will not be less than 1,500 colored New York in 1882. voters in line on that occasion.

The big new steamer City of New York, four days overdue, has arrived at New York. The delay was caused by various mishaps to her machinery and fears for her safety had been expressed in New York.

President Cleveland has very neatly nailed a campaign lie. In an article in the North American Review he is charged with saying this: "I believe in free trade as I believe in the Protestant religion." Mr. Cleveland says, politely but emphatically, that it is "a pure, unadulterated fabrication."

A new fad goes into operation in New York to-day. Passengers are to be carried to Albany on "Father Columbia's" steamboat line for 10 cents each. The usual fare is $2. Meals will be furnished continuously on the boat and those who want to eat can pay $1 per day and eat as much and as often as they please. The projectors say there is money

The way the rats desert the sinking ship is a caution. Strange as it | er. may appear it is likely that Roscoe Conkling, were he alive now, would repudiate the Chicago ticket. This is plainly intimated. Hon. George C. Gorham, an old line Republican, was one of Mr. Conkling's most intimate friends. In an interview with a New York Herald reporter he declared most unequivocally against the Republican ticket and in favor of Grover Cleveland.

The Roanoke river is on a big tear -the biggest sort of a big tear-and the destruction to property in Halifax and Northampton counties in this State will be very great. A telegram in the New York Star from Norfolk says Passengers arriving in the city on trains from North Carolina bring the information that the rivers have overflowed their banks and covered caps, trunks, valises, &c. Mr. A. the surrounding country with water | Shrier will retain the agency of the for miles. The Roanoke river has risen thirty-seven feet over high water mark, flooding Northampton and Halifax counties and doing im- his clothing store on North Front mense damage. The entire corn street. and cotton crops in the lowlands in the vicinity of the river are destroyed. Houses are loose and are being tossed about in the water, and it is feared that many lives have been lost. In some of the corn fields the water is twenty feet above the top of the corn.

The country is flooded a distance of three miles from the river, and in many places the tree tops alone give evidence of the existence of land. Cattle have been drowned and many carcasses are floating around. The people living in the vicinity of the for flood are panic-stricken and many of them homeless. The damage to crops is estimated at from $400,000 to $500,000. This afternoon the river is falling and there is a more hopeful feeling among the people. Trains have been delayed, but as all bridges in that section are of stone and iron, none has been washed away.

The New York Herald gives vent to the true inwardness of the recent Maine election and thoroughly dissects Mr. Blaine's midnight telegram wherein he romantically declares that it was "not simply a great victory; it is almost a revolution." It was not exactly a revolution but was in type we have learned that the presage of a revolution and not of the kind that Mr. Blaine had sion party to-morrow to the Beach. in his mind. The figures are these: Rep. plurality in 1888......18,495 Rep. loss on phirality......1,356 Rep. increase on vote of 1884.......691 Dem, increase on vote of 1884...2,047

The Herald adds this editorially: In a word, with the canvass under Mr. Blaine's own leadership; with an issue which would affect Maine more than any other State; with left, that other merchants would not every party inducement to bring have. Mr. Fishblate's stock is comabout the political revolution which posed entirely of first class goods Mr. Blaine claims, the republicans, in a poll larger by ten thousand votes, have a smaller plurality than in 1884.

These are the Maine figures as read in the cold light of history and not by the midnight enthusiasm of Mr. Blaine. They show that the lic. His stores are well lighted day democratic party is stronger than in 1884—stronger than at any time since the election in Hierce in 1858, and that it has victory within its lines, in so far as it supports the in-standard of democratic principles.

All of which goes to show that a Democratic victory, even in Maine, is not impossible for the Democrats in November. This would indeed The colored Democrats are to have be a revolution but stranger things a big torchlight procession in New have happened and will happen York. The Last Colored Excursion,

The Sylvan Grove carried down a very large crowd of colored people to Carolina Beach to-day. Among them were many indigent and imfirm persons to whom the management generously gave a free ride. It is the last colored excursion party to the Beach this season and it was probably the largest that ever went down on the Grove.

reports the big freshet in the Cape Fear as now running off rapidly in the upper sections. There is about 20 feet of water now at Fayetteville. In the lower part of the river, where the floods meet the tides, the water falls more slowly. Capt. Tomlinson thinks that some part of the fine crops along the river may be saved, but the loss will probably prove two-thirds of the whole. If there is no new freshet on top of the old one, the fields will soon all be clear of water and then it will be easier to estimate the full amount of the loss.

The September term of the Criminal Court for New Hanover county met at the Court House in this city to-day, His Honor, Judge Meares, For North Carolina, threatening presiding. The following were chosen as a grand jury for the term Jas. H. Taylor, foreman; Geo. W Huggins, W. S. Royster, John H. Banks, J. Sternberger, W. H. Strickland, A. T. Holmes, Jno. A. Lockfaw, Isaac J. King, A. F. Davis, W. M. Canaday and L. C. Craig.

The following cases were disposed of to-day;

State vs. C. E. Bullard, false pre tences. Nol pros. The defendant to pay the costs.

State vs. L. Perkins, assault and battery. Defendant waives bill and submits. Judgment, one penny and

State vs. F. J. Mills, misdemeanor. Appeal from Millis, J. P. Verdict Cotten Cloth Bagging in New York.

The New York Times says: Samples of cotton cloth bagging were exhibited on the tables of the Cetton Exchange yesterday, and though a few persons thought it was likely very favorably upon it. The objec tion as to inflammability can be removed, it is thought, by dipping it in some solution. The insurance underwriters have agreed to insure it, and it is thought by members of the Exchange that the Board of Managers will pass favorably upon the new cloth at their next meeting. The aloth has been subjected to compression by the use of hooks and declared to be fully as strong as jute. The material used in its man ufacture is the cheapest cotton, thus reducing the price to less than that ordinarily charged for jute bagging. DIED.
