Conf. derate Congress, " S. L." the able Richmond cornespondent of the Knexville Register, pays the following compliment to the Conederate Congress which has recently adj urned :-

WHAT MAY BE SAID OF CONGRESS. In these last days of the session there is a striking contrast between the modes of legislation of this and the Federal Congress. During the closing week of a session of the Federal Congress, indiscribable confusion reigned both in the Senate and House. The great mass of the members knew nothing of what was being done Everything was entrusted to the several committees, and the lobby bought, bribed and brow heat every committee of the two Houses. Here in Richmond, on the contrary while business is rapidly dispatched, every member is intent upon any measure inder consideration.

It is mo e apparent now than ever before, that the wholesale denunciations to which this Congress has been sut j eted by the press and its corresponden s, are prigat, and he who denies it has only to institute a comparison such as I have suggested. Fven row, such is the good order prevaent, a mere spectator can comprehend thorought every proposition, with the policy which it is designed to promote, even in this last week of the session. Whatever criticisms may be pronounced upon Congress, they justly effect indivicuals alone, and cannot derogate from the claims of a majority to the respect and confidence of their country-

All messures pending are briefly discussed and deliberately acted on. Hence the amendments to which the cumbrous tax bill has been su jected.

It is stated that a house is being prepared in Vira Cruz for the reception of General Don Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna. From this announcement, we suppose leg when they were at war with Mexico on a former
