OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

[Sp. Corr. Daily Review.] WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12, '88. Again the whirligig of time has brought us to the verge of Lent; which our churches were adorned have to-day all disappeared, and, 'it is probable, aided in giving warmth storm, to kneel at the shrines. Only two days more of the "season" remain, and then, the "memento homo quia pulvises, et pulveram reverteris, fore that life is not to be altogether | body takes it. Try it yourself. given up to the "pomps and vanities of this wicked world;" that halls and parties, tho' all very well in their way, must for a time give place to the demands of man's higher nature, to more serious and more profitable concerns, that the golden power that has lent its sparkle to the head of beauty must give place to the dust and ashes of Lent, and the gaudy attire of the ball room to the plainer robes, the "sackcloth" of the penitential season, and for forty odd days they will assemble in the churches and individually and collectively declare themselves "miserable sinners." Society keeps Lent. The "season" just ending has been unusually short, but it is not to be inferred that the social world has been cheated out of any of its pleasures thereby. Everything was arranged with reference to it, and it has been one grand rush since the 1st of January. Germans, receptions, teas, &c. &c. have followed each other in such rapid succession per dozen. that one's head almost swims in thinking of them. Sometimes three rushing in and rushing out was very almost an epidemic. confusing.

The efforts of the entertainers to. make them exclusive, to confine them to their own set, were not generally successful. Cards were to get in all the same. A few evenings since while standing near a group a lady, the wife of a Senator from the Pacific Coast, rushed up, and with the usual fashionable gust greeted the wife of another Senator. Oh, Mrs. Blank," said the first, are you ever troubled by people begging you to get invitations for bem to Whitney's and such places?" Yes she had had such requests. 'Oh," continued the first. worried almost to death; and by such people;" with a sneer that indicated She, I will add, was a seamstress Prop. when the person, now a Senator, married her.

The other evening a young man noticed that a hat was being kicked around the room and stepped upon and otherwise maltreated, and, with the propensity common to us all, he felt inclined to give the hat a kick himself, but forebore. When he turned to look for his hat it was not to be found. His coat and galoshes were had been kicked into a corner of the refreshment room. An inspection showed it to be the sought for 'ile, and such a tile! It looked as if he had stood on his head in it, and then got an elephant to tread on it. At the teas all is not tea. things are fading and will soon be but memories of the past season.-Mr. Cleveland has already announced his last public reception. Tomorrow night. I say "night" because the assembly does not begin until 11 o'clock and the german at 12; well, to-morrow night the Army and Navy Club give their last german of the season, and the Chinese Embassy celebrate their New Year with a grand ball, and none of the smaller fry would dare to dance this morning in a wooden dwelling or be especially gay after these leaders of the ton have withdrawn. And yet, the social world will not go futo absolute and uncompromising retirement. They will call themselves "miserable sinners" as before observed, and they will also meet around the festive board and promptly responded to the eall they may even indulge in a trip on which was sent out from box 25, the light fantastic toes, but it will be with less brilliant lights and to slow music, and in a penitential way, so to speak, and all under protest. The Mutual Life.

The annual statement of the Mu. tual Life Insurance Company of New York, which is published in this issue, shows that the year 1887 was the most prosperous one this company has ever enjoyed. The new business written amounted to $69,457,468.37, or an increase of $12,-624,749 over the new business of 1886. The assests of the Mutual Life now aggregate the enormous sum of $118.806.851.88, making it by far the largest financial institution in the world. The company has now an outstanding insurance amounting to $427.628,983. It received for premiums in 1887 the sum of $17,110,901, and its total income from all sources amounted to $23,-079,922,46. It paid to its members during the year for death claims and made happy from a large scock at endowments over $8,000,000, and the total payments to policyholders aggregated $14,129,423.60. The number of policies was increased to 140,-

This year the State Department required life insurance companies to compute the reserve value of policies at 4 per cent instead of 41 per cent as hitherto, which increased the liabilities as charged by the Department. Under this severe requirement the Mutual showed a surplus of $6,294,492 over and above MADE TO ORDER, AT every liability.
