Mr. Bessemer's steel process patents have yielded him $600,000 a year for twenty-one years.

Richard A. Proctor, the noted lecturer on the science of the stars, thus puts a flea in the world's ear: "The tears expressed by some astronomers that our earth will be damaged by comets are not altogeather groundless. It is possible that a comet may whisk its tail ing. over this world and brush us off into space."

Judge King, of Buffalo, N. Y., has in his possession a letter written by George Washington to James Monroe, in 1796. The present interest of the letter, hitherto unpublished, lies in Washington's emphatic declaration that each continent ought to mind its own business. In other words, the seed of the Monroe doctrine were thereia sowa.

The substitution of glass flooring for boards continues to increase in Paris, this being especially the case in those There will be a skating carnival en business strucktures in which the cellars are used as offices. At the headquarters of the Credit Lyonnais, on the Boulevard des Italiens, the whole of the ground floor is payed with large squares of roughened glass embedded in a strong iron frame, and in the cellars beneath there is thus sufficient light, even on dull days, to enable the clerks to work without gas.

Strange to say, China, that nation which of all others, holds literature Sheriff Manning for a nice piece of (that is to say, its own dry-as-dust classics concerning a remote past) is highest honor, has so small a thirst for news of the present day that it pro duces fewer papers than any other nation with the smallest claim to civiliza tion. The proportion of newspapers to the population is in the ratio of about one publication to 2,000,000 inhabitants, The Chinese empire produces only twenty-two periodicals, of which twelve are in Chinese, nine in English and one in French.

The greatest fire that ever visited New York began late on the night of December 16, 1835, and raged with uncomtrollable fury through the greater part of the next day. Nearly the entire dry goods district of that period was laid waste and several historic landmarks were obliterated. This great fire destroyed 648 buildings and caused a loss of between $20,000,000 and $25.-000,000, bankrupting nearly every fire insurance company in the United States. The boundaries of the burned of arrangements, who fully understand district were Wall street on the north, Coenties alley on the south, Broad street on the West and Front street on making every endeavor to have the

A remarkable case of conscience has just been brought to light in the Brooklyn tax office. A few days ago an elderly gentleman called upon Collector Tanner and asked if there was such thing as a conscience fund. He was told that there was, and, when questioned, said that he represented a citizen who had not paid personal taxes, due from him, for a number of years, and that he now desired to pay up. He did not, however, reveal his identity, and departed with the remark that he would return in a few days. Just before noon Tuesday he reappeared, said that he had secured the money that was due the city, and handed the collector $230. He received a receipt for his money and left without giving his name.

The feremest purpose of ERADSTREET is to be of practical service to business men. Its special trade and industrial reports; its weeky epitome of bankruptcies throughout the United States and Canada, and the summaries of assets and liabilities, are alone worth the subscription price; its synopses of recent legal decisions are exceedingly valuable. As commercial transactions, in the wider sense, are coming to be more and more conducted on a statistical basis, the information contained in BRADSTREET'S is of the first importance both to producers and middlemen.
