I have been denounced on this floor as being a secessionist and disloyal man. Sir, I am not loyal to Thad. Stevens, Wilson, Summer, and others in Congress. I am net loyal to the reconstruction acts, that are boldly declared unconstitutional by Thad. Stevens. I am not loyal in those things, but, sir, if any man charges me with being untrue to the Constitution of the United States, I tell him that he bies. How can you charge the people of this State with being disloyal, in not wishing to take this oath, when the very loyal people of Ohio voted down this very measure?

Mr. Durham was interrupted frequently, and with so many trivial and factious points of order, that he had to take his seat, saying that he was not suffered to have a fair hearing on this floor.

Mr. Ashley was aroused. He repeated his assertion, that Mr. Durnam was a disloyal man.
