Dry and Dusty.

There were many indications last night of showers and a change of temperature, but it remains about as hot as it has been, and there was no rain; although there was connsiderable rain at Hamlet and points along the line of the Carolina Central Railroad. Here it is very hot, dry and dusty.

A Fact! Betsyburg is a small hamlet of 20 or 30 houses on the line of the tramway railroad from Lake Waccamaw to White Marsh Run in Columbus county. The place was named in honor of a young lady whose first name was Betsy, who was one of the first children born there, and who grew up to womanhood and married and is now living in the same locality with her husband and four promising children. The husband of this lady has a great passion for possessing the best breeds of poultry and has succeeded in raising some remarkably fine specimens especially of the game variety, in which he takes much pride. The village is situated upon high land, which is currounded by large swamps, the abiding places of numbers of hawks and owls make frequently raids upon friend's poultry yard. Among his flock is a fine and very pugnacious game cock which he has named Gen. Scales. and which, a few days since, was the hero of quite an adventure. On the day in question a loud disturbance was so long and continued and vociferous that the people went out to see what for Howe's Scales and Hall's Cotton heard among the poultry, which was this article. was the matter, when it was found that a hawk had made a swoop down upon a young chicken, and that the General had resented the outrage by attacking the intruder, and had driven one of his spurs clear through the back part of Mr. L. G. Cherry has consolidated the hawk's head, from which he could not withdraw it. When found the hawk was dead and the cock, still fastened to him, was crowing most lustily over his victory. It is needless to say that he was extricated from his unremoved to the store on the Northeast pleasant situation, and that now the corner of Fourth and Brunswick entire population of Betsyburg are streets; Mr. A. Whom the Gods Love Die Young.

One of the saddest events which we have chronicled in many months is the the evening. The procession was a death, after a sickness of only about two days of little Wallace, son of Mr. Seth W. Davis and grandson of Mr. S D. Wallace, for whom he was named. The little fellow had been on a visit to the Sound and was brought to the city on Wednesday sick and suffering and yesterday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, he died, very suddenly, with a congestion

Little Wallace was 10 years of age, acking one month, and was a peculiarly bright, intelligent and active child. He was the idel of his parents and grand, parents and the blow falls, upon them with stunning effect. Mr. Wallace left him at about 4 o'clock, not dreaming o his extreme danger, and in less than a hour after was summoned to return yet before he could reach him he had expired, hehimself having remarked, not ong previous to the event! "In a half hour I will be dead." None knew the paign. lad but to love him and the sympathies of the entire community go out to his honrs in the delivery of his speech afflicted relatives.

George C. Kelley.

The New Orleans Bulletin has a correspondent who has recently visited Birmingham, Ala., and written up the business houses there. Here is what he says of Mr. Geo. C. Kelley, formally the end. His logic was forceful, plain of this city, and the immense hardware and machinery business conducted by him there:

This mammoth house, although established in 1881, is now the largest business house of any kind in the city. The elegant store on 3d Avenue, between 19th and 20th streets, has been ed a pronounced enthusiasm, recently enlarged and newly fitted up, and consists of a three story brick building 25 feet by 140 feet in dimensions, besides a warehouse 40 by 100 feet in extent. The number of new and handsome business houses that are being erected in Birmingham is an evidence of its prosperity, and Mr. Kelly not only keeps pace with the city's progress, but takes a leading position in the march of improvement. An imposing newfront, consisting entirely of iron, elaborately ornamented, and immense plate glass, is being placed in position, the iron work having been done by C. S. Williamson, of this city. Your correspondent saw the finished three-story iron front at the foundry, and was surprised at its magnitude and pleased by its beauty. The stock carried by this house is one of the largest in the State, embracing everything enumerated at the head of Democratic Demonstration.

The programme for the Democratic gathering last night, which was announced in yesterday's issue, was fully carried out. The procession was formed at the City Hall and, preceded by the Cornet Concert Club, marched to the Purcell House where it was joined by Gen. Moise, the principal speaker of large one and with the members of the Club wearing helmets and bearing torches, presented a fine appearance. In the carriages, accompanying Gen Moise, were Mr. W. H. Strauss, President of the Young Men's Progressive Democratic Club; Mr. J. W. King, Chairman of the County Executive Committee; Mr. J. D. Bellamy, Jr., Chairman of the Committee on Invitation; Mr. Thomas W. Strange, President of the Young Men's Democratic Club; Mayor Hall, Mr. H. A. Bagg and Mr. A. H. Leslie, President of the Fifth Ward Democratic Club.

General Moise was introduced to the audience in a neat and appropriate speech by Mr. John D. Bellamy, Jr., who alluded in grateful terms to the valuable services rendered by the distinguished speaker during the last cam-

Gen, Moise occupied about two and was often interrupted by the applause which greeted many of the strong points of his argument. He is a fine orator and has the power of winning the attention of his audience from the beginning and of keeping it to and practical, and his speech abounded in beautiful and impressive flights of oratory.
