A member of the Council of the Gaelic Union abnounces that from the correspondence that society receives, it is evident the Irish language is advancing in the estimation of persons of education.

The cholera death rate in Spain has fallen from over 1,600 a day to something like 600. At Toulon the plague is over, and at Marseilles its proportions are no longer alarming. It is not dying out, however, but may devastate cities and towns for yet a long time.

The Anthropological Congress which is soon to be held at Rome will have a egrious feature in a collection of 700 skulls of criminals, numbered and classified. To these will be added the photographs of 3,000 and the brains of more than 150 convicts, thousands of autographs, poems, sketches and special instruments, the work of criminals

Washington's life that rumor says she will, the profits will far exceed those of her recent unusually successful literary venture. The stories as to the profits ofher book have been greatly exaggersted. She will realize $25,000 from it. It is said that she will begin her novel ssoon as she returns to the White House in October.

An unarrested burglar gives employment to innumerable telegraph clerks, police officers, railway officials and possibly also to surgeons, coroners, undertaker and monumental masons. As soon as he is in custody the services of a whole army of soldiers, barristers, judge, and petty jurymed. reporters, gover nors of jails and prison wardens are called into requsition. Really the burglar does more good than harm."

A writer in the Bridgeport Standard thinks that the coast at Stratford, Coan., is rising. He says: "That much of the land in that vicinity stands higher at the present day than it did even twenty years ago is evident .-When the Sandy Hollow schoolshouse was erected, some thirty-five or forty lears ago, the surrounding land, which is now a green sward, was a low sand leach, and the children used to dig down to water easily with clam shells for shovels. Slowly the tide limit has receded."

The cholera is dying out in Spain and is no longer dreaded in Troulon and Marseilles.
