Sash, Doors, Blinds, &c. HAVING ENGAGED THE SERVICES OF MR. G. M. ALTAFFER (late of Altaffer & Price), and arranged for the purchase of new special machinery, we desire to notify our friends—the public—that we shall at an early day be prepared to fill orders for SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, BRACKET, WOOD BOUNDING, AND ORNAMENTAL WOOD WORK of all descriptions.

Now Firm. New Partners. Re-organization.

There were some wicked partners, and it was judged best to kick them out, for the business was of long standing, and there was a fear that the wicked partners would bring it to grief.

There was old MR. DEBILITY. He was a complaining fellow, always tired, and always wanting to sit down and rest, instead of doing his share of the work.

There was little MR. NERVOUSNESS, a fidgety, fussy chap, constantly afraid the concern was going to ruin.

There was bothersome MR. BILIOUSNESS, quarrelsome and angry. He always misunderstood everybody, and said that everybody misunderstood him.

And there was the much-despised MR. BAD BLOOD. A troublesome creature was he to get along with.

So the wicked partners had to be kicked out. The agent selected to do the business was Brown's Iron Bitters, noted for working so pleasantly, so silently, & so effectually.

Brown's Iron Bitters laid hold of MR. DEBILITY by the heels and gently dragged him out, laying him aside for future use, in case he should be wanted.

Brown's Iron Bitters worried MR. NERVOUSNESS out flat, giving him no chance to make a fuss during the operation.

Brown's Iron Bitters made direct war on MR. BILIOUSNESS and told him that he "must go." B. turned round and snarled something about "wouldn't go till he had a mind to"—and then made up his mind that the sooner he got out the less trouble there would be in his going.

Brown's Iron Bitters then took MR. BAD BLOOD in hand, and found that he could change him entirely. So he put into him some of that famous preparation of pure iron, and cast out all his badness, reforming his character entirely and making him anew.

The firm now consists of Health, Happiness, Purity, and Vigor, with Brown's Iron Bitters for special agent.
