SPRING FEVER

At this season nearly every one needs to use some sort of tonic. IRON enters into almost every physician's prescription for those who need building up.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

THE BEST TONIC.

For Weakness, Lassitude, Lack of Energy, &c., it has no equal. It is the only iron medicine that is palatable. It enriches the blood, invigorates the system, restores appetite, cures indigestion. It does not blacken or injure the teeth, cause headache or produce constipation—other iron medicines do.

Dr. G. H. BINKLEY, a leading physician of Springfield, O., says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters is a thoroughly good medicine. I use it in my practice, and find its action exceed all other forms of iron. In weakness of the condition of the system, Brown's Iron Bitters is usually a positive necessity. It is all that is claimed for it."

Genuine has trade mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. Take no other. Made only by BROWN CHEMICAL CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26, 1885

Entered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N. C., as second-class matter.

THIS PAPER MAY BE FOUND ON FILE AT GEO. F. ROWELL & CO'S

Newspaper Advertising Bureau (70 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

Lawn tennis was being played on the Long Branch grounds of a wealthy family, and the game struck a spectator as being inordinately elaborate in its movements. Every pose and stir was laboriously careful in its grace, and at the same time there was a strange disregard of the real progress of the game. A glance at the veranda revealed an amateur photographer making a series of instantaneous views in which the players would be shown in a succession of attitudes. A hundred prepared plates were in the holders, ready to be exposed one after another, and the scheme contemplated the printing of copies from these numerous negatives so that every person portrayed could have a bound volume of the pictures.

An old theatrical manager says that the memory is taxed more by a pantomimic role than by an oral one, and he instances Marie Zoe, who for years was the leading French Spy of the American stage. The performance as the duub girl was always a hard strain on her. The pantomime, with its requisite nicety of movement and expression, was more exhaustive to her brain than the heroines of Shakespeare to a tragedienne. She was compelled a few years ago to retire because her mind was affected, and now she has been taken to an insane asylum. Her shattered intellect knows nothing but the French Spy, and she is almost constantly going through with its scenes. The combat with the Arab is fought over and over, without weapon or antagonist, but with a zest and vim of pantomime that startles her attendants.

A smart thief has just been convicted in the Rhone Assize Court. His real name is Gresillon, but he traveled under the name of Walton, and pretended to be a rich Englishman. He affected the accent and manners of the Britisher, played high, and lived in the fastest style. In reality he was a convict who had several times been arrested for theft and robbery. One of his recent exploits was to rob the safe of the prison, on Chiavari, in Corsica, where he was a prisoner, and from which he escaped with the funds. He was arrested on a charge of robbing several churches in the Department of the Rhone, and was tried upon one of these charges. His manner in court was cool and impudent. He was arrested at the Cafe Morel, one of the most fashionable cafes in Lyons, and when the Court sentenced him to twenty years' penal servitude he smiled contemptuously upon the judges, and turning to his lawyer, said, while he shook hands with him, in quite a patronizing manner: "I will see you next year at the same time at the Cafe Morel. Au revoir!"

Now that the stormy season in the tropic ocean is about due, navigators on the point of going to sea, says the New York Herald, should take special pains to have their barometers set in order and compared with a standard instrument. It is quite true that the barometer generally warns the mariner of a storm's approach not so much by the actual lowness of its reading as by the rapidity with which it falls and the eccentric behavior of the mercurial column, especially when the ship is in tropical waters. Contrary to much meteorological teaching, the actual air pressure at a given geographical point when compared with the normal pressure (as shown on the isobaric charts) is, after all, if rightly interpreted, the safest and surest indication of coming cyclonic weather. In the Antarctic seas, said Ross, "the barometer at twenty-nine inches we learned to consider to indicate fine weather," although in our hemisphere it would ordinarily mean a tempest. But it is peculiarly true in the case of the tropical hurricanes of the approaching season that the absolute reading of the glass foretells the distance and intensity of the cyclone. Thus while the great hurricane of 1882 was passing from Jamaica south of Cuba, from September 7 to 9, hourly observations at Belen College, Havana, gave only a barometric range of .31 of an inch (the mercury oscillating between 29.94 and 29.63 inches only) in forty-five hours and a half. In this tropical instance, obviously, had a seaman at Havana prognosed the disturbance by the rapidity with which the glass fell, or by its relative readings from hour to hour, he would certainly have concluded that no serious storm existed and might have gone to sea in its front. But the actual readings (persistently below the normal) conveyed a very different lesson, unerringly indicating that a powerful hurricane was raging not far to the southward.

Many like instances could be cited, but this will suffice to admonish every competent seaman likely to encounter this season's cyclones to keep his barometer corrected by a standard instrument and to see on the one hand that it is not liable to "pumping" from the ship's motion, and on the other hand that it is not unduly sluggish. By attention to this suggestion many disasters may be avoided at sea in the August and autumnal storms.

The Nuisances and the Remedy

Foul water, filthy streets, bad sewerage and unpleasant milk, when all crowded together into one city, make as malodorous and unwholesome a state of affairs as citizens can stand. But the disgusted citizens need not think themselves all bound for the cemetery on this account. Malaria and every other unclean influence can be fought off with Brown's Iron Bitters. Mr. F. Patterson, Marshalltown, Iowa, writes: "Brown's Iron Bitters has completely cured me of malaria."

AUGUST ANTICS.

Slippers are now manufactured entirely of paper, but the small boy must not prematurely rejoice thereat. It is said that much suffering is caused an animal by defective shoeing. The same is true of defective booting. "No, sir," he said to the captain, "I'm not seasick, but I am decidedly disgusted with the motion of the vessel."

That ladies easily learn to play the violin is not surprising when their experience in handling beaux is taken into consideration. It is said that Jean Ingelow never gets tired of writing poetry. No, of course not. That's way poets have. It's the ones who read the poems who get tired.

A distinguished physician says piano playing will quiet a raving maniac. We may remark that the same is true of hitting a maniac over the head with a base-ball bat.

"Johnny, what were you saying to that dog?" asked a mother of her little son. "I was just talking to him. I told him, 'You have a good time of it. You don't have to wash your face or comb your hair, and you don't even have to go to school.'"

"Pray tell me the difference, dear," said Edward to his lass. "There is between a store-cashier and the teacher of a class?"

The dame, smiling, said I will; This difference you will find: The store-cashier, he minds the till; The teacher tills the mind."

What Would the World Do without woman?

asks the essayist who starts out to say something new on this oft-treated subject. Of course, the human element of the world would not exist without woman, so the question is gratuitous. It would have been far more sensible to ask: What would the world do without the salvation of woman, without a panacea for her physical ills and a cure for her peculiar diseases. In a word, what would the world do without Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," the great remedy for female weaknesses? It is indispensable for the ills of woman-kind.

Prince Frederick Charles was one of the richest men in Germany. The Connaughts will under his will get about $2,500,000.

ALTHOUGH OPPOSED TO PATENT MEDICINES, says Mr. A. J. Gifford, Master Mechanic of the Lowell division of the Boston & Lowell Railroad, "I was induced by a friend to try Dr. David Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy.' My complaint was Paralysis of the Bowels; the Stomach and other organs seemed to sympathize with it, and had lost all action. At this stage I used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and in a short time, in my opinion, 'Favorite Remedy' saved my life."

KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY CURES A TERRIBLE CASE OF GRAVEL—WHEN OTHER HELP FAILED.

What is Gravel? What causes it, and who are most liable to it? There is no one-mo-menter how much freed from this appalling and painful disease now—but is interested in the answer to these questions. Gravel is a general name for all the diseases which include the formation of a sandy substance—and usually larger and more solid stones called calculi in the Kidneys and Bladder. It is frequently attended with acute pain, and unless relief can be found, produces inflammation and death. But sex and all ages are liable to it, although men who have chred or passed middle age are its most common victims. Nothing is more urgently needed than a reliable medicine for Gravel, as the disease seems to increase, and we are glad to say that such a specific is now before the public in the form of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of 100ndout, N. Y. We put in evidence the following letter, selected from many similar communications:

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Mar. 1, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy,

DEAR SIR:—You have a right to know, and I desire the public to know my experience with Gravel and my remarkable recovery through the use of your "FAVORITE REMEDY." I am a carpenter living in this place, and there are plenty of witnesses to the truth of what I say. My first comparatively slight attack of Gravel was in the year 1878. It passed away again. I had little more trouble until last July 1883. One day when at work in my shop I was suddenly seized with a keen and terrible pain in my left side. I consulted two physicians at once. One said: "I can do nothing for you. Your case is incurable!" I was frightened and went to the second who said little but gave me a prescription. It did no good.

Then began a series of experiences the agony and horror of which words cannot do justice. Think it was some times taken in the street and would fall, writhing with agony, upon the sidewalk. It was death in life. Thank Heaven, I then heard of "KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY" through Mr. P. P. Cooley. I had not used half a bottle when I perceived three stones in succession, one of which was nearly one-half an inch long. I persevered with medicine, the symptoms gradually abated, and I have no more trouble since. I am well, thanks to you and "FAVORITE REMEDY."

Yours most gratefully,

JAMES D. KENNEDY.

What "FAVORITE REMEDY" did in this case, it has done in many others. If you desire to do so Address—Dr. David Kennedy, 100ndout, N. Y.
