A Galveston business man says The prohibition question has given ise to more discussion in Texas than any issue ever brought before the people. Those in tavor of prohibition live principally in the thickly populated counties in the northern portion of the State, Dallas and Fort Worth being the prohibition strongholds, while Galveston, San Antonio, and El Paso tare opposed to it. Both sides are making a vigorous campaign, and vast quantities of printed matter for and against the amendment are distributed throughout the State The Anti-Probibitionists publish an illustrated paper in Dallas at the cost of $2 000 per month, and 20 000 copies are distributed each issue. It is generally reported in Texas that the brewers and liquor men of St. Louis have sent large sums of money into the S ate to be used during the campaign, and the Probibitionists are equally liberal in expending money, so that the election will be stubbornly contested on both sides, and the race will be very close. Most of the leading business men of Texas are opposed to State are in favor of it, and many lead. ing men are fighting on that side."
