The Bergen Explosion--Further Details of the Disaster. The disaster caused by the explosion of a can of nitro-glycerine, in the blacksmith's shop of the Newark and New York Railroad Company, at South Bergen, N. J., was more serious than was at first reported.

There being nine persons killed and six injured. Of the persons killed, five were in the shop, two on the roof, and two were passing along near by. The building, which was about 25 by 30 feet, was blown to fragments and scattered in all directions, nothing remaining but a few posts sticking in the ground, one of which was covered with blood. Directly beneath the place where the can of glycerine stood, a large hole was scooped by the force of the explosion, which will require twelve or fifteen cartloads of earth to fill it.

It is said that Burns, the foreman, did not place a red-hot poker into the can of glycerine, but into a rim which surrounded the can, containing water, for the purpose of cooling the iron. Burns was blown literally to atoms. On the ground on Tuesday, workmen were engaged in gathering the fragments of his body, which were placed in a pail. Some of the pieces collected were not more than an inch in length, and on the roof of one of the buildings, twenty or thirty small particles of the body were found. The ground was covered with the ruins of the buildings, and the trees were broken nearly to the earth.

A Remarkable Murder Trial. A singular murder trial was concluded at Albany on Thursday. Judson W. Palmer was indicted for murder in the second degree, for killing Archibald Stevens, in the town of Coeymans, in October, last year.

Palmer sought the hand of Stevens' daughter, a girl aged fifteen; Stevens opposed the match, and threatened to chastise Palmer if he did not abandon the suit. An elopement and hasty marriage followed, and an hour after, Stevens, who was in pursuit, came up with them near the house of a mutual friend. The young couple ran into this house and hurried into an upper room, and fastened the door. Stevens soon burst open the door (both men were armed) and a struggle ensued, in which Palmer was considerably injured, and Stevens was shot dead. The trial was before Judge Peckham.

After the examination of several witnesses, neither counsel proposing to sum up, the counsel for the defence moved for the discharge of the prisoner without allowing the case to go to the jury. District Attorney objected, but the Judge charged the jury, virtually directing them to find a verdict of acquittal. After being out all the afternoon, they returned, unable to agree. The Court inquired of the District Attorney what he desired. That officer replied that he expected a verdict of guilty of manslaughter in some of the lighter degrees. The Court declined to send the jury back, but discharged them and the prisoner, and a verdict of "not guilty" was entered by order of the Court.

Incendiarism and Alarm at Brighton, Beaufort District. Information has reached us that great excitement exists in the neighborhood of Brighton, in the upper part of Beaufort District, owing to the following circumstances:

On the days of election, the negroes were harangued by a lawyer (?) of their own race, from the town of Beaufort, who told them that if they had made short work with the women and children during the war, they would not now have any trouble about the lands. He also advised all who were without arms to procure a supply immediately. The name of this lawyer (?) is Wright, the same fellow who offered the resolution in the Republican Convention at Columbia, recommending that the negroes support a man of their own race as candidate for the next Vice-President of the United States.

Since the delivery of Wright's address, the negroes have been parading about the country before daylight in the morning, crying, "To arms! to arms!" to the great alarm of the white people. Since then, too, the corn crib of a Mrs. Lawton has been burned, with its contents, her whole corn crop for the year. Apprehensions are felt lest this incendiarism may be extended, and the people left without the means of subsistence. Captain Alfred Martin, on behalf of the white people of that neighborhood, has come to Charleston to request Gen. Canby to send up a detachment of troops to maintain order and protect the lives and property of the citizens from lawless violence.

Fatal Accident. A few days ago a gentleman by the name of Fred. Dale, while coming to this city on business from his home in Norfolk county, met with a sad accident which resulted in his death. It appears that he was riding along the road on horseback, when the animal became frightened, and in his endeavors to check him, was thrown some distance and killed instantly. An examination of the unfortunate man proved that his neck was broken by the fall. Mr. Dale was well known in this city as a steady, honest, and upright gentleman. He was a painter by profession, and worked at the business up to the time of his removal to Norfolk county. Mr. Dale leaves an only sister to mourn his loss, who resides in this city. Norfolk Journal.

Distressing Accident. Last Sunday, Dennis Murphy, one of our most respected Irish citizens, took his wife and two other ladies to Swoope's depot on a hand car. On returning in the evening down the heavy grades seven miles from town he attempted to check the speed of the car with the pole-break. It sprung, throwing him in front, the car passed over him, the axles breaking his neck, back, bone and thigh. He lived to reach Staunton. He leaves a wife and children to mourn his loss. Valley Virginia.

A woman in France, in good circumstances, knowing that the man she loved was in love with another woman, and too poor to marry, destroyed herself and left her property to the man, that he might make her rival his wife. She is certainly the most magnanimous woman the world has yet produced, and her name was Elise de Barille.

A large ball of fire was seen a few nights ago, in Tucker county, West Virginia, moving across the heavens at the rate of sixty miles an hour, emitting sparks and a hissing noise.

A New Hebrew Synagogue has just been erected in New York City, on Broadway, W. 800. The cost of that edifice is larger than Trinity Church, and adds to the number of synagogues in New York City.

This edifice is erected by the Reformers as the Reformed Jews, who have departed from the ancient faith in many ways, but more especially in the manner of worship. In other synagogues the maintenance is open and unencumbered by seats, reading desks occupying the centre of the room. In this synagogue all is changed, except the ark, which rests in its usual place in the transept. The Reformed Jews have a choir like that of the Episcopal Church, and the centre of the building is filled with pews and aisles. Under the dispensation, men and women do not sit together, and the men wear dark hats during the service, and there is no organ nor choir of singers. In the Hebrew synagogue the sexes occupy seats together, as in Protestant churches, and the service is read from a desk or pulpit, while the music is furnished by an organ and the singers stationed in the gallery.

On last Saturday evening Mrs. Gillespie and daughter were returning home from church at Belmont, Sumter county, the pole in the carriage came out and the mules took fright and started off in a run, which frightened Mrs. Gillespie and her daughter, and they both attempted to save themselves by jumping out of the carriage. Miss Annie Gillespie, in jumping out, struck her head against an embankment and broke her neck. Her mother was badly injured, but hopes are entertained of her recovery. The gentleman that was driving the carriage at the time did not know they had jumped out until he had stopped the mules, which was done without damage to any part of the carriage, and had they kept their seats they would have been unhurt. Miss Annie was found lying on her face just as she fell, and it is thought she was killed instantly. Alabama paper.

The Radical Speculators Failed. Much surprise has been expressed at the report favoring impeachment of the President not affecting the gold market more than it did. It would have been regarded as more complimentary to the Executive had such a movement run up the price of gold; but other considerations induced the wish in officials here to prevent the rise, and thereby possibly defeat the great purpose of certain parties, procuring the report favoring impeachment. A current rumor is that pressure was brought to bear upon Mr. Churchill to secure his vote for impeachment, and fortunes were to be made by speculation in gold. To checkmate this, another rumor says that Secretary McCulloch ordered the selling of $25,000,000 of gold yesterday, and this kept the market steady, to the consternation of the political ring, who were counting upon great gains. Such are the stories now afloat around Washington, but I have no means of ascertaining their truth. Suffice it to say, they are generally believed. Wash. Letter in Baltimore Gazette.

Annexation of West India Islands. An expedition was recently sent from New York to St. Thomas and St. John's to take possession of those islands, they having been acquired by the United States from the Danish Government. Col. Stillwell is the Commissioner on the part of the United States, and is accompanied by a detachment of troops. The party sailed in the regular St. Thomas packet, and not in a government vessel, in order to avoid publicity. Several vessels of the Atlantic squadron have received orders to rendezvous at St. Thomas. Mr. Hawley, who recently visited the islands, reports that the people are nearly all in favor of the annexation. N. Y. Herald.

Murderous Assault. St. Louis, Nov. 27. A young man named Klenger, shot his employer, Henry Witter, in the head, and then broke Witter's wife's skull, robbed the house of $40, and disappeared, and has not yet been arrested. Witter and his wife are not dead yet, but are both in a critical state. The real cause of the tragedy is not known.

Freack of a Laniatic. MEMPHIS, Nov. 27. On Sunday evening, Horace Callier, an old man, evidently deranged, got aboard the steamer Julia at Springfield, Mississippi, to go to St. Francis River. Shortly after getting aboard, he declared the negroes were going to kill him, and as they started to supper, drew a revolver and fired several times, killing one and wounding three others.

Impeachment and Conventions. NASHVILLE, Nov. 27. Resolutions asking the Tennessee members of Congress to vote for impeachment yesterday passed the lower House of the Tennessee Legislature. There was an exciting discussion in the House of Representatives yesterday, on a resolution instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress to sustain Thaddeus Stevens' confederate program. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 43 to 10.

Not a Candidate. URGENT, N. Y., Nov. 25. In response to his nomination, Governor Horatio Seymour has written to the Democratic Union that he will not be a candidate for the Presidency by the next National Democratic Convention.
