COMPARATIVE RESULTS OF THE NORTHERN ELECTIONS.

sult of the Pennsylvania election, showing portment, in our speeches, writings and conthat Judge Sharswood had 922 majority for versation, in our selections of candidates for Supreme Judge. In the Luzerne Congres- office, in our votes, and in all our public and sional district of Pennsylvania the official vote is reported to be for Woodward, Democrat, 13,623; Ketchum, Republican, 13,078, a Democrat majority of 545. As compared with last year both votes fell off, the Republican decrease being 1,196, and the Democrats 2,657. The Democratic majority last year was 2,006, and the net Republican gain eight counties being official, show that General Rutherford B. Hayes, the Republican candidate for Governor, has a majority of 2,853 over Judge Thurman. The returns of the Ohio election show an increased vote as compared with last year, and indicate that the vote at the recent election was the largest mony and prosperity. Let the Conservative ever polled in that State. The Cincinnati heart of the South respond to the Conservaticipated, and that at least 50,000 more ballots were cast than at the Govornor's election in 1865.

In Iowa, official returns from seventeen counties show a falling off of 674 in the total vote, and of 2,620 in the Republican vote, whilst the Democrats gain 1,945 votes. There are ninety-nine counties in Iowa, and returns, official and unofficial, from seventy-two of them, give Merrill, Republican, a majority of 25,724 for Governor, as compared with 35,412 Republican majority in those counties at the election last year.

No returns have been received from Indiana, upon which any basis of comparison with the vote of last year can be made, There was no State ticket in Indiana, and no Legislature was chosen, the people merely voting for county and town officers. The newspapers of both parties claim to have made gains, and it is impossible at this time to give any comparative statement.

In Montana the election for Delegate to Congress is officially reported to have resulted in 6,004 votes for Cavanaugh, Democrat, and 4,896 for Sanders, Republican, a Democratic majority of 1,108.

REPUBLICAN SPECULATION IN RE-GARD TO THE NEXT PRESIDENCY.

The LaCrosse, Wisconsin Republican, an intelligent Radical journal, says:

"The total and direct result of these election is the reduction of the number of candidates in both parties for the Presidency. Especially is this the case in regard to Ohio, defeated by over 45,000 majority. Chief upon. Justice Chase and Ben Wade have unquestionably forfeited their claims upon the Republican nomination; and Pendleton has, during the campaign, by his vigorous work, overshadowed many of the lesser politicians in the Democratic party. If New York makes a doubtful record in November, Pendleton will have a rival in Horatio Seymour: but if the Republicans carry New York, Pendleton will be the Democratic candidate. The bond or National finance controversy, has extinguished Butler's claims for the Republican nominato General Grant. In the light of present political affairs, it looks as though the Presidential contest will be narrowed down to a choice between General Grant and George H. Pendleton."

They are having a sparrows' concert every day now in New York at Union Park and a correspondent writes that it takes place between half-past three and five in the afternoon. Five or six hundred sparrows engage in this concert to the delight of hundreds of persons who are attracted there to hear their sweet evening song. These daily concerts, it is said, will terminate when the leaves fall.

LET US MESPOND. Under this heading the Richmond Whig; Oct. 19th, says:

"The reaction at the North imposes a high duty upon the people of the South. The lion," and would again unite in the same manner upon the slighest indication of a renewal of the war-spirit at the South. The Conservative reaction is the result of the conviction, a little too slow in coming, that the Southern people are peaceably disposed and desire sincerely to resume their connection with the Union on any terms not incompatible with reason and right. It is for us to pursue such a course as will encourage that We have already published the official re- reaction. We must, by our conduct and deprivate acts, show that with us the war has ended, not to be recommended, and that we desire to be in and of the Union. Let us of the South warmly second the great movement that has commenced, and that has for its object the removal of the wheels of government from the deep-dug war rut into the good old rut of peace, har-We should at least resolve that the blame of failure shall not lie at our door.

PERSONAL.

We had a most agreeable visit yesterday, from Maj. John W. Dunham, the accomplished junior editor of the Wilson North Carolinian. He speaks encouragingly of the prospects of his paper, one of the ablest and best in the country. A clever gentleman and graceful writer, we wish him all the success he so justly merits.

The official reports of the Southern registration elections in Louisiana and Alabama have been received. In Louisiana there were 79,486 negroes and 42,370 whites regisfavor of the Convention. EXCITING ELECTION SCENES.

MOB VIOLENCE ATTEMPTED BY NEGROBS: whole North united to suppress "the rebel- The Streets Cleared at the Point of the

> The Richmond Dispatch thus describes a scene in the first ward of that city on Tues-

At about half-past 9 o'clock in the morning a colored man (Davis) started up the steps of the Old Market Hall (First Ward polls) without intimating to any one what ticket he intended to vote. Presently some one whispered that the man was going to vote for the ticket headed by the name of Colonel Johnson. In a moment the crowd caught the whisper, and passing it from man to man, there was an outcry of "Kill that rascal | Hustle him out! He's going to vote the rebel ticket."

The report was true, and the poor fellow who had dared to approach the polls with a Conservative ticket, terrified by the bawling voice of the mob, thought best to beat a retreat. Up Main street he ran towards Wall street, with a crowd of negroes at his heels, and every newspaper to avoid anything and exclaiming, "Hang him! Hang him to a

> The police immediately gave chase, a squad from the station joining those on duty at the polls, and the race promised to be exciting. Davis was caught by one of the mob before he had run a square, and the blacks were preparing in earnest to lynch him, when several police officers reached the spot and succeeded in seizing two of the most violent rioters. The young men were very boisterous, and, unawed by uplifted batons, stoutly resisted arrest.

The crowd now filled the street, and was so dense as to impede the passage of vehicles. Officer O'Dwyer was felled to the ground, and received a severe blow in the back; after which the police found it neces-Gazette says that this large vote was not an- heart of the North, and all will be well. sary to wield their batons right and left, in order to prevent the rescue of their prisoners, who were now held by four men. But their progress toward the station was again obstructed by the mob, and it was feared that the rascals would escape, when several mounted soldiers gallopped to the spot.

The Federal cavalry did not hesitate to draw sabres when the people did not obey the sergeant's order to disperse. But just in the niche of time more efficient assistance arrived. A squad of the Eleventh United States infantry, under the command of Brvt. Lieut. Col. Hartwell, pushed their way through the mass of men, hustling the rioters out of the way with little ceremony.

The orders of the Colonel were quick and decisive. The soldiers deployed as skirmishers, marched and countermarched, and finally, at the point of bristling bayonets, cleared the streets. The police then secured their prisoners, and carried them to the cage at a tered, and at the election for a Convention double-quick, while the military kept back 75,400 votes were cast, nearly all being in the clamorous crowd. Meantime the unwitting cause of the disturbance made a successful retreat, and has not since been

The Enquirer records a similar disturbance

Between 2 and 3 o'clock a colored man named Kennedy went to the polls in Monroe Ward and voted the Conservative ticket .-He left the place of voting immediately after talk, in studied language, of the blessings of casting his ballot, and was followed by a crowd of negro boys and women to Foushee street and thence to Broad, who hooted and jeered him, calling him "rebel," and other opprobrious epithets, as they consid-

On Foushee street, near Broad, two policemen appeared and dispersed the mob, Kennedy pursued his way quietly to Brooke Avenue, when the mob of boys and women again collected and cried out, "kill him," "kill the d-d rebel," "kill him," "he's a Conservative." At this point they were headed by a negro named Winston Jackson, who insisted on having him hung or killed in some way. The police, led by Captain Eppes, came up and took hold of him. He resisted them violently, and the women cried out "rescue him," "take him away from the police," "don't let them carry him to the ly to-day until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when an affray occurred that caused a great deal of excitement. Ned Horton, (colored), the police but for the arrival of a squad of eavalry who drew their pistols and charged' into the mob. They soon succeeded in scattering them, and the prisoner was taken to the third ward station house.

On getting him to the cage he resisted violently, and after being put into the cell he went to the window and commenced making a speech to the crowd outside. He was a most insolent and insubordinate scoundrel, and was handled much too tenderly by the police. Whilst the mob was being dispersed by the police and military, Kennedy was taken in a carriage by some gentlemen who military prevented Hunnicutt and his incendiary set from interfering, after the morning, with negroes who wished to vote the Conservative ticket.

The arming of the police of English cities with swords and revolvers is advocated by the London papers, the immediate cause of the suggestion being the Fenian panie.

Near Sherman, Texas, recently, Mrs. Beatty, a widow lady, met her death in a most singular manner. She was in the act of getting on a horse, when a common sewing needle, which stuck in her dress, eaught in the saddle and was driven into her body near her breast, slightly piercing her heart. She lived only about half an hour.
