The extensive sale which the book gotten up in imitation of Burke's Peerage is achieving is an indication of the widespread desire of American girls to marry titles. The book in question gives all the attainable facts and figures concerning rich American girls who have married foreigners of more or less distinction. They have not all married titles though there is a fair sprinkling of names of prominent English- to me, my son."-Say, mamma, O.H. Allen, meu among them, and the book is couldn't you advance twenty five. replete with minor errors. Its sale, according to the clerks in the book stores, is exclusively among women Another book describing the exact experiences of silly American girls who have married the dissolute owners of the cheap foreign titles reading.

AN INIQUITOUS MEASURE.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Star says that the possibility that the Committee on can. Election of President and Vice President may take some action on the bill of Mr. Cabot Lodge regulating elections of members of Congress Democratic Representatives to earnest protest against the principles set forth in the measure.

The bill itself consists of twentyone sections. It first gives authority to any 500 voters and residents in any Congressional district to place the next election in that district under the provisions of this act by a States District Court. The "provis- it has never been equalled." ions of the act" follow: There are to be two Registrars of Voters, to be appointed by the United States District Judge, with absolute powers. Nobody is to be entitled to vote un less his name is placed on the lists of registration prepared by them. All ballots at the next Congressional election are to be provided and printed at the public expense, in accordance with what is now known as the Australian system: the Clerk of the United States District Court is to "instruct" the voters, how to obtain their ballots and mark them; he is also to furnish the ballots to the registrars at each precinct. The inspectors of elections are to be appointed by the District Judges, and they are to take charge of the ballot boxes and check off the lists, and so on, and so on. Ex-Speaker Carlisle emphatically characterizes the bill as embodying the Republican theory of centralization—of taking the control of elections out of the hands of the States and reposing it in the Federal Government. He expresses doubt, in his usual guarded way, as to the constitutionality of the provisions of the bill, but has no hesitation in saying that no such arbitrary measure was ever contemplated by the framers of the Constitution when they enacted the clauses upon which it purports to be based. Ex-Chairman Mills, of the Committee of Ways and Means, denounces the bill as bad in tendency and of doubtful constitutionality. Mr. McMillen, of Tennessee, Mr. Mills' The North Carolina Presbyterian able lieutenant in the last Congress, is even more emphatic in his condemnation. He says: "It takes from the community the machinery and control of elections, and places others who will promise earnest work will be it in the hands of a distant Federal Court, if 500 men ask it. Although 20,500 are opposed to it, the regisized not only to change the voting places, but to count the votes and certify them to the Clerk and Judge of a Federal Court; who, in turn, certify the result to the Clerk of the House of Representatives. It will be seen that the Governor is left out The Paper for the People, in this matter. I imagine that the people of the Northern States will not like to see their Governors deprived of the right to certify the results of elections to the Clerk of the House any more than the people of the Southerne States. The bill places the control of elections to the legislative branch of the Government in the judicial branch thereof, whereas the Constitution provides
