The Daily Review. NECESSITY

Gaunt faced and hungry-eyed she waits, This sober warden of our fates, Forever sleepless, while we sleep,

Sometimes, beguiled by smiling skies And wooing winds, we shut our eyes, Forgetting for a little space That tireless, unforgotten lace.

And silent while we watch and weep.

Or, stirred as stirs the cap in spring By nature's force we laugh and sing Or run to pass that waiting shape With flying footsteps of escape.

But where we run she leads the way, She goes before us night and day, No flying footsteps can escape. By any path that somber shape.

The roads we follow wind and twist. Our eyes grow blind with blinding mist, Blown down to us as we ascend The upland heights that near the end.

And at the end-"Where is our foe? Where Lideth she?" we cry-and lo, Through breaking mist, an angel's tace make up the rest .- N. Y. Tribune. Looks out upon us from her place!

The Editor "Blue Pencils" It. The reporter who is very ignorant always begins his articles;"We are well informed."

When the reporter relies on a mere rumor be writes: "We learn from a perfectly reliable source." When he is certain he writes: "As is well known." If I had written all that can be written on a subject he adds: "We might continue this subject for columns.' It he does not hear anything at all he writes: "It comes to our ears." If he does not know how an affair started he writes: "As all our readers are well aware." If anybody has said a word to him on a subject he writes: We have just been assured."-Texas Siftings.

"Whom the gods love die young," says Byron; but why die when you can cure the cold or cough, which neglected means death? Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup mayn't be in favor with the gods, ant to taste. It soothes the child, softfor it keeps thousands from their grasp, ens the gums, allays all pain, relieves but mortals, who take it, praise it. ----

The following is an extract from a causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. letter of M. Louis Pasteur, the emi nent French scientist, to Professor Jules Marcou: "I take a great deal of pleasure in the thought that on my return to Paris I shall present to the Academy of Sciences an account of both to man and dogs. Do you not know some feature of this terrible disease which may be peculiar in America? Is it of frequent ocurrence there? Remember that I should have the cour age to apply my treatment even on persons who, after being bitten, had made the journey from America to Paris-although under these conditions at least two weeks must have elapsed since the accident-so great is my confidence in my method. However, I shall teel more sure of myself when I have made a large number of trials on man, which I shall do in 1885-6. I have as yet made but one trial-on an Alsatian boy, whose mother brought him to me. He had been bitten horribly, and death by hydrophobia seemed unavoidable. Up to the present time I have excellent news of his health, although it is sixtyfour days since the accident."
