> One of the features of recent s cia gatherings in Washington has been the presence of uninvited guest. A a number of recent receptions the number of people who have stormed the houses without invitations has been large, Several ladies have spoken of the unusual number of strangers who have used their houses as free-lauch stations during reception hours. At the White House diplomatic reception the crowd was excessive, owing to the fact that many people went there without any invitation. The invitations which were sent out included ladies of the families of those invited. This part of the invitation was construed with great liberality by some of the invited guests. One
