OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

VOL XII.

(Sp. Cor. Daily Review.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 8, '88 There was a very large gathering at the Capitol this morning to witness the inauguration of the newly appointed head of the judicial department of the government; but, as the space in the Supreme Court room, where it took place, was limited, not more than two or three hundred were able to see it. The bar of the country was well represented, many of the foremost members, both in general and special practice, being present.

The ceremony was very simple, it having been decided that the Chief Justice was entitled only to such honors as are accorded to the Asso-

At the appointed hour for the as sembling of the Court, the crier with one rap brought those present to their feet, and at the same time announced: "The Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States." All remained standing while these dignitaries in their judicial robes filed into their places on the right and left of the central seat, which was left vacant. They bowed to the bar, and when the sal utation was returned, all sat down. The crier again lifted up his voice, and, with the usual "oyez, oyez" said that the "honorable, the Supreme Court of the United States was now in session" and admonished all having business with the same to "draw near." The senior Associate Justice (Miller) then informed the bar that since the last term of the Court, Melville W. Fuller had been appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate as Chief Justice of the Court; that he was present and would qualify, and instructed the Clerk to done. Mr. Fuller, who had occupied a seat beside the Clerk at his desk, then arose and read a manuscript copy of the oath which bound him to support the Constitution of the United States and administer the laws in accordance therewith to do less than Durham? the best of his ability, impartially, and alike to the poor and the rich, &c., &c. He then went around to the centre and was welcomed by the Associates very cordially, bowed to the bar, which was reciprocated and he then took his seat in the central chair, flanked on the right and left by the six Associate Justices present, Matthews and Field being absent, the first confined by an ill ness that will probably create another vacancy before long. He in formed the bar that there would be no business transacted except the admission of attorneys, when, in accordance with immemorial usage the Court would adjourn, to pay their respects in a body to the President of the United States. Some seventeen or eighteen were then admitted, on motion, and the crier adjourned the Court.

The new Chief Justice is a pleasant looking gentleman, of medium height, with a heavy white moustache, wears his hair moderately long, has a bright, intelligent face, a musical voice, and may, I think, be depended upon to administer 'equal and exact justice to all men" without fear or favor and without regard to their religious or political faith. In other words, there need be no apprehension that he will drag mire of politics. The audience was as distinguished as could be drawn together here. Among others I saw the "Old Roman" (Mr. Thurman) and as soon as the court adjourned he became the centre of attraction and was kept busy shaking hands for a half hour or more. He really divided the honors of the day with Chief Justice Fuller.

He is to argue a case before the court on Wednesday.

Before going into the Capitol this morning I stopped to look again at the statue of that grand old jurist, John Marshall, at its base on the Western side, which was, as recorded on the pedestal, "Erected by the Bar and Congress of the United States, 1884."

What a grand old man he was, and what a work he wrought. Not Quite So Good.

Our esteemed friend, Mr. J. T. Collins, of Burgaw, was in the city the crops in Pender county are not in?" turning out so well as had been hoped for and expected. This is true of all, cotton, corn, peas, and potatoes. In some places these may be cut off one half. The harvest Durham turned out 500 torches is now being made and the results one piece of ground on which he thinks he will realize 40 bushels to the acre, and he is going to have an acre of this measured, to see just how much the yield will really be.

Mr. Collins also tells us that game is very plentiful this year and that he sees a great many partridges, in especial, in the woods and fields.

Programme for the Parade. The following arrangements have been made by the Young Men's Democratic Club for the grand demonstration to take place in this city on Friday night, the 12th inst:

The members of the Young Men's Democratic Club in full uniform are requested to meet at Linder's Hall, corner of Front and Orange streets at 7:30 p. m., and report for duty to their division marshals as thereafter as practicable.

The first division will form in front of the Market House, with the right resting up Front street, and the second, third and fourth divisions will form successively on the first di vision. The band will take the usual place on the right of the line, and will meet as prescribed for members.

The procession will start at 8 o'clock sharp and move up Front street in the following order: Chief Marshal and Staff (mount-Butt's Panorama.

Mr. Arthur L. Butt arrived in the city to day and will exhibit his new panorama here to-night. It has been exhibited in Charlotte, Monroe, Wadesboro, Rockingham, Laurinburg and Lumberton and those who have seen it have spoken of it as a real work of art. In Charlotte the house was packed to its utmost capacity and two hundred persons were turned away, unable to gain admission. It is advertised here for but one night. It takes only an hour and a quarter to make the exhibition and so none need fear a tedious sitting.

How is This for Lively? Come now, we'll make another prediction, and that is that before the warm weather comes to us again the Atlantic Coast Line fast mail trains will be run between Wilmington and Weldon without a break, and with but one break, at Florence, between Wilmington and Charleston. This can easily be accomplished by having tanks in the roadway. The engines have already been made coalburners and they can also be easily altered to take up water from the tanks as they ran. If this is done the rate from Weldon to Wilmington will probably be reduced to ers and bandanas should do so at about three hours, or three and a half, for the 162 miles; and from those who have not as yet secured a uniform, but it is hoped that each Democrat will see the necessity of country out in full regalia.
