Old Songs. Over and over again, In every time and tongue In every style and strain Have the world's old songs been

Since the sight from the soul was stirred. Since the heart of a man was broken. Have the notes of despair been heard And the rithm of pain been spoken.

The song that you sing to-day, Sweet on the printed pages. Was sung in the far away,

In the youth of the worn-out ages: The charm of your love-born tune, The gems that your lines uncover, Were set in some savage tune By the heart of some pagan lover.

The fancies that fill your rhymes, The visions that haunt your lays. Are the spectres of olden times And the ghosts of forgotten days

Ye players on notes of woe. Ye dreamers of love and sorrow, They sang in the years ago The songs you will sing to-morrow

But what if the rhymes are new, And what if the thoughts are old If the touch of the chord be true And the flight of the singer bold? Let them come to us still again, To-morrow and yet hereafter, Fresh as a morning's rain, Old as the sob and the laughter.

Though Only of Mamma.

On one of the wettest days of las week a countryman, who might have been taken for a prosperous farmer or a successful miner, was walking aleng Market street, in the rain, when he noticed a little girl in front of him, says the San Francisco Examiner. Her clothing was shabby and thin, and her shoes were almost ready to drop from her poor little wet feet. Touched by the sight, the bluff old fellow stepped up to her and asked her to accomyany him ineo a shoe store just at hand, and directed the salesman to fit the child out with a good, substantial pair of shoes. After trying on several pairs, all of which appeared to fit very well, the old gentleman said to her, pointing to the pair she had on: "What's the matter with those. Ain't they easy?" Hesitating a moment, the child looked up and said: Oh, yes, sir; they are very comfortable, but please, sir, won,t you buy them big enough for mamma?"

Hoist by His Own Petard.

"Will you kindly allow me to stand?" asked a gentleman as he got into a railway carriage, which already contained a specified number, "Certainly not, sir." exclaimed a passenger occupying a corner seat, near the door. "The way these trains are overcrowded is shameful. "As you appear to be the only person who objects to my presence," replied the gentleman, "I shall re main where I am."

"Then I shall call the guard to nave you removed, sir.

Suiting the action to the word, he aggrieved passenger rose, and putting his head out of the window vociferously summoned the guard. The new comer saw his opportunity and quietly slipped into the corner

"What's up?" inquired the guard as he opened the carriage door. "One over the number," replied

Does Experience Count?

It does, in every line of business, and especially in compounding and preparing medicines. This is illush Trochees never fail. Our illustrated, 32 pega book trated in the great superiority of diestimonials, (sent search). Every man should Hood's Sarsaparilla and other prep-19 Park Place, New York, 1706 arations, as shown by the remarkable cures it has accomplished.

The head of the firm of C. I. Hood & Co. is a thoroughly competent and experienced pharmacist, having devoted his whole life to the study and actual preparation of medicines. He is also a member of the Massachusetts and American Pharmaceutical Associations, and continues actively devoted to supervising the preparation of and managing the business connected with, Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hence the superiority and peculiar merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is built upon the most substantial foundation. In its preparation there is represented all the knowledge which modern research in medical science has developed, combined with long experience, brain-work, and experiment. It is only necessary to give this medicine a fair trial to realize its great curative value.

Protection Against Rats on Ships. Rats have ever been a sort of nightmare to those who live on floating property. Not only have they damaged thousands of fine vessels and valuable merchandise, but they have by their nocturnal wanderings seriously interfered with DRY SALTED-Jack's rest. An ingenious man has hit apon a happy idea to prevent their future ravages. He has resorted to no trap system nor does he recommend a free use of Paris green. He has patented a simple device from which he expects immense results and he is now exhibiting his coutrivance to some of the more prominent yachtsmeu with an idea of introducing the innovation. The novelty consists of a cone of metal connected in two parts and this is to be connected with the anchor cables, as it is a well known fact that the rats gain access to vessels by climbing along the cables through the hawse pipe into the hold. The device must be fastened by straps to the cable. The bottom or open end of the cone will be such distance from the cable that the rats cannot possibly jump or climb around it, nor can they run up through the apex of the cone. The protector resembles a hat worn by a Chinaman at home. It is perfectly round with a high peak. The anchor cables pass through the centre of the cone, and when in position the latter rests about three or four feet above the water. It is absolutely impossible for a rat to crawl aboard a craft while the protector is connected with the cable.—Mail and Express.
