The Daily Review. AUTUMN LEAVES. he eares to think of Autumn leaves in Spring? When the birds sing, And bads are new, and every tree is seen Veiled in a mist of tender gradual green : And every bole and bough Makes neady for the soft low brooding Of nested ones to settle there, and prove How sweet is love-Alas! who then will notice or avow Such bygone things? For hath not Spring the promise of the year? Is she not always dear To those who can look forward and forget? Her woods do nurse the violet; With cowslips fair her fragrant fields And freckled butterflies Gleam in her gleaming skies; And life looks larger, as each lengthen ing day Withdraws the shadow and drinks ap the tear. Touth shall be youth forever, and the gay. High-hearted Summer with her pomps is near. Yes; but the soul that meditates and spot. Wood placed his $33,000 on the grieves. And guards the precious past, And feels that neither joy nor loveliness ble. A Big Game of Faro. Speaking of high play, I may as well tell you a story, the truth of which is well known among sporting men, about a game between John Morrissey and Ben Wood, the famons gambler Fernando Wood's brother.

In 1867 I was running a game at No. 1 West Twenty-fourth street, New York city, where the Hoffman House now stands. I was going home about 4 o'close one morning, when, seeing a light in the window of Morrissey's gambling house at No. 5, I thought I would go up for a tew minutes and see what was going on. Il found only about half, a dozen men there, the rest looking on while Wood and Morrissey were playing faro. About the time I came in the game stopped and Wood was $62,000 winner. The company took a few drinks, and, alter some talk. Morrissey said to Wood :-You can double that $62,000 or lose

"All right," said Wood, 'Get behind the table and give me 62 chips representing $1,600 each, and I'll go yon." So Morrissey began to deal and Wood to play against the bank. At first Wood's lack seemed to have turned against him, for in ten minutes he lost 29 of his chips, so that he had only 33 chips left, representing $33,000. At this point he made up his mind to risk the whole of this sum upon a single turn. There were only three cards eight; it was the largest bet ever made in this country over a gambling ta-hall To the scared bird, whose wet and wesried wing Shot through it once, and came not back Wood $66,000. The luck changed from that point and Morrissey was soon Poor, shrunken soul! She knows her cleaned out. When the game was over he handed Wood a check for $80,000 and a note at thirty days for the re-That each most delicate toy her fancy mainder of the $124,000 he owed him as the result of that night's play. The And she herself, and what she prized sort of game I have just described is called a "snap" or "freeze-out." It is usually played by only two men, each of whom puts up an equal amount of money. When either is cleaned out the "snap" is "broken" and the game is at an end.

This land adjoins the "South-ern Pines", a recently established health re-sort (or sanitarium), and is specially adapted for Fruit Culture, as well as all the carcals. A number of New England people have bought lots in the town of "Southern Pines," and it is the desire of the owners of this land to in-duce small farmers, mechanics and others from the New England and Middle States, as well as elsewhere, to locate here. No State in the Union offers greater inducements to pet-tiers than North Carolina. Nowhere can a better farming country or as fine a climate be better farming country or as fine a climate be found. This is the opinion of Northern men who have settled in North Carolina. This is a bona fide offer, and is limited.
