THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VIII. WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 1884. NO. 138

The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation of any newspaper published in the city of Wilmington.

Eduardo Margio of New York has been knighted by the King of Italy.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe has been elected president of the Woman's Club of Boston.

M. Pasteur, the eminent chemist, proposes to extend his experiments in rabies to cattle.

Gen. Heros von Botcke, the chief of staff of Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, is the lion of the hour in Baltimore.

Ida Lewis, the Grace Darling of America whose life was despaired of, is now pronounced out of danger.

It is noted as a curious fact that among all the Mormon converts at Salt Lake there is not a single French woman.

Benjamin F. Butler will probably be the most prominent and the least elected of all the Presidential candidates in 1884.

Roscoe Conkling has been elected a member of the Manhattan Club. Not one black ball was thrown against him.

Mr. Ira D. Sankey, the musical evangelist, sailed for this country on Saturday his health and voice having finally given out.

Miss Mary Anderson now tells her friends that she has determined to settle in England after her next visit to America.

The London bar has passed a resolution that the receiver of a letter has the right to publish it with or without the consent of the sender.

Chief of Police Stewart of Philadelphia, has prohibited the firing of crackers, squibs, &c., within the limits of city on the Fourth of July.

When the Queen died the poor people of Madagascar wore no clothes for a period of thirty days. This is a good deal cheaper than the American plan of bankrupting yourself in a mourning store.

Since John L. Sullivan has made $50,000 by his recent tour at the West he thinks of subsidizing into quiet respectability, and it is hinted that he may be made professor of athletics at Harvard.

Oscar Wilde was married last Tuesday. He was aesthetic to the last. He took his bride in the leafy month of June, when the red roses blow and the yellow sun-flower begins its diurnal revolutions.

Ingersoll is in doubt as to the fate of the Republican party. He is more than half impressed that it is on the downward path that leads to destruction. It makes him sad to think about such a thing.

Mr. Whistler at the recent private view of his exhibition sold six drawings at prices varying from twenty to eighty guineas. Some of them, the artist observed, had taken him nearly twenty minutes to complete.

Augustus Gebart, an active participant with Carl Schurz in the Revolution of 1840, died in Harrisburg, Pa., last week, aged sixty-five. He had been one of the leading German citizens of Pennsylvania since 1856.

It is said that President Arthur sometimes rides an Indian pony, presented to him in Dakota, which bolts the moment the rider is seated. The steed that the President tried to ride in Chicago bolted before he was seated.

Property amounting to more than $1,000,000 was sold in New York city last week by auctioneers and brokers, while a great deal more was sold by private contract. The prices realized showed an advancing market in real estate.

The Jewish citizens of San Francisco have had to organize to break up a curious monopoly, namely, one that controlled the price of matzos or Pass over bread. The price has been reduced from twelve to eight cents a pound.

The New Orleans Sugar Exchange was opened Wednesday with appropriate ceremonies. Eighteen hundred guests were present, and the proceedings included an address on the sugar industry, an address on the value of commerce, and an abundance of refreshments.

Mr. George M. Pullman complains that there are in this country one hundred and ninety railway directors' private palace cars which cost $2,500,000, and which he pronounces wholly unnecessary; but the directors think differently.

It is now definitely known that Mr. J. M. Worth, the present Treasurer, will accept a renomination. He has said as much in reply to a letter of enquiry from the editor of the Asheville Courier. There is no doubt, we think, of his renomination. Dr. Worth and Col. Bill Saunders can stay in Raleigh just as long as they want to. See if we are not right.

Noting the demise of the Greenock Advertiser, a paper started in 1802, an English newspaper says the most notable incident in its history was its rejection of one of the finest poems of Campbell, sent by the youthful author of "The Pleasures of Hope," for insertion in the poet's corner. The editor put in a notice to the poet that his attempt was not "up to the mark" of the Advertiser.

Steel pens are generally made of the finest and most costly steel. In some European countries those which have been used are carefully saved, while we throw them away by the ton. Second-hand steel pens are utilized in the manufacture of watch springs, fine knives, &c. In Dresden it has been planned to collect and sell them for the benefit of the education of poor children.

One of the largest papers of the border states says: St. Jacobs Oil stands at the head as the great pain destroyer.

The Concert.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather a large and enthusiastic audience assembled last night at the Opera House to listen to the vocal and instrumental concert given by some of the best musical talent of the city for the benefit of the organ fund of the First Baptist Church. We simply voice public sentiment when we say that all who attended were delighted.

The programme consisted of twelve selections, all of which were of a high order of musical merit. It was in part as follows:

Overture—"Poet and Peasant," by Suppe, and rendered by Miss Chast n and Messrs. Munson, Smithdeal, Willson, Mitchell, Alderman and Grenewald. Miss Chasten and Mr. Grenewald presided at the piano, Messrs. Munson and Smithdeal played violins, Messrs. Willson and Mitchell played cornets and Mr. Alderman played the flute. The piece was well rendered in all its parts, and when we consider that the performers had had an opportunity for only two rehearsals, it was excellent.

Vocal Solo—"Les Veprez Siciliennes Bolero," by Verdi, and sung by Mrs. D. B. Kahnweiler. It seems to be almost an act of supererogation to speak of this charming vocalist who has on so many occasions delighted the music loving people of Wilmington. Her vocalization last night was fully equal to any of her former efforts which is equivalent to saying that it was superb. Miss Annie Chasten then played a piano solo in two parts, the first being a "Polonaise," by Chopin, and the second "Highland Gems, No. 1," by Pape. This was, we believe, Miss Chasten's first appearance as a soloist on the concert stage, and she achieved a success of which she has just reason to be proud. She is a conscientious, pains-taking, thorough musician with a profound love for the science of which she is an earnest and assiduous student under the excellent training of Prof. Van Laer. The next was a vocal quartette rendered by Messrs. Tilly, Mitchell, Welsh and Grant. They were in magnificent voice and tune, and sung their fine selection with much taste and expression.

This was followed by a vocal solo from La Traviata, by Verdi, and rendered by Mrs. A. D. Jenkins. Many of those present had an opportunity of hearing, for the first time, the superb vocalization of this lady. Her voice is a pure soprano and is especially full and round on the high sustained notes. She is a grand acquisition to our musical talent and her splendid efforts last night were delightfully appreciated.

The instrumental quartette, "Come where my loves dreaming," rendered by Messrs. Willson, Mitchell, Otterbourg and Smithdeal, was a fine feature of the entertainment.

Part second was opened by a bass solo, "Thy Sentinel Am I," sung by Mr. R. H. Grant, who is too well known to our people to need commendation from us. He never sung better than he did last night, which is saying so much that any other remark would be out of place. We may say, however, that his voice, always good, seems to grow better every time we have the pleasure of hearing it.

The next was a piano solo, "Lucrezia Borgia," by Thalberg, rendered by Miss DeRosset. The arrangement was difficult, but it was executed in a brilliant manner which was greatly admired by all present. Miss DeRosset has fine musical ideas, expresses them admirably, and we predict for her a brilliant future as a pianist.

We have now spoken of all the persons who took part in the entertainment save Prof. VanLaer, the conductor, and Mrs. M. P. Taylor, the principal accompanist. Both of these have become so closely identified with the musical culture of the city that it is hardly necessary to speak of them. Both are musicians of the highest order of talent and as pianists they may take rank among the best. The piano, although a good one, was not equal to the occasion and none but a "Concert Grand" is fully adapted to the concert stage.

The different pieces were deservedly and rapturously applauded by the audience, which must have been a cause for gratification to the several musicians as showing that their efforts were appreciated.

We are glad to know that the concert was a financial as well as a musical success, and there is an almost universal wish that it may be repeated. Our citizens are under many obligations to Mr. D. B. Mitchell and Mrs. A. D. Jenkins, through whose energy the concert of last night was given, and the Organ Fund Association owe much to those not connected with it who contributed so much towards its success.

Maj. Charles M. Stedman. The Hickory Press speaks as follows of the distinguished Wilmingtonian whose name is at the head of this article:

We publish to-day a communication advocating the nomination of Major John Hughes, of Newbern, as the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. We have no doubt that Major Hughes possesses all the qualifications claimed for him by our correspondent. And should he receive the nomination of the Democratic convention, Catawba and the Piedmont country will give him a zealous support.

We cannot, however, permit the occasion to pass without saying a word for Major Charles M. Stedman, of New Hanover, in this connection. He was born in Chatham county, about the year 1840, and afterwards removed with his father to Fayetteville, where he was prepared for the University. During the three years he was a student of that institution he acquitted himself with credit, occupying a high position in his class. In 1862 he left the University and entered the Confederate army. From that school he graduated in 1865, when Lee surrendered. His wound received in that war and his promotion to the office of Major attest his fidelity to the cause of the South.

Though comparatively a young man he has attained the highest position as a lawyer and as a man of business in the city of Wilmington. He was for several years president of the Bank of New Hanover—the largest banking institution in the State. That position he was compelled to relinquish on account of the demands of a large and lucrative law practice. He is a thorough business man, an effective speaker and brimful of energy. Whatever he undertakes he will do thoroughly. Major Stedman is besides a gentleman of pleasing address, and will make friends wherever he goes.

Like Major Hughes, he hails from a section overwhelmed by hordes of Radicals. The most important commercial city in the State, with its twenty thousand inhabitants, with its banks, its heavy investments of capital in commercial enterprises, its railroads and its noble, refined and patriotic population is practically without representation in the General Assembly. A recognition of the importance of those interests could not be made more properly than by nominating a man who is a true representative of them to the second office in the State Government.

As the presiding officer of the Senate he would be in a position to guard well the interest of his own section, as well as those of the whole State, for which in times past he was ready to make any sacrifice demanded of a patriot.

A Dangerous Counterfeit.

A number of counterfeits of United States legal tender notes of the denomination of ten dollars, which first made their appearance about a year ago, have again been circulated within the past few days in New York. The counterfeits are of the series of 1878, and are said to be very good imitations of the genuine notes. They differ from them, however, in the head-line on the face of the bill, where the words, "This note is a legal tender," &c. run into each other as though they were one word, while in the genuine one the words are properly separated. The head to the left in the counterfeit has a heavy, square and rather unnatural jaw, while in the genuine note it is rounded. On the back of the counterfeit the word "This," in the notice "This note is a legal tender," &c., is spelled "Tis." The counterfeits appear to have carried the notes about their persons and soiled them, for they now look well used and worn.

PLEASE NOTICE. We will be glad to receive communications from our friends on any and all subjects general interest but The name of the writer must always be placed to the Editor. Communications must be written on only one side of the paper. Personalities must be avoided. And it is especially and particularly understood that the Editor does not always endorse the views of correspondents unless so stated in the editorial columns.
