A Hymn to St. Valentine.

While o'er my head the clouds of smoke
In wreaths fantastic twine,
Do I thy gracious aid invoke,
O sweet St. Valentine!
A lover's ditty would I send
(And thus her heart beguile)
Unto a maid who calls me "friend"
With such a charming smile.

My head is full of sayings sweet
Of her for whom I pine;
Alas! the singing rhymes won't meet
And "lame" goes every line,
"Ah! there's the rub," as Hamlet
cries—
And Hamlet was devout—
St. Val, you're witty, wily, wise,
So, prithee, help me out!

In writing to this charming miss—
The one I love in view—
Bring something in to chime with
"kiss."
Think you not "bliss" will do?
You well know how a screech should read
To win a damsel-dove;
And yet whenever my cause you
plead,
Oh, end the plea with "Love!"
—Bissell Clinton.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. One piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, Druggist, Fort Smith. Trial bottles of this wonderful Discovery free at Robt. R. Bellamy's wholesale and retail drug store.

Parisiens have lately been entertained by a remarkable artist, who displays wonderful skill in her peculiar form of painting. With plates of various colored sand before her, she takes the sand in her right hand and causes it to fall in beautiful designs upon a table. A bunch of grapes is pictured with violet sand, a leaf with green sand, the stalk with brown sand, and relief and shadows by other sands; when the work is brushed away a bouquet of roses and other objects are represented with the same dexterity and delicacy.

An Old Story in a New Setting.

An error of misplaced sympathy was very nearly being committed at Moore Street Police Court, Birmingham, last week. A man was accused of being incapable drunk. "I was accused drunk, sir," he replied; "I slipped and broke my leg, and had just fallen down, when the policeman took me." "Is your leg broken, then?" inquired the Magistrate, sympathetically. "Yes, sir," replied the accused. The Magistrate was just going on the point of discharging him in consideration of the suffering he had endured in consequence of his folly, when a policeman coolly added, "It's a cork 'un, your worship." This put a different complexion on the affair, and ended with the infliction of a fine.

Mocking Birds in the Yosemite.

A writer who has recently visited the Bridal Veil Falls in the Yosemite Valley thus speaks of the mocking birds in that vicinity: "Millions of brown-coated birds there were everywhere, until the whole of our very nature seemed permeated with their music. Sometimes low and sweet, again sad and plaintive, and then full, rich and triumphant, like a peon of joy and gladness, while we looked at each other in wondering silence. Just as it seemed that the melody was unacceptably sweet, and that our hearts could not contain more without the relief of tears or shouts, the wind died away and the water again struck with an awesome roar into its rocky hollow with a force that made the earth tremble, and was again lashed to furious foam and the song of the mocking birds hushed. Thus it goes on ever and ever, alternately, and has for ages, the song of the birds and the thunderous reverberation of the cataract."
