Harper's Young People.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE has been called "the model of what a periodical for young readers ought to be," and the justice of this commendation is amply sustained by the large circulation it has attained both at home and in Great Britain. This success has been reached by methods that must commend themselves to the judgment of parents, no less than to the tastes of children-namely, by an earnest and well sustained effort to provide the best and most attractive reading for young people at a low price. The lilustrations are copious and of a conspicuously high standard as second-class matter.

In a letter read before a recent meeting of the Berlin Anthropological Society, Dr. Schliemann energetically protests against the current belief in the salutary effect of the Egyptian climate in pulmonary troubles. He writes from Thebas: "Since my consumptive servant, Polops, whom I had taken with me in order to save his life, has died, and since I have observed in this city a number of consumptives whom, like the German Consular Agent Tedrous, I knew twenty-eight years ago as robust men, I am en tirely cured of the belief that Egypt is the paradise of consumptives, and would much rather advise such

A Paris correspondent tells about the new handerchiefs the ladies are carrying there. The Princess de Sagan's favorite handkerchief is bordered with a garland of scarlet pinks; flowers and leaves embroidered in their natural colors. They are scented with the strong perfume extracted from the same flowers. The blonde Marquis de Grehfuble has all of her handkerchiefs em broidered with the corn flower in al its variegated blue shades, and her perfume is sweet scented clover .-Pink batiste, with white lilies of the valley worked on them, is the Duchest de Braganza's favorite handkerchief. The Empress of Japan has ordered pale beige ones, worked with chrysanthemums of all existing col- them. ors. The widow's handkerchief is a pale lilac, worked with dark purple

The State of New Hampshire is having an unusual experience this Ordinarily its Legislature which meets early in June, through with its labors in about a month. Now it is well along in the fourth month of the session with no prospect of finishing at present. I is all owing to the railroad contest, over which the whole State is stirred up. An outside corporation, the Boston and Maine Railroad Company, is seeking to open the way for controlling the principal through the representatives obeyed the will of their constituents the dreaded 'monopoly" would not carry its bill through the Legislature, but it is likely to go through. There have been charges of corruption, and 8, 9. though in the one case investigated they have not been sustained, there is 'eyidently some power at work 22, 23, which is stronger with the Legislature than the will of the people, for that is distinctly against the Hazen bill. "If in a State so largely rural in its character as New Hampshire and with the 'popular' branch of the Legislature numbering over 300, a railroad corporation organized in another State can control legislation in its oan interest," says the New York Times, "there is another striking evidence that your rural legislasometimes attributed to him."

The extent to which the leaders in the Confederacy have passed roll is called, as has been done by Col. C. C. Jones, Jr, of Augusta, Ga, in a recent address before the Confederate Survivors' Association. The Constitution of the Confederate States was signed by forty-nine delegates, thirty-seven of whom are dead. The President survives, but Vice President Stephens died four years ago. Of three who held the portfolio of State in the Cabinet, all are dead; of five secretaries of war, all; of two secretaries of the treasury, one; of four attorney generals, two, and the one secretary of the navy; while the sole postmaster general, Mr. Reagan, is still very the stump for prohibition in the recent Texas canvass, and arguing against the declaration on the other side of his old chief. Of thirteen commissioners accredited to represent the Confederacy abroad, ten are dead. There were five men who bore rank as full generals in the army, of whom Johnston and Beauregard alone survive; twenty-one great remedy was discovered by a mislieutenant generals, of whom eleven are dead; one hundred major generals, of whom fifty-five are dead; and four hundred and eighty brigadier generals, of whom Col. Jones thinks that considerably more than half are dead. Each year makes serious inroads upon the survivors,
