Pendleton and Hancock.

The contest has narrowed down to Pendleton and Hancock. Unless some third party should be taken up, merely as a compromise, Pendleton and Hancock will receive almost the entire vote of the Democratic Convention on the second ballot, It cannot be denied that the War Democrats are making a desperate effort to secure the nomination of Hancock; and, in this effort, they are ably seconded by those who are manipulating the wires for the bondholders.

Pendleton is still far shead, but the Hancock men seem determined to relax no effort to present the claims of their favorite in the strongest possible shape. The great masses of the people—the real Democracy-are enthusiastic for Pendleton; ad we see nothing, as yet, to alter our opinion that he will be the nominee of the New York Convention. If any other candidate is chosen, nothing but an endorsement of Pendleton's greenback policy will satisfy his friends in the West.

In common with the entire people of the South, we look forward with anxiety and interest to the assembling of the Convention. Its sessions may be stormy, but w trust the delegates will be patriotic enough to sink all personal preferences in the common desire to restore unity and prosperity to a now divided and suffering country.

Unanimously Selected Grant.

The "unanimity" part of Grant's nomination was one of the most desperate of the increase." So are poverty and mean party tricks. It was all done for dramatic | cigars ! (no pun intended) effect, and for the additional and palpable reason that the party was afraid to go into the campaign under anybody but Grant.

To be nominated unanimously is but poor indication of success at the polls,-Henry Clay was nominated by acclamation, and we all remember how badly he was beaten by James K. Polk, a comparatively obscure man, and one who never dreamed of reaching the Presidential

The next campaign will be a repetition of that of 1852. Gen. Scott was then nominated by the Whig party purely on the ground of supposed availability, his military record being the single claim he had to consideration. Against Franklin Pierce, another chance candidate, he carried but four States in the Union.

So it will be with Grant. He is pushed forward, in a moment of desperation, because he was a successful General, though a very poor one; and it matters not who the Democrats may nominate, their candidate will give the hero of Vicksburg a worse drubbing than he received at Suits Exactly.

The New York Times is bitterly opposed to extreme Radicalism, but it is in high glee over the nomination of Grant and Colfax, two men who represent thoroughly the malignant type of Stevens-Butlerism. Both longed for the conviction of the President; and, as for Grant, he is a mere puppet in the hands of Congress. A man of his meagre intellect, occupying his peculiar position, could not be otherwise.

The ticket belongs to the Kangaroo species; for Colfax, though not above mediscrity himself, is immeasurably the intellectual superior of Grant.

The Times likes the platform, of course for that is a mere farce—a combination of nothing generally-neither fish, flesh nor fowl. In truth, it is the most miserable deception ever put forth as a platform by political party.

We would like to know if the Times thinks Gen. Grant, if elected, will ever many opposition to the will of Conces ? Or, is it a matter of any importance with the Times whether he does or not year,

Grant's Speech.

It appears that the speech telegraphed over the country a few days since, purporting to have been delivered by Gen. Grant, was dressed up into respectability by the Agent of the Associated Press at Washington. The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Gasetts makes this charge, and gives the following as verbatim report of Grant's remarks:

"Gentlemen, being entirely unaccustomed as I am to public speaking, I not having cultivated that grace (Heavy !), all I can say is that in whatever place you assign me I will endeavor to discharge the duties devolving on me impartially and to the best of my ability. [Immense chee:ing.] I can only refer you to the record I have left." Where did he leave it

Evidently, Hiram Ulysses, or Ulysses S. (even his father acknowledges that he don't know which is right), is not much of a "speakist." But, after all, it is not absolutely essential that a military dictator should be an orator. Gunpowder and bayonets will answer his purpose better than "that grace" which Gen. Grant has not "cultivated."

The Working People.

The Baltimore American, of yesterday, says that the amount paid to journeymen mechanics and artisans of that city at the present time is such as will enable them not only to support their families, educate their children, &c., but lay aside something as a contingent fund. The following are the rates which prevail : Bricklayers, $5 per day; housecarpenters, $2,50 to $3, according to skill and steadiness; stone masons range from $3 75 to $4, the bosses charging $4 50, which includes superintending and general oversight; gasfitters, $4; plumbers, from $4 50 to $5, for even ordinary workmen; cabinet makers in that city generally work by the piece, but their daily earnings may be put down at $2 to $3; housepain ers, $3; machinists, $4 moulders, $4; boiler makers, from $3 50 to $4; marbleworkers, $4; hod carriers, from $2 25 to $2 50, according to elevaand plasterers may appear heavy to many but it should be recollected the nature of their work prevents them from steady employment for more than eight or nine months during the year. All these working men regard ten hours as a day's work, and there is now nothing on hand like a strike. In addition to the above may be mentioned the wood carvers, who receive from $3.50 to $4 per day. All the rates enumerated will compare favorably with those of New York and Philadelphia, where the cost of living is thought to be a little in excess of Baltimore.

It is very evident that the President's friends attempted no bribery in the impeachment trial, from the fact that Drake and Cattell voted for conviction.

A Radical office-seeker says he "will support Grant," but he forgets to state that it is done with the hope that Grant, if elected, will support him!

Mr. Holden speaks editorially of the Confederate banners as "standards of treason," Wasn't his newspaper once Standard of treason, too?

The Raleigh Standard says: "The Star should not jest on serious subjects." Jest so, Mr. Holden! but you ought to have thought of that when you were abusing Gov. Graham and others for "party purposes!"
