Solomon's Throne.

The following account of this remarkable piece of mechanism purports to be taken from the Persian manuscript, called "The History of Jerusalem."

The sides of it were pure gold, the feet of emeralds and rubies intermixed with pearls, each of which were as large as an ostrich's egg. The throne had seven sides, on each side were delineated orchards full of trees, the branches of which were of precious stones, representing fruit, ripe and unripe; on the tops of the trees were to be seen figures of plumage birds, particularly the peacock, three tann and karges. All these birds were hollowed within artificially, so as to occasionally utter melodious sounds, such as the ear of mortal never heard. On the first step were delineated vine branches having bunches of grapes, composed of precious stones and various kinds, fashioned in such a manner as to represent the various colors of purple, violet, green and red, so as to render the appearance of real fruit. On the second step, on each side of the throne, were two lions of terrible aspect, large as life, and formed of cast gold.

The nature of this remarkable throne was such that when Solomon placed his foot on the first step, the birds spread their wings and made a fluttering noise in the air. On his reaching the third step, the whole assemblage of demons, fairies and men repeated the praises of the Deity. When he arrived at the fourth step, voices were heard addressing him in the following manner: "Son of David, be thankful for the blessings which the Almighty has bestowed upon us."

The same was repeated on his reaching the fifth step. On his reaching the sixth, all the children of Israel joined them, and on his arrival at the seventh, all the birds and animals became in motion, and ceased not until he had placed himself on the royal seats, when the birds, lions, and other animals, by secret springs, discharged a shower of the most precious perfumes on Solomon, after which two of the karges descended and placed the golden crown upon his head.

Before the throne was a column of burnished gold, on the top of which was a golden dove, which held in its beak a volume bound in silver. In this book were written the Psalms of David, and the dove having presented the book to the King, he read aloud a portion of it to the children of Israel. It is further related that on the approach of evil persons to the throne, the lions were wont to set up a terrible roar, and to lash their tails with violence, the bird also, and the demons and geni to utter horrid cries; so for fear of them, no one dared to be guilty of falsehood, but all confessed their crimes. Such was the throne of Solomon, the son of David.

A HUGE CLAIM.—Mr. Charles L. Neale, stonemason, of Alexandria, has been notified by a Washington lawyer that he is heir, through his aunt, Mrs. Lee, to about one hundred million dollars worth of real estate in that city. The ground claimed to belong to the lady in question, and to Mr. Neale as her heir, has in it some of the most valuable property in the Federal capital, including the Treasury building, Lafayette square, President's house and grounds, and all the large and small buildings within the circumference of a mile around the President's house.—Alexandria Journal.

Bruce and the spider, as an emblem of the fruit of perseverance, should now give way to Shurtleff and the Boston mayoralty. Dr. Shurtleff, a good Democrat and most worthy citizen, has been the standing candidate of the Boston Democracy for mayor for the last ten or fifteen years. Now and then another candidate would be put forward, but merely for the sake of variety, as no Democrat stood any chance of election.—New York Times.

Franks of Lightning.

A correspondent sends the following history of a bolt of lightning which struck a house in Clinton, De Kalb county, Ill., on evening of Nov. 28:

Old Mr. Rose—about seventy years of age—his wife, and five or six children, were resting from their day's labor. Two young men had called in; were quite merry, and thought of danger, when, just as they thought, their lights were each felt an awful presence, but saw only horrid darkness. A part heard the terrible report which immediately followed. Then came from one of the young men a loud cry for help. He was answered, but he couldn't hear. Again he called with a stentorian voice, but his ear was stopped, and he only comprehended the situation after a light was procured. One had the presence of mind to go up stairs and extinguished a small blaze of fire which the
