The Daily Review.

J. SH. T. JAMES, Editor & Prop. WILMINGTON, N. C. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1885.

Herman Strecker, a stone-cutter of Reading, Pa., has the largest collection of butterflies in the world. He engages in the scientific studies at night and on Sundays.

The rumor is generally believed that Mr. Parnell, Mr. Wm. O'Brien and Mr. Timothy Healey are about to start a daily paper in Dublin in conjunction with United Ireland.

The appointment of Prince Hassan as governor-general of Soudan is said to be very unpopular. He is hated by the Soudanese because he is a member of the present Khedive's family.

Mr. Henry M. Stanley is arranging for the publication of a book on the Congo. The work will have the official sanction of the King of the Belgians and of the International African Association.

The most terrible example of a stepmother's cruelty ever known occurred in New York on Sunday evening. Rosa Dreyer, after severely beating her step-daughter of four years of age, in a violent fit of temper placed the child on a hot stove.

The following dispatch from Athens, Ga., to the Philadelphia Press, dated February 22, explains itself: 'This city has been thrown into a state of consternation by a threat that dynamite will be used in case the Prohibitionists succeed in voting liquor out of the city at the coming election.'

It is now looked upon as absolutely certain that Mr. Manning will be the next secretary of the treasury. It is further given out on excellent authority that the gentleman will take his departure for Washington on Thursday next.

Debbah, or Dabba, the town around which it is proposed to concentrate the British forces in the Soudan during the approaching summer, stands upon the left bank of the Upper Nile.

Now is the time to give Smith's Worm Ointment. A leading London Physician writes: 'I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured.'
