THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. XII. WILMINGTON, N. C., MONDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1888. NO 227.

Our advice to the British minister at Washington—Go West.

"Four, four, four years more" was the slogan of the Democrats in the big procession in New York on Saturday last. And it is a good one.

It is said that Col. Dockery has succeeded in having Federal supervisors appointed for Richmond county and that efforts will be made to have them appointed in other counties in North Carolina. This is the latest development of rascality.

The Associated Press dispatches speak of 20,000 men in line at the great Democratic parade in New York on Saturday. The Press is either two conservative—or two Republican. The New York papers variously estimate the number at from 30,000 to 50,000, the former figures being the lowest.

Saturday was the last day for registration in New York and the result was astonishing. The increase over 1884, for the entire registration, is 45,641. In all 286,547 voters registered in the four days. The problem which now confronts the Police Commissioners is how to poll this vote. There are this year 856 polling places, or 44 more than there were last year, and yet there are not enough.

Here is Judge Thurman's magnificent tribute to Cleveland, as delivered at Lima, O., Friday:

He is a man whom I know well, and I say to you, my friends of this great Democratic county, that have honored me so long and so much, a better and braver and more sensible and more level-headed man than Grover Cleveland does not walk on this earth. I do say that a better Democrat than he, and in my judgment, a wiser man than he, is not to be found in the length and the breadth of the land.

The big Democratic parade in New York on Saturday afternoon was the grandest thing of the kind known in this or any other campaign. It was four hours in passing a given point. It was a rainy, disagreeable day and yet the lusty Democrats did not allow this to deter them. Many of the most prominent business men of New York were in the line tramping through the mud and slush and with the water streaming from their clothes and the banners which they carried. The enthusiasm was unbounded and the spirits of the Republicans were damped than the uniforms of the Democrats. President Cleveland reviewed the procession with Mayor Hewitt on one side of him and Mrs. Parnell on the other, while that charming Democrat, Mrs. Cleveland, viewed the scene from a window of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. The New York Herald truly says that a clear day and a hundred thousand men in line could not have so thoroughly expressed the terrible earnestness of the enthusiastic Democrats as did the third of that number who braved the elements and for hours and hours marched through rain and mud to show their fealty to the principles of true Democracy. The Star says:

The line that marched past the President was made up of the most influential and conservative classes in the city. Learned lawyers carried Cleveland and Thurman banners, rich brokers waved red bandannas in the air, while prosperous business men went stumbling along over the tough and slippery way for two or three hours, shouting and cheering for the Democratic candidates. It was a notable procession from the first rank to the last, and the spectacle was one of which the President may well be proud.

The staid old Herald is jubilant, almost wild, over the demonstration. Its account opens thus:

With the venerable mother of Charles Stewart Parnell standing by his side, President Cleveland saw eight miles of New York's business men march past him in the driving rain, while a great host looked on and roared with frantic delight. They sang for him, pelted him with roses, tossed their hats in the air, waved their dripping banners and bandannas, and told him in a thousand ways that the metropolis of the nation is heart and soul for the great democrat who has thrown down the gauge of battle to the en-millions aristocracy of America.

And right in the presence of the whole multitude Mayor Hewitt and his opponent, Sheriff Grant, shook hands in front of Mr. Cleveland, who smiled at this token of democratic unity. "We shake hands over the President," said Mr. Hewitt, "but not over the bloody chasm." A tremendous shout of applause followed as the spectators recognized the significance of the spectacle. Even Mrs. Cleveland, sitting in a window of the Fifth Avenue Hotel and watching the scene through an opera glass, clapped her hands like the true little democrat she is.

There is something inspiring in the patriotism that induces over thirty thousand men in the busiest city on the American continent to abandon their vast business interests, close up the markets of the country and tramp for hours and hours through a heavy storm, turning the streets into steaming red torrents of bandannas flowing through shores of human beings.

Altogether it was probably the most extraordinary political demonstration that has been seen in the United States since the war.

Editorially the Herald says:

That business men's procession yesterday was a magnificent success. It was lucky it rained, for in spite of wind and weather such a crowd turned out that the Broadway cars stood in a row on the track for a couple of miles.

The numbers were variously estimated from thirty to thirty-five thousand, undeniable evidence that the Democratic party takes kindly to the rigors of the watercure treatment.

There were bandannas in plenty and cheers loud enough to drive the Republicans into political bankruptcy.

When the long array filed past the Grand Stand the hurrahs for Mr. Cleveland were almost hot enough to dry up the mud in the street, and if there is not an epidemic of bronchitis in this city this morning it will be because the laws of nature have been suspended in honor of the occasion.

On the whole the procession, which braved adverse circumstances, was the most impressive spectacle of the campaign or of any campaign.

It was the sure augury of victory for honest government.

"There's no terror, headache, in your threats," For I am armed so strong with remedy That I pass pain by, as an idle word, Which I respect not since the discovery of Salvation-Oil. Twenty five cents a bottle.

This morning, while some workmen were engaged in hauling window frames from Messrs. Extra Evening Train.

In response to requests preferred by a number of persons there will be an extra train on the Seacoast R. R. for three evenings this week—this evening, to-morrow and Wednesday. This train will leave Princess street depot at 6 o'clock and leave the Hummocks on the return at 8 o'clock. This is in addition to the regular schedule for those days.

In this connection we will state that Capt. Manning and Mr. Stokley have put down the price of board and parties can go down to the Sound and spend the night at low figures. Or, you can get a ride down there and back for 25 cents and an oyster roast for 25 cents. Is there any other place in the United States that can beat this?

By Stage to Newbern.

In the ante-railroad days it took about eight days to go from Wilmington to New York. Nearly all of the journey was performed by stage. It required nearly a day to go to Newbern, about 100 miles distant. The stage left here at 4:30 o'clock and arrived in Newbern the next day at 11:30. The route was out of Market street and by Bellevue Cemetery, crossing Green's mill branch and keeping along on what is now known as the old Newbern road. There were relays of horses every ten miles but the gait was only about five miles an hour, as the roads were very sandy. The regular stage coaches were used and they were very comfortable—for stage coaches. The ride was for all night and the passengers got sleep as best they could, but were bound to wake up every time the guard blew his horn. There are not many living here to day who can say that they have traveled in the old-time stage coaches.

Headquarters for Powder, Shot, Caps, Cartridges and Ammunition of all kinds is at Jacob's Hd. Depot. Shells loaded at a moment's notice.

Charles Lloyd, drunk and down, $10 or 20 days in the chain gang.

A case of selling liquor on Sunday was dismissed.

MASON & HAMLIN.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacturing of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world. Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of the world, the organs of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated $22 to $600, catalogues free. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of organ building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO SPRINGER," by the use of which is secured a tone together with a possible purer and grander and more increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages. A circular, containing testimonials from 200 purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant. Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented. MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO. Boston, New York, Chicago. Oct 29 4w
