The Daily Review.
THURSDAY, MAY 30, 1889.

STATE NEWS.

Robesonian: Mr. William Gorman, a hotelier, died in this town of a cancerous affection of the throat last Sunday night about 12 o'clock. Mr. Gorman came to this place about two years ago to take charge of the National Hotel.

Charlotte News: Mr. O. W. Badger's "Dandy" and Mr. J. M. Kendrick's "Lulu K." were this morning shipped to Philadelphia to take part in the races at that city. These animals are regarded by horse fanciers as splendid ones, and they are expected to make a record at Philadelphia. Beck's stables of six horses, that were in the 20th May races here, were also shipped to Philadelphia this morning.

Elizabeth City Economist: Capt. Peter Warren, of Edenton, an excellent man and widely known as a skilled fisherman and inventor of the steam process in seine hauling, departed this life in Edenton last week, aged near 70 years. Capt. Warren was a native of Gates county. — One hundred and thirty dollars an acre from a first crop of spring greens, to be followed by a second crop of something else on the same ground this season is not bad farming. That has been done by a Forker this season. And yet they say farming don't pay.

Durham Recorder: The sad intelligence reached Durham Saturday evening from Morganton, announcing the death of Mr. John W. Carr, of Chapel Hill. The remains were brought here for interment. Mr. Carr was born April 25th 1814 and died May 25th 1889. Aged 75 years and 1 month. The deceased was a prominent citizen of the State and leaves the following children to mourn their loss: Mr. J. S. Carr, Dr. A. G. Carr, Mrs. W. A. Guthrie, of Durham; Mr. R. E. Carr and Mrs. J. T. Harris, of Chapel Hill, and Mrs. J. F. Heitman, of Trinity College.

Asheville Citizen: The mill house owned by Mr. Mark L. Ried and located on the Swannano river, near Best, was destroyed by fire Sunday morning, involving a loss to the proprietor of about $1,500. Origin of the fire is unknown. The mill is to be rebuilt at once. — Dr. Broyles exhibits quite a curiosity. It is the iron hook with which the body of Prof. Elisha Mitchell was pulled out of the pool on Black Mountain in which he lost his life while surveying the peak which bears his name, over thirty years ago. The hook was made at the order of Dr. Broyles who accompanied the party which discovered the scientist's body.

Selma Reporter: Our farmers in this section are being blessed with copious and refreshing showers. — Mrs. Nancy Hood, wife of Mr. S. H. Hood, died in Selma on Monday, the 27th inst., aged 71 years. Mrs. Hood has for a number of years been a consistent member of the Baptist Church. — The farmers of Macon county have been so annoyed by the wholesale destruction of their sheep by wolves that they concluded to devote last week to a grand wolf hunt. They made up four very large parties, led by thirty experienced hunters, and after two days' unsuccessful search, came upon the wolves Friday in a thicket of rhododendron, near the base of an immense wall of rock. Their dogs got the wolves at bay, but it was found that they were in a cave with a small opening. The hunters were not to be balked, and began a lively fire into the cave with their repeating rifles. When there was quiet, one of the hunters crawled inside and found no less than seven wolves. Three more were killed in the course of the hunt, one after a desperate fight with the dogs. The latter was the largest wolf killed in many years.

Doctor: "It's nothing but an attack of dyspepsia."
Patient: "And what does that come from?"
Doctor: "That comes from the Greek, madam."
No matter whether it comes from the Greek or the Hebrew, or eating mined pie, if you have it, just take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and you won't need to ask the doctor anything about it. Specific in all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.
