CHEATHAM CAUGHT THEM.

A Queer Story of North Carolina Election Methods.

The election of Cheatham (colored) over Simmons (white) to Congress from Eastern North Carolina was brought about in a very funny manner, and was practically settled in half an hour. Opposite Newbern is the town called James City. It is settled entirely by the blacks, and Simmons knew he had to get this solid vote to be re-elected.

His friends went over and called a public meeting, and stated what Mr. Simmons had done for the district and the colored people, and as he really had proved himself a benefac tor the colored electors were ready to go for him to a man. Herrick; "Glimpses of Child-life from Dickens," by Margaret E. Sangster; articles on various opposed his speaking, and one of the meeting in James City. The crowd opposed his speaking, and one of the leaders inquired:
"Didn' Mars' Simmons git dat

"Didn't he git dat 'propriation fur a stone road to the soldiers' ceme "Yes, he did."

"Didn't he git that 'propriation to build a new revenue cutter for dis yere deestrict?" "Yes, he did." "Well, then what yer talkin' bout? What's de matter of Mars'

Simmons?" "Dat's jist the trouble gem'len,' replied Mr. Cheatham, as he got his Single Number, Five Cents each.
