ANARCHISM.

The manifesto recently issued by the Socialistic League propagates certain theories which can never obtain in the South and which, we have reason to hope and believe, can never gain anything like a substantial foothold in any Christian community. Among the dogmas C. A. Dana work here?—Siftings. which it sets forth as its guiding star is the following:

Land, capital, machinery, factoies, workshops, stores, means of transit, mines, banks, all the means of production and distribution of wealth must be declared and treated as the common property of all.

This, of itself, is enough to condemn the entire theory with thinking men, for it will be seen in a moment that should such a condition of things arise there would be an end to all material progress. Banks would not, and could not, exist and transact business, and the means of transit would revert to a most primitive and expensive condition. But while this idea of holding all property in common is chimerical and visionary there are other features of the Socialistic League, as published in their manifesto, which is revolting to every heart that throbs with love and devotion for family ties and affection for kindred. Here we have the principle (if that can be called a principle which embodied in the dogmas they teach, to be inculcated in the minds of the young, the pure and virtuous, as well as in the minds of the roue and libertine. As their religion ignores all obli gation to, or belief in, the existence of an Almighty Power, and is entirely atheistical, we shall not expect to see their doctrines prevail to any perceptible extent in our Southern land. In fact the Socialistic League is a deadly for to the welfare of society, and every attempt to promulgate such atrocious theories should not be tolerated, nor do we believe it will be in this part of the country, nor to any appreciable extent among the English speaking race in any part of our land. The doctrine is monstrous and its advocates are foes to all which men hold dear.

Starting with the idea that the hand varies sensibly in size with the diphtheria, small-pox, cholera, yelamount of blood present in it at any moment, Prof. Mosso, the Italian physiologist, has made some most interesting investigations. In his first experiments the hand was placed in a closed vessel of water, when the change in the circulation produced by the slightest action of body or brain, the smallest thought or movement, was shown by a rise or fall on the liquid in the narrow neck of the vessel.
