"He is not here but risen."

The deceased is represented to have been a pious member of the Lutheran Church, a good officer, and a noble hearted man .-He arrived at this port, accompanied by his sister, Henrietta Wulff, in an English barque, in June 1856, intending to travel through the United States. Being ill, he took lodgings in Beaufort, at Mr. King's flotel, where he received kind attention and medical aid. But he hourly grew worse fusion, disclosed a frightful case of yellow Then we have Butler travelling around the propriated for the dead of each State rises a cen until the appearance of black vomit, in profever, which soon terminated in death.-He was buried near the Methodist Church where he still reposes.

The olnely broken-hearted sister returned to her home in Copenhagen, and sent out the monument for the tomb. As time rolled on, her sorrowing spirit yearned for the spot where her brother slept; and in 1858, she piously resolved to make a piltrimage to his tomb! She was a good acholar, and wrote English well. In a letter dated June 1858, to a lady in Beaufort, she said : "I need not tell you how often my thoughts are wandering to that far distaut place where my dearly beloved brother is the additional fact that General Logan Virginia, and well may the old Mother State be reposes in God, under the shadow of that has organized a large force in the West to proud of her daughters. weeping willow you planted at his head, march on Washington, and the fact of conand the rose bush at his feet."

The Augusta factory on the 1st inst., declared a dividend of five per cent. As it was declared at the end of the third quarter of the year, we presume that it was the third quarterly dividend of the year. A profit of only two cents a yard on the cloth manufactured by it for the year ending 31st Augustlast, (6,410,000 yards,) would amount to about twenty-five per cent. on its capital stock, ($600,000,) and we may very reasonably conclude that the profit is that much per yard. The first prices for cloth of this factory's weaving are lower than those of Northern factories, and a considerable proportion of the cloth of the Augusta factory is sold in the Northern markets. These facts ought to satisfy every doubting Thomas of the profit there is in manufacturing cotton at the South, where it is grown.
