Arabella was a school-girl-So was Sally Ann; Hasty pudding can't be thicker Than two school-girls can

These were thick as school-girls can be; Deathless love they swore, Vowed that naught on earth should part them. One forever more.

They grew up as school-girls will do; Went to parties, too; And as oft before has happened, Suitors came to woo.

As fate or luck would have it, ()ne misguided man Favored blue-eyed Arabella More than Sally Ann.

And, of course, it made no differ That the laws are such That he could not wed two women, Though they wished it much.

So a coolness rose between them, And the cause-a man. Cold was Arabella-very-Colder Sally Ann.

Now they call each other "creature," What is still more sad-Bella, though she won the treasure. Wishes Sally had.

The Feminine Hand.

The hand of the finest lady, be it ever so soft and dainty, should be able to grasp with the tull fervor of friendship and to do any act of benevolent service. Even should all the lines in the palm indicate characteristic virtues, if the hand be so small and meaningless that it can oppose the veracity of the lines, newer." $1. Druggists. no dependence can be placed upon it in time of emergency, and it is no credit, no matter how pretty it is, to either man or woman. The notion that exists among certain people that a lady's hand must be of this kind, is in the real sense of the word, vulgar.

Delicacy is delightful, but weakness must either excite pity or contempt, according as it is self-imposed or not. The Chinese mandiron allows his nails to grow until they resemble claws, priding himself upon this evidence that he never did, and is incapable of doing. any manly work, and many ladies cultivate their hands to support the same notion. It must be remembered that the longer and more pointed the nails, the more they are suggestive of claws. Surely it The only Lottery ever voted on and endorsed cannot be in good tase to recall our animal origin at the expense of human capabilities. The Greeks, who accentuated all peculiarity and distinctly human characteristics, carefully avoided pointing the nails, though no Darwin had shown them whence came those nails. They also rejected the idea of beauty in the smallness of hands, such as the deal of modern taste demands. Proportion and fitness were to them ruling principles, outside of which they found no beauty.

Hands are no more beautiful for being small than eyes are for being big -out of proportion-but many a modern girl would ask her fairy godmother, if she had one, to give her eyes as big as saucers and hands as small a-those of a doll, believing really that the first cannot be too large nor the last too small.
