

DUFFY'S FORMULA

A Certain Cure for the First Stages of Consumption.

Its main ingredients are raw beef and Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and it stimulates the energies and builds up the tissues as no other scientific discovery has ever done.

"I am a Presbyterian clergyman and a Doctor of Divinity, but I am not afraid to recommend Duffy's Malt Whiskey and Duffy's Formula as the purest and most efficient preparations I know of and my experience is a large one."

Rev. B. MILLS, Princeton, Iowa.

Duffy's Formula is for sale by all druggists and dealers. Price, $1 per bottle.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS, $22 TO $900.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organ has always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS, GRAND & UPRIGHT.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their instruments, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1862, and now known as the "Mason & Hamlin Piano Stringer," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in time, and other important advantages.

Planes and Organs sold for cash or easy payments, also rented.

ROSCOE CONKLING.

When Roscoe Conkling died a great American fell. We believe him to have been one of the purest men in public life, as well as one of the ablest. There is really no stain on his escutcheon. The greatest mistake of his life was simply a mistake; it was not an error. We refer to his failure to speak, as it has been alleged that he intended to do, in favor of Mr. Tilden's claim to the election in 1876. We get from the New York Star the following tribute to the memory of the dead statesman. It is very much in consonance with our ideas of the man, as he was:

Physically, as well as intellectually, Roscoe Conkling was a remarkable man. An American abroad, asked by a foreign friend to describe him, said of him as a celebrated Englishman once did of Tennyson, "Agamemnon, king of men"; and there was that about the bearing, as well as the stature and features of Conkling, that seemed to mark him as one born to lead many in large undertakings. It has been imputed to him by his opponents that he failed not to realize this natural distinction, and utilized it to impress his friends and overawe his enemies; but the same might be said with equal truth of Charles Sumner and, indeed, of the majority of great Americans, not excepting the Father of his Country.

Reflection on Roscoe Conkling's career leads to the conclusion that, conspicuous as were his public performances in the arena of statesmanship, he exercised yet greater influence in ways that are not apparent through the pages of the Congressional Record or the newspapers of the day. It was as the adviser and inspirer of national administrations—the mentor often named—that he had the greatest effect upon the fortunes of the country. During the two administrations of Grant his voice was special potential, and few knew how uniformly it was raised in favor of conservative and moderate methods and against the concessions to caudals that brought discredit on the surroundings of the Executive Mansion.

Loyalty in friendship and partisanship was a dominant trait in Conkling's character. What he freely gave he relied on receiving; and, counting on his friends as they did on him, nothing wounded him so deeply as the revelation that such relations of interdependence had weakened. It was no doubt mainly through misconception and meddling that an impression of this sort grew up respecting his footing with President Arthur. But it is certain that the misunderstanding was never wholly effaced.

It was partisanship enforced by companionship that lost to Conkling the greatest opportunity of his life—such a one as has seldom come to any American. It is beyond dispute that he was ready to declare for Tilden, and went to the Senate prepared to prove his case and make the speech that would surely have been followed by the installation of the elected President. But party friends dissuaded him at the last moment, convincing him that the ends of justice might be reached by the submission of the dispute to an impartial tribunal. It was the knowledge of Conkling's intended speech that delayed the declaration of the conclusion of Democratic leaders respecting the scheme for the Electoral Commission.

As a Senator, there was a side of Conkling's work little observed by the press or the general public, but which drew to him many friends. No one was more unrelentingly devoted to constituents, more exact in the performance of those kindly offices that fall in greatest number on those most influential, and no one gave more time to the aid, comfort and entertainment of New Yorkers who sought him personally in Washington. Governor Fenton, a master in the arts of conciliation, was inferior to his colleague in popularity with citizens of their common State; and it was out of Conkling's zeal in behalf of a friend to whom Fenton refused expected aid, that there came the open breach between them that involved such grave consequences in the politics of New York.

Mr. Conkling's latter years, spent in private life in the arduous and brilliant practice of his profession, were the crown and glory of his life. The resolution that enabled him, advanced in life and with wrecked fortunes, to begin a new career involving intense application, under great disadvantages compared with rivals whose practice had been uninterrupted, and to achieve a most distinguished success, revealed the indomitable nature of the magnificent man. Of him in the years of his prime as a politician, as a statesman, as a friend, many will think with respect and esteem. But Roscoe Conkling, rising superior to ruin, seizing almost at a bound the highest prizes of a difficult and exacting profession, paying on a point of honor a great debt of another for which he was held by no legal obligation, and only in so scrupulous a mind as his by any moral one—that grand and dutiful figure commands the admiration of all true hearts.

An Imperative Necessity.
What pure air is to an unhealthy locality, what spring cleaning is to the neat housekeeper, so is Hood's Sarsaparilla to everybody, at this season. The body needs to be thoroughly renovated; the blood purified and vitalized; the germs of disease destroyed. Scrofula, Salt Rheum, and all other blood disorders are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the most popular and successful spring medicine.

APRIL ANTICS.

The original elements are earth, air, fire and water. Fire is the most destructive and water is the most powerful. Fire-water, therefore, forms a combination that is a teaser.

First Baldhead—That's a beautiful piece the orchestra is playing. Second Baldhead—Ah, it is one that will always haunt me. "Why?" "It is the only one my daughter knows."

An Indiana judge did not know what a cartoon was. A lawyer sketched the body of a jackass with his, the judge's, head and face attached as a specimen and was promptly fined $25 for contempt of court.

A young preacher picked up Bishop Pierce's hat and put it on his own head, and it was exactly a fit. "Why, Bishop," said he "your head and mine are exactly the same size." "Yes," replied the Bishop "on the outside."

Mrs. Biggins—"Ah, Mrs. Stiggins, it's not every woman who has a husband like yours. They say he is very indulgent." Mrs. Stiggins—"There! I told Joshua that if he kept on indulging on the sly somebody would find it out."

It is not always safe to reason by analogy. Because a water soaked clothes-line becomes fearfully tight it does not necessarily follow that every intoxicated gentleman you meet upon the street is a confirmed cold water drinker.

Bobbie (sentimentally to his cousin, whom he adores)—"Maud, won't you give me some souvenir of yourself to take back to school with me?" Maud—"Why, Bobbie, dear, of course I will." Bobbie (with much pathos)—"And you'll let it be something to eat, dear, won't you?"

A lady who had been abroad was describing some of the sights of her trip to her friends. "But what pleased me most of anything," she continued, "was the Strasburg clock." "O how I should love to see it!" gushed a sweet companion; "I am so interested in such foreign sights. And did you see the Watch on the Rhine, too?"

Their Business Booming

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at W. H. Green & Co.'s Drug Store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

Merchant (buying a bill of goods of a Chicago drummer)—What is your usual time, thirty days? Chicago drummer (absent minded)—Yes; or $10. I always pay the fine—oh-I beg pardon; yes, thirty days, or 2 per cent off for cash.

Consumption Surely Cured.

To THE EDITOR—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and post office address. Respectfully, T. A. SLOCUM, M.C., 181 Pearl St., New York.

Be Sure to Get Hood's Sarsaparilla, my child. See that they do not give you anything else. You remember it is the medicine which did mama so much good a year ago—my favorite.

Spring Medicine

Nearly everybody needs a good spring medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla to expel impurities which accumulate in the blood during the winter, keep up strength as warm weather comes on, create an appetite and promote healthy digestion. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla and you will be convinced of its peculiar merits. It is the ideal spring medicine—reliable, beneficial, pleasant to take, and gives full value for the money. Be sure to get
