Toree important changes in postal rates will go into effect on the first of July next. The postage on letters after that date will be two cents an onnce instead of two cents a half ounce as at present. The postage on newspapers sent to regular subscribers and on sample copies sent out by publishers will be reduced one-half. All cities having more than 4,000 inhabitants will be authorized to establish a special ten cent stamp delivery service by which letters can be hastened to their destination. All these changes were recommended in the last annual report of the Postmaster-General. About the wisdom of the first two there is very little doubt. Then the ten cont stamp project is an experiment, service on a separate basis from the regular delivery and specification is made that it shall not be permitted to interfere in any way with the latter. There is no apparent reason why it should interfere. The argument that if more prompt delivery can be secured for ten cents than for two, it follows that the present system is very defective. does not bear examination. A special messenger with ten or a dozen letters can, of course, make better time than a regular delivery agent with a bagful of letters and papers.
