MAYTIME IN MIDWINTER.

The world, what is it to you, dear,
And me, if its face be gray,
And the new-born year be a shrewd
year
For flowers that the fierce winds fray?
You smile, and the sky seems blue,
dear;
You laugh and the month turns May.
Your hands through the bookshelves
flutter;
Scott, Shakespeare, Dickens, are caught;
Blake's visions, that lighten and miter;
Moliere—and his smile has nought
Left on it of sorrow, to utter
The secret things of his thought.
No grim thing written or graven,
But grows, if you gaze on it, bright;
A lark's note rings from the raven,
And traze's robe turns white;
And ship-wrecks drift into bay;
And darkness laughs and is light.

Grief seems but a vision of madness;
Life's key-note peals from above
With nought in it more of sadness
Than broods on the heart of a dove.
At sight of you, thought grows gladness,
And life, through love of you, love.

—Swinburne.

The Good Old Times.

The Rev. Dr. Talmage lectured last evening in the Thirtieth Street Baptist Church on the subject "Is the World Better or Worse?" In the course of his remarks he said: "I once asked my father, 'Is the world very much worse now than it used to be?' 'Well,' said he, 'with a twinkle in his eye, 'the fact is that the world was never any better than it ought to be.' [Laughter.] 'People say, 'Look at the Church to-day! Why right opposite the church in Somerville, N. J., there is a hotel, and here in former times, I was told, that the pastor and officers of the church would go in and refresh themselves before attending service.' [Laughter.] The gayeties and corruptions of to-day are nothing to what they were fifty years ago. It is said there is no royal road to learning. That was true, but it is not now. Astronomy is now as practical as agriculture. 'Think,' says Washington Irving, 'of the ministry having such men as Dean Swift and Sterne! The world was much worse then than now. I don't see how our fathers and mothers could stand it; although, on our own account, I'm glad they consented to do so.' [Laughter.] — N. Y. Tribune.

The idea was brought out by a very wealthy widow, one of our customers, who does upon her Italian bond. She has had about a dozen combination collar-bracelets made, both in gold and silver. The diamonds in one of them are valued at $500. When she is preparing to go out with the dog she generally lays the collar-bracelets in a row before the animal and he selects the one he is to wear. He is a very intelligent hound. Dog jewelry is becoming more elaborate and costly than ever, with gold-plated leading chains, solid gold anklets, and blanket monograms. — Philadelphia Times.

Loss and Gain.

"I was taken sick a year ago with bilious fever." "My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I could not move! I shrunk! From 228 lbs. to 120! I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles, I am not only as sound as a sovereign, but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life."

R. FITZPATRICK.
Dublin, June 6, '81.

Does a Man Have Rights?

In an opinion just published the General term of the Supreme Court in this city affirms the following principles touching the rights and liabilities of married women in this State:

First—A married woman doing business on her own account may employ her husband at a stated salary.

Second—The husband cannot enforce the payment of his salary by an action against his wife.

Third—The husband may assign his claim, and the assignee may sue the wife.

Fourth—A creditor of the husband may maintain legal proceedings against the wife to get possession of any unpaid salary due him. — N. Y. Herald.

Frozen Kindness.

The world is full of kindness that never was spoken, and that is not much better than no kindness at all. The fuel in the stove makes the room warm, but there are great piles of fallen trees lying on rocks and on tops of hills where nobody can get them; these do not make anybody warm. You might freeze to death for want of wood in plain sight of these fallen trees if you had no means of getting the wood home and making a fire of it. Just so in a family; love is what makes the parents and children, brothers and sisters happy. But if they take care care never to say a word about it, if they keep it a profound secret as if it were a crime, they will not be much happier than if there was not any love among them; the house will seem cool even in summer, and if you live there you will envy the dog when any one calls him poor fellow.

Bill of Lading Agreements.

The opinion rendered by the United States Supreme Court last week in the case of Hart against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company settles a point of much practical interest to shippers. Hart had shipped five horses under a bill of lading which limited the liability of the company to two hundred dollars for each horse lost or injured through the company's negligence. In a suit to recover for the loss of the animals Hart alleged they were race horses, whose actual value was far beyond the valuation stated in the bill of lading, and he claimed that the company was liable for the full value. The Supreme Court decides otherwise. It holds that where the conditions of the bill of lading are knowingly and willingly accepted by the shipper the company is not liable beyond the valuation agreed upon. The question is not what the value of the lost property may be, but what valuation has been mutually fixed in the bill of lading. — N. Y. Herald.

Elaborate Dog Jewelry.

"What pretty silver bracelets," chattered one of three young ladies looking into the show window of a Chestnut street store on Saturday afternoon; "but they are so large." "Gracious me! they are dog-collars, Sue!" "So—they are!" exclaimed Sue, in astonishment. "Let's go inside and look at them." "There has been a new departure in dog-collars," said the clerk, after the young ladies had satisfied their curiosity and gone out. "A fashionable lady can also use her dog's collar as a bracelet, as the new collar has a sliding arrangement that allows of its being made small enough to fit the wrist—"

Harper's Young People.

AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY.

The serial and short stories in Harper's Young People have all the dramatic interest that juvenile fiction can possess, while they are wholly free from what is pernicious or vulgarly sensational. The humorous stories and pictures are full of innocent fun, and the papers on natural history and science, travel, and the facts of life, are by writers whose names are the best assurance of accuracy and value. Illustrated papers on athletic sports, games, and pastimes give full information on these subjects. There is nothing cheap about it but its price.
