The Daily Review. JESUS OF NAZARETH.

Tomb'd from the heavenly blue, Who lies in dreamless death? The Jew,

Jesus of Nazareth!

shrouded in black He lies, He doth not stir a limb,

His eyes Closed up like pansies dim.

The old creeds and the new He blest with His sweet breath, This Jew,

Jesus of Nazareth!

His brows with thorns are bound, His hands and feet are led;

All around His tomb the sands stretch red.

Oh, hark! who sobs, who sighs Around His place of death-

Jesus of Nazareth!"

0'er head, like birds on wing, Float shapes in white robes dress-

They sing,

But cannot break His rest.

They sing for Christ's dear sake; "The hour is here," each saith; "Awake, Jesus of Nazareth."

Silent He sleeps, thorn-crown'd, lle doth not hear or stir, No sound

Comes from His sepulchre.

"Awake" those angels sing; "Arise, and vanquish death, o King.

Jesus of Nazareth!

Too late -- where no light creeps Lies the pale vanquished one-He sleeps

Sound, for His dream is done!

Tombed from the heavenly blue, Sleeps, with no stir, no breath, The Jew, Jesus of Nazareth! -- Robert Buchanan.
