JOSH. T. JAMES, Editor & Prop'r. WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1887. Entered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N.C., as second-class matter.

Preparations are being made already for the ghastly tragedy which, if there are no more delays of the law, will surely take place at Chicago two weeks from to-day. A special from that city says:

Preparation is being made for the great Anti-Anarchist drama of the 1th of November.

Already orders have been given, t is said, to members of the 2d Illinois National Guard that they will be required to be on duty for a full week, or perhaps longer, prior to November 11, at their armory, or wherever else their services may be needed.

The probability is that the 1st regment will be called upon to do the same. It is understood, however, that neither of the regiments will be called from their respective armories unless in case of absolute need. dear. Billies overdue."—Life. It is also stated on authority that

The goods will be half a yard in width and about went into a store and asked for a the same length, gathered together at the top, which will be about ten inches across. The material is cut into necessary shape and lacks nothing but the stitches that were asked to-day of the motley crowd of women malefactors confined in the same prison with the seven death-sentenced Anarchists.

Here is a startling story, all of the way from Vienna:

Inquiry recently instituted into sulted in appalling disclosures. Up- dat pin!" ward of four thonsand children were suffering the pangs of hunger, some of them being on the verge of starvation. A long list of heart-rending cases came to light, and no doubt was left that not a few of the unfortunate little ones had died of inanition. Their emaciated appearance amply testified to the veracity of the statements persuasively extracted from them, which fevealed a condition of hopeless destitution unprecedented in the pauper records of this capital. This intelligence, heralded abroad through the local press, at once made the starving school children the idols of the hour.

The children, when cross-examined by a relief committee, corroborated the evidence already taken. It transpired that their principal food consisted of dry bread and occasionally a little weak soup or coffee. It is quite true that some of them affirmed that they were habitually addicted to a glass of spirits to stifle the cravings of their appetite and to keep out the cold. One boy positively stated that his father was a good man, and that when he could not give him anything to eat he let him drink as much gin as he liked, and this was why he often went to school drunk. The parents of these starving children are the most part day laborers, though some undoubtedly belong to a less respectable class. As soon as the work of relieving the children was begun in subscriptions were opened at the editorial offices of the metropolitan press. Seldom has an appeal to public charity been more readily and more generously responded to. The poorer classes have largely contributed. The popular newspapers are full of advertisements from people who WILLIAM DORSHEIMER, Ed. & Prop's cannot spare much money, but who offer to give one or two children their daily food. All the hotel and restaurant keepers are feeding a certain number of the children
