. D. M. Sutton, of Little Sugar Loaf, Bladen County, made us a pleasant call yesterday and informed us that the color bearer whom Gen. Stonewall Jackson saluted at Cedar Mountain was Sergeant James E. Richardson, of Co., "K," 18th N. C. The same sergeant was color bearer at the time Gen. Jackson was fatally wounded by men of that regiment. He was in all the subsequent battles in which the regiment was engaged until the battle of Gettysburg, in which he was killed. He had borne the colors of that proud and gallant regiment through many a hard fought field and died as he had lived, a hero.

Mr. Sutton was also a member of Co. K, and is a veteran of the war. He served gallantly and was in most of the fights in which his regiment was engaged. He was at Chancellorsville when Stonewall Jackson received his death wound and he is emphatic in his assertion that it was an hour after dark when it took place.

Personal.

Mr. H. P. Russell, formerly of this city, but now of New York, is in Wilmington to-day and delighted us with a visit. He is now with the old and well known house of J. H. Parker, of New York, and comes South in the interest of that firm. He will remain here, we are sorry to say, but a day or two.

G. Washington.

This is the anniversary of Washington's birthday, of whom some one has said poetically, "God made him childless that a country might call him father." It is a national holiday, in consequence of which the Custom House, Produce Exchange, banks and some of the other public offices were closed for business.

Convalescent.

Our readers will rejoice with us to learn that Mr. C. N. Collins, the engineer who was so fearfully scalded on the Carolina Central Railroad a short time since, is convalescent and is considered now out of danger. He was able to sit up for a short time to-day and enjoy the luxury of a cigar. His sister, who has been a ministering angel at his bedside, is yet with him.

Relief Meeting.

Mayor Hall has received a telegram from the authorities of Rockingham asking assistance from the citizens of Wilmington for the sufferers of the recent cyclone. Forty families are homeless and utterly destitute. Many are badly wounded. Merchants and others are urgently requested to meet at the Produce Exchange at 12:30 o'clock to-morrow to take the necessary steps for their relief.

Good Words.

We have recently had several conversations with a gentleman from among the Berkshire hills of Western Massachusetts, who has been in the city several weeks. He expresses himself as much delighted with our people and he declares the climate to be the best within his knowledge. He becomes better pleased with the people and the city as his visit becomes prolonged, and it would be a matter of no surprise to us if he should seek a home in the city or its vicinity.

To Leave Us.

We are very sorry to learn that our genial young friend, Mr. H. H. Heide, has concluded to leave Wilmington and try his fortunes further South. He goes to Florida next week, on a prospecting tour, and it is likely that he will locate in that State. We hate to see him go and can only assure the Floridians that he will be a valuable acquisition to any community, wherever he may locate. Mr. Heide's family will remain in Wilmington at present.

Hemenway School.

An examination of the several classes in Hemenway Graded School was conducted this forenoon under the general supervision of Prof. Noble. A large number of the parents and friends of the pupils, besides many ladies and gentlemen interested in the cause of education, were present. The exercise were carried out in a manner entirely satisfactory and showed that the several teachers had been, patient, painstaking and faithful in the discharge of their various duties, and that the pupils had been instructed to think, to reflect, so as to understand what they had been taught—rather than to see how much they could tax their memory to repeat. Favorable progress had been made in every department and in each there was evidence that the entire intelligence of the pupil had been cultivated rather than the faculty of memory simply, as is too often the case. Prof. Noble has been earnest, assiduous and faithful in the discharge of his duties, and his efforts have been ably seconded by his corps of accomplished teachers. Their work shows that they have conscientious convictions of the vital importance of their noble profession, to which has been added a sincere love for, and desire to excel in, its pursuits.

Among the Follies of the Age

While the introduction of SOZODONT long since exploded, was the use of abrasive and corrosive tooth preparations, which either contained minerals which scratched their enamel, or acids which dissolved it. SOZODONT, a health promoting substitute for these empirical articles, is a botanic, skillfully prepared, highly sanctioned preparation, which not only beautifies, cleanses and invigorates saffron colored and defective teeth, but divests the breath of an objectionable odor and restores to it that of health. Now is the time to give Smith's Worm Oil.
