The Power of Words.

The effect an advertisement has upon the reader is very well illustrated by the following, as related in the Mechanical News:

"A wealthy man who owns a country residence recently became dissatisfied with it, and determined to have another. So he instructed a real estate agent famous for his descriptive powers to advertise it in the papers for private sale, but to conceal the location, telling purchasers to apply at his office. In a few days the gentleman happened to see the advertisement, was pleased with the account of the place, showed it to his wife, and the two concluded that it was just what they wanted, and that they would secure it at once. So he went to the office of the agent and told him that the place he had advertised was such a one as he desired and he would purchase it. The agent burst into a laugh, and told him that it was a description of his own house where he was then living. He read the advertisement again, cogitated over the "grassy slopes," "beautiful vistas," "smooth lawns." etc., and broke out, "Is it possible? Well, make out my bill for advertising and expenses, for, by George! I wouldn't sell the place now for three times what it cost me."

Under Ground Four Miles to the Theater.

In some countries it would seem strange for a party going to see a theatrical entertainment to make a drive into Mother Earth, travel four miles under the mountains, and then dart up to the surface within a stone's throw of the ticket office; but it is after such a fashion that some of our people go to their regu lar dose of drama, comedy and trag

Recently a party of ladies and gentlemen of the town of Sutro, who wished to see "The Two Johns" at the opera house, took the subterranean cut. Starting at the mouth of the Sutro tunnel, at their own doors, they came up the tunnel to the C. & C. shaft, a distance of a little over four miles. Dismounting the cars, they then boarded the cages in the shaft and were shot upward to the surface, a distance of 1,640 feet. This way of going to the theater is as much fun for our ladies as go ing to a picnic. It is really a pleasure, but until a lady has become somewhat accustomed to life in the mines, it requires a little nerve. It is fine and cool the whole four miles under ground. The cars will not soil even the most delicate dress of Wilkes..... silk and satin, therefore there is no Wilson trouble of changing clothing. In Yadkin..... her room at the mouth of the tun-Үацсеу..... hel a lady may stand before her mirror and give the finishing touch to flower or feather, and just in such shape as she turns from her glass she is shot up to the surface in the city, ready to take her seat in the British volunteers is "all hair to be City Enterprise.

Reducing the surplus.

The disposition of the Surplus in the U.S. Treasury engages the at-tention of our Statesmen, but a more vital question has our attention, and that is the reduction of the Sur plus Consumptives.
