DOCKERY AS A FARMER.

(Written by Col. W. L. Saunders.)

The greatest fraud of the present day, so far as we know, is the pretense Col. Dockery makes of being a "plain farmer," a horny-handed son of toil, who digs his living out of the ground. He tells the people that he is nothing but a plain farmer, dragged away from home against his will; that had a brother farmer, Captain Alexander for instance been nominated by the Democrats, nothing could have induced him to be an opposing candidate.

This is the veriest twaddle in the world, and no man that did not have the cheek of a rhinoceros would be guilty of it. Instead of being a plain farmer, making a living from the soil, he is the worst demagogue in the State and a thorough-paced, broken down Radical politician of the lowest kind.

If any one doubts this, let him look at the man's record since the war. In 1868 he ran for Congress twice. Twice in one year is pretty fair for a plain farmer averse to politics and happy only when watching his growing crops! In 1869 he showed his love for his crops by staying in Washington City; and so in 1870, when he ceased the bitterness of his grief at his absence from those same crops by another race for Congress. But this was not a good year for Radicals, and so Dockery was beaten and in 1871 he went back back to his beloved crops. And then the Democrats changed the makeup of his district so that he had no showing for Congress any more. But for this little circumstance he would have been running for Congress every two years from that day to this. Not to be idle, however, in 1876 he was a candidate for Elector for the State at large and was defeated, and again in 1880 he was a candidate for the same place and was again defeated. In 1882, when by accident, as it were, there was a Congressman for the State at Large, and the election coming on in an off year, he made race, and, as we all know, was beaten. Since then there has been no opening for him for Congress, his district being overwhelmingly Democratic, and so, having run down on his farm, he now seeks to be Governor.

And this is the man who is pretending the State as the farmer's friend! We know just the kind of farmer he is. There is at least one of that sort in every neighborhood in the State, as the commission, merchants know to their cost. They farm on supplies and advances from commission merchants, and make cotton and buy corn and work poor mules. This sort of farmers know it all, but somehow their crops don't pan out well. They can tell a poor neighbor who drops in of a Sunday evening just all about it, but that same poor neighbor, who knows nothing about scientific farming, but plants right straight along in the old way, will sell twice as much cotton to the acre.

You will hear a "farmer" like Col. Dockery, ex-member of Congress, almost any day now calculating how much cotton he will make. There are so many hills, says he, in an acre, so many stalks in the hill, so many matured bolls on the stalk,

"certain," so many bolls to the pound, and 400 pounds to the bale, and the result is anywhere from one to two bales to the acre—and when it is all picked out the average will be about 125 pounds of lint to the acre! That's the kind of farmer Col. Dockery is. His affected shabby dress and apparent want of attention to his person do not prove him to be a farmer by any means. If this sort of thing proves anything at all it is the demagoguery of the man or the want of soap and water. But what a low estimate he puts upon the sense of the people to suppose that such things as these will win their esteem and regard! They may catch negro votes, but they will never catch white votes. Negroes may think a man is nearer their level because he is slovenly in his dress and regardless of the decencies of life, but white men see no special virtue in a dirty shirt when a clean one can be conveniently had, or in dirty hands, when soap and water are convenient. We venture to say, without the slightest fear of successful contradiction, that Col. Dockery has not hoed a dozen rows of corn or chopped a dozen rows of cotton since he was twenty-one years old.

To talk about a man being a "plain farmer" who goes to Congress whenever he can get a chance, who runs for Governor whenever he can get a chance, and stays at home only when he can't go anywhere else, is absurd. Broken down politician is the right name for him, and that is just what Oliver Hart Dockery is.

And this is the man who goes about the State pretending to be a farmer and trying to stir up strife among the people. It is not our purpose here to make any defense of the lawyers; they are a class of people quite well able to take full care of themselves and have withstood many harder blows than Col. Dockery's puny arm can give them, and need not fear anything that a broken-down politician and broken-down lawyer can do to the hurt.

He loves farmers, he says, and hates lawyers. What are the facts? In 1884 the Democratic candidate for the Legislature in the county of Richmond was a highly respected farmer, named J. W. Sneed. He was a plain, steady manufacturing old farmer, and a one-legged Confederate soldier, who was well thought of by all his neighbors. The Republican candidate was a young negro lawyer, named William H. Quick, who had obtained his law license in February, 1884. Now here were the two candidates for the votes of the people of Richmond county—one an old, steady white farmer and the other a young negro lawyer—ard Dockery voted for the negro lawyer!

But this was more than the other Republicans of Richmond could do, for Sneed was elected, although Richmond is a Republican county.

Now, when Dockery, who pretends to love farmers so much, calls upon the people to vote for him because he is a farmer and against Judge Fowle because he is a lawyer, ought he not to be asked why he voted against a WHITE FARMER and for a NEGRO LAWYER? And will the people consider it a good excuse that in this case the lawyer was a negro buck and the farmer a white Confederate soldier, with one leg shot off? We think not.

The fact is, Dockery is a perfect failure. He failed as a lawyer, failed as a planter, failed as a soldier, failed as a politician, and now having failed at all these things, sets himself up as a farmer! The wonder is he has never set up as a newspaper man. But it takes something more than sixty years spent in ease and luxury to make either a farmer or a newspaper man!

As a slanderer of respectable, honest women, however, he is a success.
