THE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

Monday morning, Jan. 12, 1885. The following bills and resolutions were introduced, referred to appropriate committees or disposed of as follows: Mr. Bower, resolution asking information of the Superior Court Judges in relation to the present judicial system of the State. Subsequently on his motion was taken up under suspension of the rules and adopted.

IN CONGRESS YESTERDAY.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, January 12.—Mr. Van Wyck, from the committee on Public Lands, reported favorably with amendments. House bill to prevent the unlawful occupancy of public lands.

The chair laid before the Senate a resolution heretofore offered by Mr. Hawley calling on the President, if not incompatible with public interests, for a copy of historical statements concerning the public policy of the Executive Department of the Confederate States, filed at the War Department by Gen. Sherman.

Mr. Harris said that if Mr. Hawley thought any action of the Senate was proposed with regard to the paper or papers referred to, he would not object to the call; but, if no such action was to be taken, Mr. Harris could see no object in the call for the papers.

Mr. Harris doubted the propriety of calling for the papers. Mr. Vest regretted the introduction of the resolution. Not that he would oppose the largest publication of the history of the Confederate States, but because the Senate would be making itself, indirectly at least, a party to a controversy that has been going on in the public press.

The debate on Mr. Hawley's resolution continued at some length and became pretty warm before it closed. The participants in addition to Senators Hawley, Harris, Conger and Vest, were Senators Sherman, Ingalls, Morgan, Conger and Lamar.

Mr. Vest inquired whether it was mainly to commit the Senate to any side of a personal controversy, when Mr. Davis was to-day an old man, broken in fortune and health, living among people who honored him.

Mr. George said the controversy was a personal one between two private citizens of the United States.

Mr. Morgan said that it was true Jefferson Davis' political disabilities had not been removed, but he was less a man because of that.

Mr. Sherman, after reciting the circumstances of the controversy, said he did not desire to wound the feelings of an old man, "but, great God," said he, "will it ever be disputed in this country of ours at any time within a thousand years that in the war Jefferson Davis was a conspirator and a traitor to his country? Never, I trust."

Mr. Sherman felt compelled to enter his most solemn protest against Mr. Davis being treated as a patriot.

Mr. Lamar characterized Mr. Sherman's statement of the controversy as marked by flagrant inaccuracies to the issue between Jefferson Davis and Gen. Sherman.

Mr. Vest said the Senator from Kansas, (Ingalls), could not speak in the Senate without becoming personal.

There was under the old common law an offence known as being a common scold, the punishment for which was ducking.

Mr. Vest replied to the assertion that he had never been accredited to the Confederate Senate.

The hour of two o'clock arriving, the matter went over till to-morrow, and the chair laid formally before the Senate unfinished legislative business, being the Inter-State Commerce bill;
