

Ex-Governor Hendricks, of Indiana, who is now in Europe, has written a letter to a friend in New York which contains a brief outline of his views on the political outlook. He takes the view that with the Indiana Democracy divided between two factions it would be inadvisable to take a Presidential candidate from that State. From what he can learn Mr. Hendricks thinks that the Democrats in Congress should support themselves with such caution on tariff matters as not to alarm the high protectionists into the belief that the whole structure is threatened, and at the same time, with sufficient energy to indicate that the party is not afraid to prime existing evils just because the Pennsylvania cry "wolf." Mr. Hendricks hopes the party, in making its candidates and platform, will bear in mind that for twenty years party shackles in the country have not been so loosely borne as now; that the floating and independent vote is three times larger and three times more independent than before. This being the case, the party that wins will be the one which frames that platform of the great economic measures before the country on which the great mass of independent voters can stand. The party that secures this element will obtain the White House, in spite of all the red lights and transparencies and bonfires and stump oratory of the campaign.

The Northern Pacific Railway, says the N. Y. World, has a magnificent White Elephant now in the shape of the newly discovered gold fields of Cœur d'Alone, on the border line between Montana and Idaho. It is expected that ten thousand people will visit the El Dorado this summer and pay the road $300,000 in the shape of fare and freight. Hence the glowing accounts that are sent by the agents of the company. Beautiful pamphlets have been issued, illuminated with views of the minds and covered with gold leaf. They are written in a style to allure the greedy and charm the imaginative. They are the work of the artful passenger agents. One of these "olders," issued from Chicago, conveys this cheerful word to the miners: "The gold produced by the Cœur d'Alone paces is what is known among miners as heavy, shot gold, and large nuggets of from $50 to $200 each have been found, showing the nuggets to have been washed a long distance and indicating a very large deposit." Then to the thrifty and large deposit. "No machinery or capital required. These placers will yield the riches to any one who has a pick, pan, and shovel and the muscle to use them. In this camp already seventy miles of gulches have been prospected, giving promise of rich returns. There is abundance of timber for all necessary purposes, and plenty of water in the camps of the Cœur d'Alone." The railroad Aladdin proceeds to state that "a gold vein is located near Miners' Cabin, on which comparatively little development has been made, and yet hardly a chunk can be picked up on the dump and broken which does not show free gold. This ore assays from $28 to $10,000 per ton in gold." People who have good homes, who read these attractive stories and who feel inclined to rush to the El Dorado, pick in hand, should bear in mind the fact that the Northern Pacific road is sadly in need of business and that it is easy to find advertising agents who can improve on the literary merits of "The Arabian Nights."

As to the Presidential preferences in New York State the Sun says:

The two Republican factions in this State are getting ready for a sharp contest over the election of delegates to Chicago. The leaders in many of the new Congress districts in the interior counties have already got into warm disputes. In the unattached rules and recommendations of the National and State Committees they find plenty of excuses for differing and quarrelling. In New York only two of the Presidential aspirants have a perceptible following. They are Arthur and Blaine. The Stalwarts, of course, rally to Arthur. All Federal officeholders are expected to fall into line without hesitation. This must put William M. Robertson into rather a tight place.

The Half-Breeds are for Blaine. Here and there one of this faction may speak of Edmunds or Lincoln, or even Sherman, but the great body wear the badge of the plumed knight. He is just as much of a candidate as he ever was. It is only his methods that have changed. In 1876 and 1880 he went after delegates with a brass band. Now he is on the still hunt.

In the struggle in district Conventions the dividing lines will for present purposes be drawn on Arthur and Blaine, though Warner Miller, the great wriggler, may try to run in here and there a colorless follower. But, after all, no long-headed politician expects that either Arthur or Blaine will win the battle at Chicago. When the stampe comes it will be an interesting spectacle to see in how many directions the seventy-two New York delegates will scatter.

Now is the time to give Smith's Worm Oil.

The advocates of free pilotage have just won an important victory at New Orleans. Under the State law, which protects the "monopoly," two pilots who had not a State license were arrested and thrown into prison for the heinous crime of piloting vessels through the Southwest Pass without asking anybody's permission; whereupon the defendants obtained a hearing on habeas corpus before United States Judge Pardee (March 4th.) resulting in their release from imprisonment, the Court holding that their arrest was in violation of the laws of the United States. According to this independent pilots can now not only resume their vocation but turn around and sue the monopoly for damages for false imprisonment.

An independent journal in the interest of colored people is to be started in New York by some colored journalists, who held a meeting last week to complete their arrangements. The paper is to be called the Negro-American, will make its first appearance on April 5, and will have as permanent editor J. A. Arneaux, who in a speech made at the meeting just referred to, said to his future collaborators: "I feel that the black man in America to day is sadly in need of some one to set him an example, and I know of no better men than you, gentlemen, whose sparkling faces are beaming with the hope of success, and whose sparkling eyes flash forth the fire of intelligence, to form the crew of the ship that is about to be launched upon the merciless waves of public contempt."

Thirteen Years' Dyspepsia.
"I suffered with dyspepsia for 13 years," writes John Albright, Esq., of Columbus, Ohio. "Samaritan Nervine cured me." As it always cures such disorders. At druggists.

MARCH MIRTH.

A Southern Dakota editor advertises his Bible for sale. He has probably gone over to the other party.—Bismarck Tribune.

An exchange says mush has become a popular dish in society. Nothing seems to take in society like something soft.—Oil City Blizzard.

The Atlanta Constitution, a good paper, denounces an elopement as "a diabolical crime." They must be hard up for crimes down that way.—Lowell Citizen.

The other day, while a Vermont woman was frying doughnuts, one of them exploded. Her husband merely observed that he was glad, on the whole, it happened before he had eaten the thing.—Boston Post.

Mrs. Cook, wife of Rev. Joseph, is preparing for the lecture platform. "Are here no babies in the family?" Phila. Call. What sort of baby talk do you suppose would prevail in that family?—Hartford Post.

Is there to be a rest from having to watch your umbrella to see that it isn't stolen? This long spell of weather has been a fearful strain on a man's mind, keeping him on the alert for so long.—Hartford Post.

The "Sweet Singer of Michigan" has made "Oscar Wilde" rhyme with "latter child." This is a little more creditable than her attempt to rhyme "consanguinity" with "laws a massy," but not much.—Bismarck Tribune.

It is sometimes a misfortune to be deaf. At a revival meeting not far out of this city, a few nights ago, a German arose to express his opinion, and said: "Der pe's a good many on de road to hale." A worthy deacon, who was hard of hearing and regulated his responses by the inflection of the speaker's voice, exclaimed: "The Lord be praised!"—Bradford Sunday Mail.

Lost Faith in Physicians.
Why is it that so many persons use proprietary medicines, or patent medicines, as they are commonly called? Is it because people lose faith in their physicians? Well, this is no doubt, frequently the case. There are in numbers of instances where cures have been effected by ROSADALIS, the Great Southern Remedy for all diseases of the blood, when they had been given over by their physicians. It is one of the best remedies ever offered to the public, and as it is prepared with the greatest care, as a specific for certain diseases, it is no wonder that it should be more effective than hastily written and carelessly prepared prescriptions made by incompetent physicians. Take ROSADALIS for all disorders arising from impure blood. It is endorsed by leading professional men as well as by eminent physicians and others. Try it.

A wealthy banker being applied to for aid by a needy Irishman, answered, petulantly: "No, no, I can't help you. I have fifty such applicants as you every day." "Sure, and ye might have a hundred without costing you much" was the response.

Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the spring of the year to purify the blood, invigorate the system, excite the liver to action, and restore the healthy tone and vigor of the whole physical mechanism.

There are about 2,700 births and about 1,500 deaths per week in London. But there are more deaths than births in New York every year.

EMORY'S LITTLE CATHARTIC PILLS are sufficiently powerful for the most robust, yet the safest for children and weak constitutions.—15 cents.
