> The majority of the women in Government employ are very quiet and matter of fact, and are thorough experts in the lines of business where they are employed. They make good type writers, short hand writers and copyists. The most expert counters of money in the treasury are women. As detectors of counterleit money some of the ladies in the national redemption division of the treasury have no equals. The presence of fifteen or twenty hystericky women in the department is enough to give the chiefs a prejudice against women clerks as a class. There is no doubt that the present commission investigating the de partment is of the opinion that a greater proportion of women is employed than should be.

The cause of popular education is making steady advances in Great Britain. Compulsory attendance has increased the number of scholars; there is a keener competition and a better standard of instruction, while there is a continuous growth of local taxation and larger resort to the consolidated fund for the support and improve ment of the means of education. The outlay from State grants for 1884 was £3,110,912, an advance upon that of 1883 amounting to $264 885 This sum was distributed as follows: Church of England schools, £1,420,000; school are good to put on strawberries?" boards, £976,000; other schools, £510,- Agricultural Editor (in the next issue 000.
