Sick Headache and Dyspepsia Cure

The crystallized salts, as extracted from grapes and fruit, a most wonderful product from Nature's laboratory. Have it in your homes and travel with you for the fagged, weary or worn out. It cures sick headache, dyspepsia, stomach and bowel complaints; removes biliousness, stimulates the liver to a healthy action, counteracts the effects of impure water and the excessive use of alcoholic beverages and prevents the absorption of malaria; supplies the system the want of sound, ripe fruit. FOR JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT: EDWARD T. BOYKIN, OF SAMPSON.

FOR SOLICITOR: OLIVER H. ALLEN, OF DUPLIN.

In the contest over the will of the late millionaire Tracey of Buffalo, Dr. W. R. Gillette, of New York, who attended Mr. Tracey when he lived in that city in 1883, was on the stand. Tracey told the witness that he was in the habit of drinking twelve pints of champagne a day, and that when he went to bed he opened a bottle of brandy or a couple of bottles of claret and put them by his bed. In addition to this supply, he said, he opened six bottles of elysmic water and put in rubber corks, and had a dozen lemons squeezed into a pitcher and placed within his reach. He also kept three or four bottles of elysmic water outside his window. The witness said he regarded Tracey as a monomaniac on the subject of drink.

Miss Maud Banks, daughter of Gen. N. P. Banks, who is spending the summer at York Beach, Me., and who recently signed a contract to go "starring" next season, has been studying for the stage for several years, and it is said, will enter upon a theatrical career much against her father's wishes. She was a pupil of the defunct Lyceum Theatre School of Acting in New York. She will make her debut at Music Hall in New York, on the 23rd of next month. It promises to be a great social event, as Gen. Banks and many prominent society people of Massachusetts and New York, and many of Miss Banks' young lady friends, with whom she is very popular, will be present. She will probably appear either in "Ingomar" or "The Lady of Lyons."

The situation among the Indians in the Northwest is alarming, and the threat of an uprising comes at a time when the military authorities are but poorly prepared to deal with it. The continuation of the Apache troubles in Arizona and New Mexico is giving active employment to the troops best qualified for Indian fighting, and an outbreak among the warlike tribes of the Northwest would endanger the lives and properties of settlers in a vast and isolated region. The spirit of restlessness extends among tribes who range from the Western border of Wyoming Territory along the northern boundary of Minnesota, and in the event of any concerted movement, it would require a larger and more energetic military expedition than we have seen in recent years to suppress it.

"Among other reforms which Gen. Boulanger desires to introduce into the French army," says the St. James Gazette, "is that of obligatory celibacy for subalterns; and as one means of effecting this he proposes to raise the regulation dowry. Now an officer can marry a lady who brings him a portion of 1,200 francs a year; but Gen. Boulanger, considering that the franc is not worth as much as it used to be, intends to change all this. It appears that there has been too much marrying and giving in marriage, since the establishment of permanent garrisons, to suit the war minister, who evidently thinks that wife detracts from the gallantry of an officer in the field. Those opposed to the theory of Gen. Boulanger might cite the example of Bonaparte, who got married the day before he set out to take the command of the army of Italy; in fact, that command was the dowry which Josephine brought him. We know that on one occasion, hearing that Josephine had wept over his dangers, he exclaimed, 'Wurmser shall pay dearly for those tears.'"

A cheerful kind of an organization, according to the Pall Mall Gazette, exists in Berlin. It is an association of theological students, bearing the name "Wingolites," which has for years observed the Wednesday before Ascension Day the curious custom of divining for the Emperor's destiny. The way of doing this is unique. The members of the association proceed from Berlin to the village of Pichelswerder, on the Havel, and here they celebrate the anniversary of the guild at the Wilhelms-hobe restaurant. They immediately climb up an oak tree in the centre of the garden and seat themselves upon the branches. Beer is handed up from the ground, and after the third glass has been drained the president delivers the anniversary speech, after which a cheer is given for the Emperor. Then at the word of command all glasses are hurled to the ground, and the notion is that the Emperor will live as many years as there are broken glasses. This year twelve glasses were broken, so that the Emperor should not be a centenarian.

JULY JESTS.

An old darkey was endeavoring to explain his unfortunate condition. "You see," remarked Sambo, "it was in this way, as far as I can remember: 'Fust my fader died, den my mudder married again; and den my mudder died, and my fadder married agin; and somehow I don't seem to hab no parents at all, nor no home, no hab no'."

The irrepressible Mission School boy is always ready with his old answer, sometimes showing himself, as in this instance, "a regular braggart." The question was, "Do bats ever fly in the day time?" "Yes, sir," said the lad. "Not so," said the teacher. "What kind of a bat did you ever see flying in the day time?" "Lots of 'em, sir; they was bricabrats."

"There is a fine specimen of a bulldog," remarked Smith to Jones at the dog show. "Yes, he is a beauty!" "You ought to have a dog like that, Jones. Living in the suburbs as you do, a watch dog is almost a necessity." "No, it isn't," replied Jones, wearily. "A man who has seven daughters, all over twenty-two and unmarried, standing in his own light if he keeps a dog!"

Merchant to his clerk: "Young man in love?" "John, are you crazy? I told you to write and ask for the best quality of paper to use in my business. This 'My little birdie—I have told your pa that I love you to distraction, that you are more to me than the sun, moon and stars, and sweeter than the honey that is sipped by the bees,' is a lot more nonsense. Now, sir, suppose I had hastily signed that letter and sent it!"

A gentleman at the theatre sits behind a lady who wears a very large hat. "Excuse me, madam, but unless you remove your hat I can see absolutely nothing," loudly ignores him. "Excuse me, madam, but unless you remove your hat something unpleasant will happen," loudly ignores him again. Gentleman puts on his own hat. Loud cries from the audience. "Take off that hat! take off that hat!" Lady thinks they mean her hat, and removes it. "Thank you, madam."

1886. Harper's Young People. AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY. The position of HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE as the leading weekly periodical for young readers is well established. The publishers spare no pains to provide the best and most attractive reading and illustration. The serial and short stories have always dramatic interest, while they are wholly free from what is pernicious or vulgarly sensational; the papers on natural history and science, travel, and the facts of life, are by writers whose names give the best assurance of accuracy and value. Illustrated papers on athletic sports, games, and pastimes give full information on these subjects. There is nothing cheap about it but its price.

1886. Harper's Weekly. ILLUSTRATED. HARPER'S WEEKLY has now, for more than twenty years, maintained its position as the leading illustrated weekly newspaper in America. With a constant increase of literary and artistic resources, it is able to offer for the reading year a succession of serials, by any previous volume, embracing two capital illustrated serial stories, by Mr. Thos. Hardy among the foremost of living writers of fiction, and the other by Mr. Walter Besant, one of the most rapidly rising of English novelists; graphic illustrations of unusual interest to readers in all sections of the country; current short stories, mostly illustrated, and important papers by high authorities on the chief topics of the day.
