WILMINGTON, N. C.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1884.

Entered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N. C., as second-class matter.

The transitory nature of the value of mere notoriety is well illustrated by the waning importance of Mrs. Huiskamp, the coachman's bride. At first she was offered $1,000 a week for a position on the lyric stage, then $500, and lately she has been surprised by an offer of $300. As her intrinsic value as an actress may be supposed to be the same, her worth to managers has probably been gauged by the amount of advertising gratuitously received.

At first hearing, the story that a lieutenant in our navy has resigned his commission in order to raise cattle on the Alaska Islands seems very amusing. A sailor is the last man one would count upon to raise cows, and the Aleutian Islands are the last place in which it would be imagined that sleek kine could be encouraged to prosper. It is a fact, however, that Lieutenant Schwatka has been so impressed by the grass of these islands, and by certain fat cattle feeding upon it, that he is determined to try the experiment of herding in these far-off pastures.

The first of a series of exhibitions of skill in chess by three well known masters of the great game came off recently at the City of London Chess Club. The performer was Dr. Zukertot, winner of the chief prize in the London international tournament, who played twenty-four games simultaneously against an equal number of amateurs. The room was crowded with spectators, many well known chess players being present. Play began at 6 P. M. and ended at 10 P. M. The result was that the champion won eighteen games, drew five and lost only one.

At Portland, Ore., recently, Ding Wing, a Chinese merchant, entertained a number of his brother merchants at a costly and elaborate banquet. The occasion was the shaving of the head of the infant son of Ding Wing, who was a month old the day before. When a Chinese boy is one month old his head is shaved and a bladder drawn over it, and as his head grows the bladder bursts and the cue sprouts forth. The first shave is made the occasion of a banquet, and the guests are expected to make the host a handsome present in coin for the newly shaven boy, with whom a bank account is started to his credit. This is the most pleasant feature of the affair for the baby, as the razor always pulls and he cannot take part in the feast.

A New Orleans letter says: "The Book-blacks' Union was organized several months ago for the purpose of offering opposition to a bookblack company which had been organized in the North with a view to monopolize the business here. The company came supplied with fine large chairs, and hired boys who received fifty per cent. of their receipts as compensation. They had about thirty five chairs out, which were collected every night from the boys and loaded in a wagon. The members of the Bookblacks' Union had secured the most desirable places in the principal streets, and were not disposed to relinquish their advantage although tempting offers of elegant arm-chairs, half the receipts and other inducements were held out to them. The result was that the new company succumbed, and the elegant chairs, it is said, are now for sale."

There is downright mutiny in the ranks of the Salvation Army in this country. The trouble originally grew out of the management of the finances. Gen. Booth appointed Major Thomas E. Moore to command the American forces and he is said to have deposited all the funds in his own name, taken deeds for the property of the army and refused or failed to make regular public statements of how the money is spent. An investigation was had and Major Moore was dismissed from the service, but he refused to go. He made haste meantime to incorporate the army under the laws of the State of New York and to set himself up in the salvation business independent of the English authorities. He owns the "War Cry," the last issue of which contains a hymn to the Saviour to the tune of "After the Opera is Over." Gen. Booth has sent over an officer to supersede Moore, and the soldiers will take sides according to their sympathies. There is an excuse for this movement in England, but here the thing is unutterably vulgar.

Some people are of the opinion that if the vote of New York could be thrown out the election would go to the House of Representatives. This is an error as is clearly set forth in the following which we clip from yesterday's Herald:

If by any proceeding or method, not now apparent or conceivable, the vote of this State were thrown out in counting the electoral vote, the election would not then go to the House because Cleveland would still have a majority of the electors. With this State he has a majority of 37; and as this State has 36 votes he would have without it a majority of 1. It is not necessary that the election of a President be by a majority of the whole 401. He must have a majority of the number appointed. The language of the constitution is "The person having the greatest number of votes for President shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed." Now, the only ground upon which the vote of New York could be thrown out would be that our election had failed and the people had not appointed their representatives in the electoral college. Then the whole number necessary to elect would be 183. Cleveland has that number without the State of New York. Therefore the Blaine men will be shy of any attempt to exclude the vote of this State, or if they commit themselves to such an attempt it will be a sign that they have organized against the vote of some other State a conspiracy upon which they believe they can depend. What they want and what they will try to secure is the rejection by the canvassers of enough districts to change the result in this State. If they can throw out fifteen or twenty districts giving each a majority of nearly one hundred for Cleveland, that would change the result one way. But the districts will only be thrown out for fraud, and fraud will balance itself. Indeed, the burden of fraud is certainly the other way. If the correction of fraud is to make a change it will reduce Blaine's vote 20,000 at least.

Your Golden Wedding.

This is the fiftieth anniversary of marriage. Most folks who celebrated it have reached a good old age. Well-preserved people have a right to enjoy a hearty old age. It is sad to see old people the victims of debility and impoverished blood. People who are not too far gone can enrich their blood, conquer debility and enjoy vigorous health by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters. Dr. Myers, of Fairfield, Ia., says, "Brown's Iron Bitters is the best iron preparation I have ever known in my thirty years of practice."

NOVEMBER NONSENSE.

Orange peel is now said to be collected, dried in ovens and sold for kindling fires. It burns readily and with great fierceness and is safer than kerosene. Now cannot some useful avocation be found for the treacherous banana peel? - Phila. Call.

"So you have finally made up your mind you won't have me?" he asked. "Yes; firmly," she replied. "I suppose you take me for a fool for proposing to you so often." "No, sir; I don't take you for a fool. I wouldn't have you for a girl." - Detroit Free Press.

"I hear that your wife creates quite a sensation," said one Burlington man to another who had recently been married. "Well, I guess she does," replied the other dubiously, feeling of the bumps on his head. "But the sensations are not altogether so pleasant as might be wished." - Burlington Free Press.

"You must be sick to hire a horse in the daytime," said an impecunious young man to a companion. "Why so?" was the inquiry. "Are they any cheaper at night?" "Guess they are! All you've got to do is to eat a five-cent slice of mince pie and you can have a mare all night that would beat Maud S to finders." - Burlington Free Press.

"Oh, youth, with smooth, sand-papered pate. The night is dark, the hour is late. Why do you linger on my gate?" "I stay to help your daughter hold This gate upon its hinges old; Go in, old man, you're catching cold!"

The old man sought his little bed, And pilloved there his tranquil head; "I guess the gate is safe," he said. - Luther G. Briggs.

If your hair is gradually thinning and fading, use Ayer's Hair Vigor. It restores color and vitality.
