TheDaily Review. MEMORY'S PICTURES.

Among the beautiful pictures. That hang on memory's hall. Is one of a grim old forest, That seemeth the best for all.

Not for its gnarled oaks olden, Dark with the misletoe: Not for the violets golden That sprinkle the vale below : Not for the milk-white lillies That lean from the fragrant hedge.

Coqueting all day with the sonbeams, And stealing their golden edge;

Not for the vines on the upland Where the bright red berries rest. slips,

It seemed to me the best.

I once had a little brother, With eyes that were dark and deep-In the lap of that olden forest, He lieth in peace, asleep; Light as the down of the thistle, Free as the winds that blow. We roved there the beautiful summer, The summers of long ago; But his feet on the hills grew weary, And one of the autumn eves, I made for my little brother, A bed of the yellow leaves.

Sweet his pale arms folded, My neck in a meek embrace, As the light of immortal beauty Silently covered his face; And when the arrows of sunset. Lodged in the tree top bright, He fell in his saint-like beauty, Asleep by the gates of light. Therefore, of all the pictures That hang on memory's wall, The one of the dim old forest Seemeth the best of all.

Fwo Very Ugly Twins.

They go hand in hand, and lead their victim a terrible trot down into the valley of the shadow of death. One is neuarlgia, the other rheumatism. These generally proceed from disordered blood. Brown's Iron Bitters knocks out these ugly twins by setting the blood aright and invigorating the sys tem. Mr. W. T. Osborne, of Coxville, Ala., used Brown's Iron Bitters for rheumatism and neuralgia with most happy effect. It also cures dyspepsia.

attempted to realize how boys ought to live and what they ought to be allowed to do. It is said that the dime novel boy usually reads the scrap-book, which is rapidly increasing in size as the fresh exploits of the dime novel adventurers are added to it, about two hours. He then lays it down in disgust, and nothing can induce him to return to those stories again. He asks the person in charge of the reading room for a better class of books. This cure of a disease with its own poison has been so effective in Providence that the trustee in question is thinking of taking out a patent for the process, lest other libraries and the heads of fami-Nor the pinks, nor the pale, sweet cow- lies and the guardians of the small boy generally may appropriate his invention without due credit. This gentleman is the first among moderns to give point to the old saying, "Look on this picture and then on that," and it is the other picture that is powerful enough to wind up the dime novel business. These are the realism in literature, and this man, going further than Mr. Howells or Mr. James, or even M. Zola, has substituted the pastepot and scissors for the imagination, gathering his horrors and tragedies from actual life, in the firm belief that if truth is not stronger than fiction, it has a wonderful power at the right moment over an awakened mind.-Boston Herald.
