

The Daily Review.

JOSH. T. JAMES, Editor & Prop. WILMINGTON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1884.

Entered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N. C., as second-class matter.

Mr. Ruskin has, indeed, a novel cause of complaint as a lecturer. He declares that so oppressive is the popularity of his lectures, and so mob-like is the determination of the multitudes who cannot get into his lecture-room to hear him, that he is forced to forego his public appearance altogether, and confine himself to his classes and inner circle of disciples. It would seem to be the unique instance, in the history of the platform, of a lecturer retiring before a too overwhelming eagerness to listen to his eloquence.

Two specimens of a class of clergymen who are passing off the stage in England, lately died at the age, respectively of eighty-one and ninety-two. They were "hunting parsons" of the true Yorkshire breed. The elder, the Rev. Richard Anderson, was famed as a hard rider, who hunted with Lord Darlington. The Rev. Edward Truman, the younger, was a famous story teller, and his tales were highly appreciated by the late Lord Derby, who used to repeat them at dinner tables, and even in Parliament. The ecstecianarian clergyman kept up his favorite sport to the last.

A new refinement in vegetarianism has been devised. At a recent vegetarian banquet in England, after the usual amount of distensive food had been consumed, a malcontent had the courage to observe that if we left off rearing animals for food it would interfere with clothes. He was, however, instantly confuted, in the most practical manner, by a true vegetarian, who arose and asserted that he was completely dressed in material which had involved no blood guiltiness whatever. A cotton-velvet vest, a dark linen drill waistcoat, corduroy trousers and lawn-tennis shoes constituted the array of this animal's friend. He also committed himself to the statement that he had never tasted animal food in his life.

A telegram of Friday from Great Barrington, Mass., says: "The Estelle Newman mystery is ended, and the sensational stories of the disinterment of her body, its resuscitation in a dissecting room of the Albany Medical College, and her subsequent marriage to a young man in Schoharie County were proved to be fallacies. To-day Miss Newman's relatives, in the presence of a party of about thirty men, opened the grave. The coffin was found intact, and when opened Miss Newman's body was found laid out as it was at the time of the burial. All the reports of this curious sensation have placed the burial of Miss Newman in the little North Egremont Cemetery in December, 1878. No girl died at Egremont during the last four months of that year, nor was one buried in the town in that year. Miss Newman died and was buried in December, 1879. The facts prove that no body was taken from a grave in the town at the time stated."

A Washington letter says: "The refusal of Gen. Grant to accept a pension is of course understood to be due to his conviction that he should be placed on the retired list of the army. The veto by President Arthur of the bill to place Fitz-John Porter on the retired list would estop him from approving a bill for Gen. Grant, as the principle involved in the President's objection to the Fitz-John Porter bill would apply equally to the case of Gen. Grant. The President held that Congress invaded the constitutional prerogative of the Executive in undertaking to name a particular person for a particular office. He therefore could not be guilty of the inconsistency of approving the bill for the benefit of one person while vetoing a similar bill for another. This was the reason why he recommended a pension for Gen. Grant. It has been suggested that Congress could pass a bill providing for the appointment of a general on the retired list of the army without specifying any name for the position, and the President could then exercise his constitutional right and name Grant. There are, perhaps, twenty officers on the retired list now who were placed there by specific acts of Congress in their favor—acts which were approved by President Grant and President Hayes without question—and it is not likely that the technical objection of President Arthur would have been raised had the person to be benefited been other than Fitz-John Porter. There is undoubtedly a more friendly feeling for the project of putting Gen. Grant on the retired list, if it can be accomplished, among Democratic Senators than among the Republicans. Bills in his favor have been twice defeated through the opposition of Republican members of the military pressed themselves in favor of such a measure. An intimate friend of Gen. Grant says that he is indeed a changed man since the failure of the firm of Grant & Ward; that the shock was a blow from which even his iron frame and resolute will could not recover. He said that only a few days before the failure, so unconscious was Grant of the impending disaster, that he spoke in the most enthusiastic terms of his financial standing, estimating his own wealth and that of that of each of his sons at a million or two, and also remarking that he had gone into business with the main idea of advancing the interests of his boys. Now he seems to shun company and to prefer being alone, and some of those who have suddenly come upon him have been pained and startled to see evidences of tears tricking down that impassive face."

G. W. Cruikshank has brought the Baltimore Day to light again, after a brief night of suspension.

After removing the disabilities of that arch-traitor, W. W. Holden, it would be in order to canonize Ben Butler.

The deaths in the City of Mexico far outnumber the births, and the population is only kept up by immigration.

Robert T. Lincoln is the choice of the Republicans of Chicago for Mayor at the expiration of Carter Harrison's term.

Sir Henry Bessemer now holds 114 patents on his many inventions. It is said that his steel-process patents brought him $600,000 a year for twenty-one years.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, who has been ill for several months in Boston, is now rapidly recovering, and returns soon to her home and her literary labors in Washington.

John R. McLean sent the night messenger boys of Cincinnati a present of $1,000 in response to a visit of congratulation made by the little fellows just after his marriage.

There seems to be no probability that Congress will pass the bill granting the "trail" for the national cattle drive from Texas Northward, as it would withdraw nearly 2,000,000 acres of land from settlement.

The aggregate annual imports of Cuba and Porto Rico are about $60,000,000. Of this amount Spain has about $20,600,000, Great Britain $16,200,000, the United States $15,000,000, and all other countries about $7,800,000.

General James S. Robinson, Secretary of State-elect of Ohio, says he will not resign his seat in Congress until the day he takes the oath of office as Secretary of State. You can trust an Ohio man to stay in office 365 days in a year when he has his way about it.

A celebrated Parisian dentist is quoted as saying that children whose education is forced lose their teeth early in life, and cites numerous instances in proof of his assertion. He says the phosphorus and lime needed by the teeth is used up by learning the sciences of professors.

At Cardiff, in Wales, has been manufactured a wire rope of 2,300 fathoms, or two miles and 108 yards long. The weight is 2 1/2 tons. Nearly 100,000 fathoms of wire were consumed in its production. The rope is to be used in working trains in a terminal at Glasgow.

Professor Milne, of Tokio University, is about to establish a subterranean observatory at Takashima, in a very deep coal mine not far from Nagasaki. The object is to determine the connection between earthquake phenomena and meteorological phenomena, such as storms, barometrical pressure, tides, tidal waves, &c.

The Conference of State boards of health, now in Conference in Washington, has recommended to Congress a bill to establish a National Board of Health, to consist of one member from each board, to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The bill contemplates an appropriation of $500,000.

A Washington letter says: Gen. Hampton favors bringing on here a company of South Carolina colored infantry to march in the inaugural procession. He thinks such a display would be a comforting one for Washington negro politicians and Northern white men, who look at the South through Mr. Hoar's spectacles "as through a glass, darkly."

George Parsons Lathrop's novel of North Carolina life is based on the separation of two English lovers in the early days of American colonization, the girl coming with her father to the New World—and the chance meeting, after two hundred years, of a descendant of the young stay-at-home Englishman with representatives of his

No other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the best combination of vegetable blood purifiers, with the Iodide of Potassium and Iron, ever offered to the public.
