Beef and Taxes.

(From the Nebraska City News.)

A Bovine Biography. - I was born in Nebraska. The farmer to. whom I belonged paid a tax upon me as a part of his income during my vealhood. He sold me when I was three years old, and paid an income tax upon what I brought. I was nicely fatted until I weighed nearly a ton, by a Democrat on Weeping Water, who paid the Government eighteen cents for the privilege of selling me to a butcher, who pays a tax of ten dollars for the privilege of selling meat to the public. The butcher sold my tallow to a chandler, who made me, by paying a license as manufacturer, into candles for the poor people, IS Approximation Prizes of $100 dles to read by. The tanner will sell the leather to a whole ale dealer, who pays a mercantile licence and an income tax, and he will sell it to the shoemaker, and the shoemker will get up boots for the laborer, farmer and machanic, and charge enough for them to cover all the taxes enumerated together with his own manufac-

The Dying N ver Weep.

It is a striking fact that the dying never weep. The circle of sobbing, agonizing hearts around pro-duce not a tear. Is it that he is in-duce not a tear. Is it that he is in-the prizes are drawn out.

The tickets are printed in the following style:
They are divided into Eighths, printed on the face of the Tickets—Eight-Eighths baring the sensible and stiff already in the chill of dissolution? That cannot be; for he asks for his father's hand, discount, and the Official Drawing sent as if to gain strength in the mental struggle, and leans on the breast of a mother, brother, or sister, with still conscious affection; and just before expiring, at eve, after a long day's converse with the angel of summer, he says to his oldest brother-last audible "good night" of earth—"Kiss me, kiss." It must be because the dying have reached a point too deep for our earthly crying and weeping.—
